Members of the Board of Health waited upon the Property Committee and recommended the completion of the eight-inch water main in East City. When completed this main will not only adequately provide the East Ward with an independent water supply, but will also augment the service in the centre of the city, and provide two independent sources of water supply for the Quaker Oats Company.

ALLEGED ENEMY RAID ON THE STOCK MARKET IS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Exchange's Governors Take Steps to Learn Who is Selling Short—Plot to Hamper Industry Charged—German Agents Said to Be Profiting Hugely While Causing Havoc in Prices.

GREATEST DROP IN MONTHS

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Following the collapse of values on the Stock Exchange last week, the Board of Governors took steps to investigate charges that German agents are responsible for a conspiracy to depress American securities and thus hamper industries.

During three days of heavy selling on the Exchange rumours have been current in Wall street that German interests were behind the tremendous unloading of securities, and that much of the selling was by interests which did not have stock to sell, but later "covered" at an enormous profit.

In last Thursday's collapse of values, the United States Steel Company's common stock, the market leader, which had closed at 100 3-4 on Wednesday, opened at 99 and was sold down to 93 1-4, and closed at 93 1-8, a net loss of 6 7-8 points on the day, after sales of almost half a million shares.

Losses Greatest in Months.

The decline was the greatest the stock had suffered in any one day since that on which the United States government announced its action against the corporation under the Anti-Trust act.

Pennsylvania Railroad stock declined below par, while almost the entire list showed losses ranging from $1 to $13 a share, the latter extreme being reached in the case of the New York Air Brake Company's stock.

Following the collapse in prices the Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange, after consultation with bankers, took radical measures to ascertain the real cause of the break. Resolutions were adopted designed to reveal the actual source of the selling and to show what truth there is in the charges of a conspiracy by German spies or sympathizers to depress the price of American securities, alarm investors and hamper industry in this country by disturbing monetary conditions.

"Resolved, That all members of the Exchange or their firms, who are borrowing stocks either for themselves or their customers, are required to furnish daily, by twelve o'clock noon to the Committee on Clearing House of the New York Stock Exchange, at No. 55 New street, a list of all stocks borrowed. Such list must state the name and amounts of the borrowed stocks and from whom borrowed.

"At the same time they must deliver in a sealed envelope a list of the names of customers for whose account such stocks are borrowed and the amount borrowed for each customer. These sealed envelopes will be inspected by the Committee on Business Conduct in their discretion.

"Resolved, That all members of the Exchange or their firms who are lending stocks are required to furnish daily by twelve o'clock noon to the Committee on Clearing House of the New York Stock Exchange, at No. 55 New street, a list of all loaned stocks. Such list must state the names and amounts of such loaned stocks, the names of the borrowers of the same and the amount loaned to each borrower."

Declines To Be Checked.

The reports which the brokers are required to render under these resolutions will enable the governors of the Exchange to place their hands on the actual sellers of securities. If there are indications of any German conspiracy the evidence is to be submitted to the United States government at once. On the other hand if the selling is traced to a coterie of gamblers, or so called bear raiders, the Exchange will take steps to stop the operations of such gentry.

The governors, it is understood, are determined to preclude unscrupulous gambling from employing the Stock Exchange as a medium for their nefarious practices. The exchange authorities declare there is a great difference between bear raiders of the market and legitimate "short" sellers. No complaint is made against the latter, but the former are to be debarred.

Rumors that the exchange would reestablish minimum prices in order to check the decline in the market value of securities were declared baseless. Governors of the Exchange reiterated that the question had not even been considered.

Startling Rumours Current.

Bankers were unanimous in the opinion that any such interference with a free market for securities would be most unwise in the circumstances. Nothing in the monetary situation warrants it, they declared.

News of the sharp decline in the quotation for Steel spread like wildfire through the entire financial district. Brokers' offices, which for days had been virtually empty suddenly became crowded with the morbid and curious as well as with anxious holders of stocks and the customary "bargain hunters." The atmosphere everywhere was heated. In the excitement all sorts of reports were circulated. The probable closing of the Exchange action by Congress, prohibition of short selling and almost everything else that could be imagined was "going to happen." None of the rumours however, had any foundation in fact.

Yesterday proved the poorest day since the local Medical Board began operations as far as providing Category A men was concerned. Of fifty-one candidates examined only twenty-three were graded fit for the trenches. It was the first day on which the number of Category A men fell below 50 per cent., in fact 60 per cent. has been the average. The total rejections numbered sixteen, while twelve were given B or C grading, an unusually large number for those categories.

In the afternoon there were eighteen candidates examined with the following results:

A category	8
B category	2
C category	4
E category	4

The night session established a new record, when only two men were placed in A category out of twelve examined. This is the smallest number of A men to be secured at any one session of the Board. The night results were as follows:

A category	2
B category	2
C category	1

Market Arcade Will Be Closed

Mr. V. Eastwood appeared before the committee of the Whole Council last evening with the request that the Council recommend the development of the arcade in the market building. Mr. Eastwood said that the Commission approved of the scheme and he appeared unofficially before the committee to seek the Council's approval. The closing of the arcade and the construction of store buildings would improve the appearance of the street and obliterate a repository for loafers. The arcade will make two stores and several tenants are in prospect. The closing of the arcade will mean that the entrance to the market building upstairs will be at the rear, as the entire front will be closed up. Mr. Eastwood said it was only a matter of time until the upstairs market would have to be removed downstairs.

The closing of the arcade was recommended by the committee, and later in the evening endorsed by the Council.

PATRIOTIC CLUB HELD AT HOME

The "At Home" held last evening under the auspices of St. Peter's Patriotic Club was most successful, and the satisfactory amount of $57.00 realized, which will be used to procure comforts for the boys overseas.

The hall was beautifully decorated with flags of the allies and the members of the club are deeply grateful to the following gentlemen who kindly loaned them: J. J. Turner & Sons, Trebilcock Bros., Woolworth Co., Merrill & Meredith and D. M. Minicola, also to Schneider Bros. for table decorations.

FOOD OUTLOOK IMPROVED

Canadian Officer Says Food Outlook is Considerably Improved.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—An arrangement has been perfected between the Roumanian and the Russian Governments for the diversion of the Bessarabian wheat crop to Roumania. Storage depots have been established and 20,000 tons of the grain already assembled. The crop is abundant, and it is estimated it will more than meet the needs of the army. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Boyle, Canadian Militia Engineer, who has just returned from Roumania, pronounces the food outlook as considerably improved.

A Cook's Accidental Discovery.

One of the best ways of cooking potatoes was accidentally discovered through the unpunctuality of a train. When the line from Paris to St. Germain was opened the first train carried an official party for whom lunch was ordered. The meal was fixed for noon, and shortly before that hour the potatoes were put on to fry. A few minutes afterward a message came that the train would probably be delayed for an hour, so the potatoes were taken off the fire, but left in the pan. Then came a second message, "Train just arriving," and the potatoes were hurriedly put back to fry again. When the party sat down to lunch the potatoes were brought on with the steak. Each chip was then found to be blown out like a small, crisp, golden balloon, to the delight of the guests. The cook without knowing it had invented pommes de terre souffles.

Tomatoes For Seed.

Many persons save the first tomato that ripens for seed, and they think they are doing the right thing. The very earliest tomatoes to ripen are not as sweet and solid as those ripening from a week to two weeks later. The best plan in saving the tomato for seed is to select the more uniform, medium size, which ripen evenly and quickly a little while after the plant has been producing ripe fruit. Seeds saved from tomatoes grown on moderately thin soil will retain the good qualities better than those saved from plants which were forced by very rich soil.

Pay of Surgeon In Ancient Times.

High honorariums were paid surgeons in ancient times. When Darius, the son of Hystaspes, sprained his foot Damocedes was called in, another surgeon of renown having failed to effect a cure. Damocedes was successful, and the king introduced the doctor to the ladies of the court. The ladies filled a vase of gold with money and precious pearls, which a slave was ordered to carry to the doctor.

Mining of a Sort.

"Well, Rastus, I hear you are working again. What business are you engaged in?"

"I's done be engaged in de mining business, sah."

"What kind of mining are you doing gold, silver or diamond?"

"I's doing calcimining, sah."

A Surprise.

Rich Uncle—Is it true that you have compromised with your creditors for 2 cents on the dollar?

Nephew—Yes, uncle, but—

Rich Uncle—But nothing! I doubled my legacy to you when I heard of your cleverness.

Two Hard Jobs.

Leave it to us and we'd say that the hardest jobs are trying to give satisfaction either as a stepmother or as manager of a tail end baseball club.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE ACETYLENE TANK EXPLODED

Mr. Ed. Hickey had a very narrow escape from serious injury, and possibly death, on Sunday evening, as the consequence of a peculiar accident. He had been visiting at the home of his mother-in-law in Bridgenorth, and when he tried to light the lamps of his car, they refused to ignite. Mr. Hickey was testing the acetylene tank of his car when it suddenly exploded with great violence, the noise being heard for a considerable distance. Had Mr. Hickey been bending over the tank he might have been killed by the force of the explosion, but, fortunately, was standing at one side, and escaped practically unhurt, his only injury being a cut on the cheek-bone as the result of being struck by one of the flying pieces. He considers himself a very lucky man.

SLACKER THROWN OUT OF COURT

Stirring Scene in a London Court — One Judge Left the Bench.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—There was a remarkable scene in the High Courts yesterday when a conscientious objector was haranguing the Court in his own case. According The Times, Justice Rowlatt remarked, "I have serious business in another court," and left the Bench. The law requiring two Judges on such an application, Justice Darling said: "I cannot proceed alone with the application." The applicant protested. Justice Darling replied, "Since the Court has been hearing the application an officer of this Court heard that his son was severely wounded a second time while fighting to protect men like this." The applicant getting noisy the Court ordered him to leave, whereupon a clerk, discharged from the army by reason of wounds, seized the applicant by the throat and threw him out of the court, saying, "You dog, it's for the likes of you that I have been wounded."

Heiress of The Earl of Lonsdale

"My Irish Cinderella" is the title of the new four act comedy drama which will be seen at the Grand Theatre, next Saturday, Nov. 10, for two performances.

It is said to be entirely different from the Irish plays that have been seen in recent years. It tells the story of a little Irish girl, Peggy McNeil and her adventures in this country and abroad. It has a good clean, interesting story and the characters are all human and real. It sparkles with true Celtic wit, and there is no caricature of the Irish race, as is often seen in so-called Irish plays.

At the opening of the play, Peggy is found as a drudge in a poorhouse. She has been given a story book of Cinderella, and while she is reading it a strange train of circumstances begin which finally lands Peggy in England, as the heiress of the Earl of Lonsdale.

Adventures now happen to Peggy in rapid succession. She falls in love with a young American aviator, serving in the cause of the Allies. She finds that to be rich is not always to be happy. At one moment the audience laughs with her and the next minute it cries with her.

Miss Daisy Carleton, in her action of the title role, presents a character drawing which is perfect. The beauty of the rich Irish dialect is carefully brought out, and Miss Carleton is a charming and delightful little colleen. She is a remarkably clever dancer, and during the action of the play has several song hits.

A splendid supporting company adds to the interest of the play, and a beautiful scenic production is promised by the management.

ABOUT 2,000 NURSES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—About two thousand Red Cross nurses already have been sent to Europe. Fifteen thousand nurses have been enrolled, number estimated as sufficient for an army of a million and a half men. Approximately 1,000 nurses are being called every month. To meet the demand for more nurses, if it should become necessary, there has been slight modification in the requirements. The more important change contemplated is a lowering of the age limit for specially qualified persons.

They have a chance to get away from their prison. But if the eyesight has failed in any way, there is no sliding out of the responsibility of having the eyes cared for. Neglecting them while waiting for them to improve by themselves, will only aggravate the distress, and make the final lens adjustment more complicated and expensive. Better get away from the trouble by letting Dr. Fowler examine the eyes and tell you what they need.

MAGIC OF "TANABATA."

Solace in the Midst of Woe is the Festival of July 7.

Perhaps the most interesting of the five important festivals of the Japanese year, Tanabata Matsuri, is celebrated on July 7th. In the bustling cities of Tokio and Osaka its observance is somewhat out of favor, but in the country districts even the word "Tanabata" brings heavenly solace to all minds distressed. It recalls primitive days when forebears of the present generation saw deities in stars and a good spirit in every blade of grass. Saito Man, the clever essayist of the Japan Advertiser, says of the day:

Tanabata Matsuri is sometimes called the "festival of Stars" but its literal and proper significance is "the festival of the weaving girl"—or wife's festival."

In the days of the gods there was a beautiful maiden who worked day in and day out at her tanabata or loom. She was a daughter of the heavenly god; none could surpass her in industry and modesty. The father married her to a handsome cowherd. Thenceforth the girl left off her work at the loom and devoted her whole care to her husband. The father seeing this got angry and dismissed her to the eastern bank of the River of Heaven (Milky Way). Only once a year, that is, on the seventh evening of the seventh moon, is she allowed to cross the Heavenly River to meet her husband. If unfortunately rain should fall, the water would flow over the banks, and make it impossible for the weaving girl to cross the river. Hence, the festival of Tanabatahime or Weaving Princess. It is a propitiation of the gods and goddesses for the sake of successful meeting of wife and husband.

It is a pity that the old custom of tanabata dancing was prohibited by a government ordinance issued in 1873. Up to that time young persons of both sexes were wont to enjoy an open air dancing under the starlit sky to the accompaniment of drum and singing. The officials returned from Europe saw signs of crass barbarism in this sort of thing, and interdicted it.

Italy Can Fall Back On Three Successive Lines Of Defence

Italy May Be a Waterloo For the Kaiser—Disaster to Teutons if They Lose, Little Gain if They Win—Even Loss of Venetia Not Fatal and Germans Might Find it a Trap

RIVER HALTS ENEMY

LONDON, Nov. 7.— With the single exception of the battle of the Marne, the conflict now being staged on the Venetian plain exceeds in the number of forces engaged and its possible results any other clash of arms recorded in human history. Waterloo was a mere skirmish compared to it, but, like Waterloo, it may seal the fate of an ambitious emperor seeking to rule the world. There is no possibility of its becoming a Waterloo for the Allies because, whatever the outcome, the struggle will continue until German autocracy is crushed.

Considering the importance of the conflict, which may last weeks, it is well to have in mind a clear idea of the battlefield. Venetia occupies the entire north-eastern part of Italy from the lower reaches of the Po to the Carnic Mountains. The Alps sweep around it in an irregular semi-circle from Lake Garda to the head of the Adriatic, embracing an area of nearly 9,500 square miles. That portion between the Tagliamento and the Adige rivers is likely to include the extreme limits of the Teuton offensive and the present battle probably will be fought out between the Tagliamento Piave.

River Halts Enemy.

The Italian troops from the Isonzo front are now established behind the middle and lower Tagliamento up to its junction with the Fella, fifty miles from the sea. The river rises about thirty miles further west in the heart of the Carnic Alps, flows eastward to a point just above Gemona and then south to the Gulf of Venice. It is wide and rapid, but by no means deep and for the last forty miles of its course there are no hills or natural elevations that would afford cover for military operations. From Latisana to the sea, a distance of about eleven miles, there are great marshes on both sides of the river which are likely to bar the enemy effectually in that direction. The whole district between the Tagliamento on the northeast and the Piave on the southwest is an alluvial plain bounded on the southeast by the Gulf of Venice and on the northwest by the Venetian Alps. It is about forty miles across from the sea to the mountains, with a frontage of about twenty-five miles on the water, widening out to fifty at the Alpine foothills. These hills form an excellent cover, protecting the left wing of the army on the Tagliamento, providing they can be held in sufficient force.

At this point military critics differ. Some have no doubt that General Cadorna will be able to hold this line; others contend that he would make eventual victory more certain by retiring to the Piave. In favour of the former is the fact that Tolmezzo, south of the Plocsken Pass, has not yet been reported as taken, although the Teutons were said to be pouring through that Alpine gateway several days ago. But if the Italians here should be overwhelmed and the river crossed the whole army further south would be outflanked and menaced from the rear.

Piave Line Stronger.

The Piave rises in the Carnic Alps, some sixteen miles north of the source of the Tagliamento, flows southwest past Belluno and at Feltre abruptly turns to the south-east, emptying into the sea about twenty miles above Venice. It is a much stronger line than the Tagliamento and its upper part stretches out for sixty miles above Feltre to the north-east, making an attack from the passes for that distance exceedingly difficult.

The Piave is of course nearer to the great bases of Italian supplies and has the advantage of being served by four railroads, three of them coming from the big distributing centre of Treviso, ten miles back of the river. One of these roads runs past Feltre and on to Belluno, furnishing excellent communications for military operations on this part of the line. A fourth railway comes from Padua and Venice and follows the coast about five miles away, crossing the Piave at San Dona and the Tagliamento at Latisana, on the eastern bank, which is already in Teuton hands.

The advertiser who is deceived as to newspaper circulation is not entitled to much sympathy."

Inter-Ally War Committee To Press War Against Huns

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.— The coming meeting in Rome of the Premiers of England, Italy, and France, indicated by official despatches received here yesterday, is of greater scope than on the consideration of military measures to meet the German drive into Italy.

M. Painleve, the French Premier, was accompanied to the Italian capital by Franklin Bouillon, the French Minister of Missions abroad.

Gen. Foch, French chief of staff, and Gen. Robertson, British chief of staff, were awaiting the Premiers in Rome, and in the meantime have been concerting measures for the co-operation of French and British troops, with the Italian armies. Gen. Smuts, of South African fame, is also in attendance with Lloyd George, the British Premier.

An explanation of the general purposes of the gathering of the statesmen and soldiers is given in the cablegram as follows:

"It is necessary that there should be a large plan of concerted action between the Governments themselves, in addition to technical military actions and orders, hence the call to the Premiers and political heads of the entente."

The advisability of creating an inter-ally War Commission may possibly be discussed and attracts much attention here.

Mere Man Wants Little.

I heard a man say one time that the things he looked for in a room were a comfortable chair, a strong writing table and a good light. That does not seem much for a man to want. But how many men get it? The girls and women of the household decorate and furnish their rooms to please themselves, but it is not very often that very much thought or trouble is spent on the men's rooms. One reason that they don't think more about it is that as most men have these comforts at their offices they do not bother to voice their opinion about what they might have at home.

Every one who has a boarding house is rather anxious to rent the rooms to men, as they are proverbially less trouble and easier to please than women, and how much more easily the rooms might attract men if they should bear in mind the three things this man said were essential to his happiness.—Washington Post.

"Danger Ahead" is the Warning Which Headache Signals to You

TRUE, an occasional headache may result from conditions that pass away, but "persistent headaches" tell of serious trouble, and demand attention.

Women are more liable to headaches than men. The direct cause may be overwork, worry or mental anxiety, but the real source of trouble is debility of the nerve centres.

The brain is the "central station" of the nervous system, and here is first felt any unusual strain. Headache results, and you are warned of the exhausted condition of the nerve cells.

The first thought is of relief, and too often there is formed the habit of resorting to headache powders or tablets, instead of aiming at the restoration of the nervous system.

The Food Cure

Mrs. G. Storring, 18 Catharine street, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I have been suffering for the last five years with nervousness, headaches, so that my eyeballs would fairly split, dizziness, and weakness of the heart, and a generally rundown condition. I doctored for several years with different doctors, but without getting relief. Through reading one of your booklets I thought that possibly I could get benefit from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I decided to try it. I got one box, took the pills, and, feeling better, followed it up with more. Now I am feeling much better, am stronger, and able to get around and do my work without difficulty. I would recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering from nervousness and rundown condition."

Anaemia or bloodlessness is often an accompaniment of headaches. The blood is thin and watery, the nerves are starved, there are spells of melancholy and discouragement, and you feel in many ways the need of reconstructive treatment such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Fatigue and exertion should be avoided, and you should have exercise in the open air while using this food cure to nourish the starved, depleted nerve cells back to health.

Not only do you cure headache by usng this treatment, but you build up the run-down system, and prevent such developments as nervous prostration and paralysis.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

The Real "War Bread" must contain the entire wheat grain—not the white flour center — but every particle of gluten and mineral salts—also the outer bran coat that is so useful in keeping the bowels healthy and active. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is the real "war bread" because it is 100 per cent. whole wheat prepared in a digestible form. Contains no yeast, baking powder, seasoning, or chemicals of any kind. Food conservation begins with Shredded Wheat Biscuit for breakfast and ends with Shredded Wheat Biscuit for supper. Delicious with sliced bananas, berries, or other fruits. Made in Canada.

"THE PAINTED WOMAN"

By FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

CHAPTER XIX.

The market place in the town of Port Royal was situated in its oldest quarter, not far from the water front. It consisted of a wide plaza, paved with powdered shell rock, beaten down by countless feet until it had become hard and smooth.

At its further end stood a large weather-beaten building, built of brick, the outer walls of which had once been covered with plaster. The covering had cracked of in many places, thus giving to the structure an ancient and dilapidated appearance. It consisted of two low stories, surmounted by a small cupola.

On the first floor of a row of narrow windows, mere slits in the wall, faced the plaza, on either side of an iron-barred door. Along the second story was a balcony, upon which several larger and more ornamental windows opened, and above, the moss-grown tiles of the roof.

In the Spanish days, when it had its upper floor had constituted the governor, the building was regarded as an edifice of considerable elegance and size. Its narrow lower windows, iron-barred, provided a means of defence against the attacks of Indians, pirates, or more civilized foes, while its upper oor had constituted the governor's living apartments and the administrative chambers. Now, under the lawless rule of the buccaneers, the place had been converted into a prison, the rooms on the ground floor being especially devoted to those unfortunate captives whose fate was to be sold from the block erected in the adjacent plaza.

Around three sides of the latter extended a fairly wide walk, paved with stone, along the inner edge of which stood a row of wooden booths. From these booths were sold the products of the neighbouring plantations and farms, meats, vegetables, milk, eggs and fruits and such other provender as was necessary in the daily life of the town.

Along the outer edge of the walk were situated a number of small buildings, rather primitive in character, overgrown for the most part by flowering vines and other luxuriant foliage of the tropics. Some of these buildings were shops, some taverns while a few were still utilized as private residences by the people of the town.

The fourth side of the market place was open, and fronted the harbour. From it a wide and deeply rutted street extended to the quay which occupied both sides of the outer tip of the sand spit upon which the town was built.

It was the custom of the inhabitants of the town to throng the market place in the late afternoon, and from then until nightfall the greater part of the trading was done. The riff raff of a dozen nationalities, male and female, might have been encountered in the taverns and drinking places about its outer edge. The gorgeous costumes of the buccaneers, the flagrant silks and jewels of the women of the streets, shone brilliant against the dull brown or black of the traders, hawk-nosed gentry, ready to purchase the buccaneers' loot at one-tenth its actual value. What with seafaring men from half a hundred ports, soldiers, people of the town, Indians and negro slaves, there was here collected as picturesque a throng of adventurers as any that the sun ever shone on.

On this particular afternoon the spectacle was an unusually brilliant one. The return of the buccaneers from their successful expedition the night before had poured a new flood of gold into the town. The women, eager to share in it, were out in full force. The tavern keepers, equally desirous of a golden harvest, had dressed their places with more than usual care. Gaudy awnings of striped silk were stretched before their doors, protecting the occupants of the chairs along the sidewalk from the heat of the sun. Huge platters of food, bowls of steaming stews, joints of beef and mutton, attracted the passers-by with their tempting odors. A noisy crowd sat about the outdoor tables, eating and drinking. All was full of life, raw and primitive, yet compellingly vital.

During the day a huge quantity of loot from the buccaneers' ships had been brought ashore and deposited upon the brick-paved space in front of the prison. There were great bales of silks, casks of wine, heaps of gold and silver utensils and ornaments of all kinds, piles of costly clothing, weapons, church vessels, pieces of armour, in fact all the heterogeneous booty that the captured galleons had contained. But few captives had been taken during the recent expedition, and these were still aboard the ships. They constituted the least valuable commodities in which the buccaneers dealt, and hence gave place to those more readily converted into doubloons and pieces of eight.

At a table in front of a tavern, the swinging sign-board before which proclaimed it to be the Turk's Head, sat Master Tench, and with him De Rocheville and Graves. The empty platters before them indicated that they had but now dined. Their cups, if empty, were not allowed to remain so long. Tench and his companions were excellently well pleased with themselves. During the past two hours they had successfully disposed of all the articles they had taken from Ormiston's house, as well as the larger part of the booty they had brought back with them from the cruise. A huge bag of doubloons and silver pieces, which it had required the united efforts of three men to lift, had already been sent aboard ship, there to await division between them, on the morrow. There now remained only the matter of the sale of the slave girl, Lucia, and this was of inconsiderable moment. With their pockets well lined, they looked forward to another riotous night.

Tench drained his cup of rum, and pounding loudly upon the table, called for another.

"'Fore God!" he cried. "Where's Portugee? The cowardly braggart. Afraid of a woman."

Graves pointed toward the door of the prison house.

"He means to sell her, as he promised."

"Well, all the better, say I. He'll fight all the more shrewdly, with no light-o'-love to distract his mind. They've finished with the mulatto, I see." He glanced toward the market place. "I wonder what she brought."

"How much?" Tench called to him.

"Forty pieces of eight. Old Martin, the fishmonger, bought her, for his wife. A fair price. Here's the money." He placed a handful of coins upon the table.

"I'll give the Portugee his when he comes. Where is the fellow?"

"I left him with his lady love." Long Rodgers grinned broadly. "He means to give her a taste of the whip."

"The fool! She'll bring a better price, without a beating to spoil her looks."

"So I told him."

Tench shrugged his shoulders and spat upon the ground.

"Women are the devil," he grumbled. "Praise God I have no traffic with them."

"Ay, and like it, bitter."

"And yet, no man can live wizout ze salt, eh, Master Graves?" the Frenchman observed, catching the eye of a gaily dressed woman who passed.

Long Rodgers turned, pointed toward the prison house door.

"Here they come, now," he cried.

On the opposite side of the market place stood Ramona, with the Portugee, whip in hand, beside her. There was a general movement of the crowd toward them, as they came forth.

Tench threw some pieces of silver upon the table and rose.

"By Heaven!" he exclaimed. "We must see the fun." Followed by his companions, he began to push his way through the crowd.

"Room, good people! Room!" they heard the Portugee cry, as he and Ramona advanced toward the centre of the plazza. When they came to the huge tree stump that served as the block, he grasped the girl by the wrist as though to drag her upon it, but she flung him angrily aside and mounted the single step with flashing eyes.

"The Firebrand's woman," remarked someone in the crowd. "They say she killed him."

"A sorry-looking wench," cried another.

"Look at the eyes of her!" "A devil, or I'm no judge of women!" Heigho! Fine teeth and hair." "I'd not have her as a gift," came from carious quarters of the market space, as the throng caught sight of the girl.

"Out of my way boy," cried De Rocheville, struggling to keep up with his companions. As he pushed his way forward, a laughing trio confronted him. It consisted of Susannah Trix, and an older woman, with greenish eyes and flaming red hair.

"Good day, my masters," the former cried, including Tench, Graves and Long Rodgers in her greeting. "A goodly company, to see the hussy sold."

The Frenchman laughed.

"You come early," he said, ironically. These women usually rose, when honest folk were ready for bed.

"They'd get up at cock-crow," Tench growled, "to see another woman suffer. All alike, the vampires."

"How now, Master Crabapple," Susannah laughed. "What have I ever done to offend you?"

face flushed, his eyes shining with malicious joy. "We show you to-day, as the final offering, this beautiful slave——"

A chorus of noisy interruptions from the crowd stopped him. There was much laughter, intermingled with cries of "Hear—hear!" The onlookers began to realize that there was an element of humour, of a sort, in the scene being enacted before them. Ramona, her hair disheveled, her face gray with suffering, her large eyes rendered almost grotesque by the dark circles about them, looked more like some grim figure of tragedy, than the beautiful creature the Portugee so loudly proclaimed. Some of the crowd laughed in appreciation of his coarse irony, others hesitated, finding in the girl's appearance something that smote their hearts, accustomed though they were to scenes of cruelty and violence. In a moment the Portugeee resumed his discourse.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DOCTOR GAVE THIS RUN-DOWN WOMAN VINOL

And She Got Well—Her Nervousness Disappeared

Flint, Mich.—"I keep house for my family of six and got into a generally run-down condition. I was weak, nervous and could not sleep, and had headache a good deal of the time. My doctor prescribed Vinol and it made me well and strong. I am a good deal less nervous and can sleep nights."—Clara Smith, 1213 W. 4th Ave., Flint, Mich.

Trix followed his example, then burst into a laugh.

"Look, Queen," she called to Susannah. "The rats have been nesting in her hair."

"A little paint would improve her looks," the other replied shilly. "Who would buy her, looking like that?"

De Rocheville shrugged his shoulders and laughed.

"Sapristi! Not I." he said, and began to make eyes at the woman with the red hair.

By now the Portugee had mounted the block, and stood beside Ramona, whip in hand. Suddenly he raised it, calling for attention.

"Hear ye, good people," he began.

A murmur arose from the crowd. "Hear! Hear!" cried some. "Make way there!" exclaimed others, jostling their neighbours so as to secure a better position. At last there came a measure of quiet. All eyes were fixed upon Portuguese Joe, and the woman beside him.

Punishing a Sparrow.

It is quite common in early spring for young and inexperienced sparrows to steal twigs and other building material from the nests of their elders. If this theft is detected, as it usually is a posse promptly visits the offender's nest and scatters it to the four winds soundly thrashing the occupant in the bargain.

A story is told of a sparrow which stole the nest of a martin and was making himself comfortable in it. The angry owner summoned all his friends and immediately they came, several hundred strong, but the intruder held them at bay for some time by pecking all who came near enough to the opening. Finally the avengers withdrew and held a consultation. In a few moments they returned, each with a mouthful of mud, and proceeded to plaster up the hole, walling the occupant up alive.—Nebraska Legal News

Cheap and Dear Men.

In an interview with Darwin P. Kingsley a writer in the American Magazine reports:

"Suppose you explain, Mr. Kingsley, some of the differences between the $1,000 a year and the $5,000 a year man."

"Punch, faithfulness, capacity for work and inclination for it," returned the life insurance president, "make up the yardstick which measures most differences in salary. It's not at all difficult to spot the youth who has the makings of a winner.

"The $5,000 a year man, to begin with, is always on the job. He is too busy to watch the clock. He is likely to be quicker at his work than the man at the next desk, and he is always looking for more things to do. In a roomful of clerks the man who is always hollowing for heavier tasks doesn't have to ask for promotions."

No Spooning Allowed

IF you have been unfavorably impressed with the flavor of Roman Meal Porridge, sure enough you must have stirred it! Be fair to yourself and to Roman Meal! Don't stir it except while mixing meal and water. Remember "no spooning allowed."

Force of habit made you stir the porridge without knowing you did so, perhaps. Just get another package; make the porridge according to the directions. Surely it is no trouble NOT to stir Roman Meal porridge after mixing the meal and water.

Dr. Jackson's

makes the most delightful flavory porridge of all—when not stirred. The flavor of grains lies in their DARK parts. Roman Meal is rich in the dark parts of wheat and rye.

It is made from the WHOLE berries of these grains, bringing to you every bit of their nut-like flavor.

Roman Meal also contains wheat-bran and flaxseed; and you know how splendid these are for relieving constipation. The flaxseed in Roman Meal is absolutely tasteless and odorless, rendered so by a special electrical process invented by Dr. Jackson.

Another important thing: Roman Meal is porous, because it is granulated, thus allowing the digestive juices to reach every particle and preventing indigestion. Stirring when cooking breaks up the granules, making a sticky mush instead of the delicious Roman Meal granular porridge.

Thousands of families all over America enjoy Roman Meal porridge every day—it is delicious. Doctors prescribe it for constipation and indigestion and all undertone conditions. You can bake with it: mix it with your white flour when baking, it helps white flour foods to digest and restores their lost balance. Ask your doctor about it.

A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Social Ladder

It Was Successfully Climbed by a Mother and Daughter.

By ETHEL HOLMES

A stagecoach lumbered up a zigzag road in the Rocky mountains. On the outside seat behind the driver sat a gentleman whose eminently respectable traveling suit and his clean cut features indicated that he was to the manner born. Beside him sat a young man in the costume of the country. His shirt was flannel; his hat was a sombrero.

On the next seat back sat a lady, the aristocratic gentleman's wife, and beside her a girl of nineteen, their daughter. The man in the sombrero was telling them about the mountains and its people and pointing out the more prominent peaks, to which the travelers listened with great interest.

The sun was hot, the pace was slow, and the two combined tended to make the driver drowsy. When the coach reached an eminence and started down an incline, instead of being wide awake to the dangers of mountain travel he was nodding. He not only failed to put on the brake, but dropped the reins. He was awakened by the shouts of the passengers behind him, who saw a terrible death staring them in the face. The horses, unchecked, started down the slope and were soon going at a breakneck pace.

The driver basely abandoned his post and, putting his foot on the iron step beside him, swung himself to the ground. The young man who had been pointing out objects of interest let himself down over the footboard on to the tongue, gathered up the reins, quickly remounted to the box, put on the brake and managed to reduce the pace sufficiently to enable the coach to turn a curve without going over a precipice. Then after a further short descent he brought the horses to a standstill. The first sensation that came to him after it was all over was feeling the arms of the aristocratic gentleman about his neck.

One day a couple of years after this episode Mrs. Murphy and her daughter, while bowling along Ocean avenue at Newport, received a terrible shock.

"Oh, heavens, mother, there's Barton Keith! Look the other way, quick!"

Miss Murphy, pretending to see something to which she desired to call her mother's attention, pointed in the opposite direction from the young man, the carriage rolled by, and the women began to discuss the situation.

"What in the world could have brought him here?" exclaimed the mother.

"I would as soon have expected to see a Mississippi pilot."

"Bart has been a stage driver."

"He'll tell everybody here all about our antecedents."

"He won't know any one to tell."

"It seems hard to cut him after that affair you had with him."

"There have been changes since then. At that time father was building his little branch railroad. He hadn't got on to the main line."

"Well, I don't think there's much danger, considering that he can't have any entree here. Heaven knows what a time we've had even to get in on the outer circle. How can Bart Keith with no money get in at all?"

"He may be prosperous. He's well enough dressed."

"Yes, he quite looked like one of the swells. I wonder why he's here?"

That night there was a grand function at one of the "cottages," and the next morning Mary Murphy ran to her mother with a newspaper in her hand and her eyes wide open.

"For land's sake, mother, listen to this: 'Among those present at Mrs. Atherton's last night was Mr. Barton Keith.'"

"You don't mean it!"

"How in the name of conscience do you suppose he got in there?"

"I can't imagine. I knew we couldn't get a bid."

"He must have a pull somewhere."

"Your father had a pull, but it didn't work. He offered Peter Jones a tip on the stock of our road if he'd get him an invitation to the Athertons'. But Pete said they were of the old New York blue blood and rich besides. These people who have both blood and money are the hardest of all to move."

"Oho! Here's the explanation!" and she read a social item:

"'Mr. Barton Keith is visting Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Forbes.'"

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" exclaimed the mother. "How in the world did he ever get in with them?"

There was a silence between the two, which Mary ended by saying:

"Mother, we've gone and done it!"

"So we have."

"We must find a way to take it back."

"So we must."

"But we're entirely ignorant of the key to the position."

"What do you mean by that?"

"We don't know what reason the Forbes have for taking in Bart."

"Do you suppose they know what he's been?"

"Of course they do. Bart couldn't keep it if he wished. That's the singular part of it. The Forbes have been prominent in New York and Newport society for a hundred years. But one thing I have noticed in these old families—they're more independent about whom they take up than any other people. I can't imagine those Perkinses, who made their money in fertilizing material, having anything to do with Bart Keith. You know how they snubbed us."

"Yes, indeed I do, and I'm waiting for the time to come when I can get even with them."

"But, mother, how are we to fix it up with Bart?"

"I don't know, Mame, unless you have the same power you used to have over him."

Mame cast a glance in a mirror. Art had done a great deal for her since she waited on the railroad men her mother fed in their days of poverty. Nothing that money could buy was now denied her. But she knew Bart Keith well. He had loved her in calico, and to love her in costly fabrics must incite an entirely new sensation. Besides, he was in the swim at Newport, where he would meet the finest costumes in America, to say nothing of the women they incased. To make matters worse, she had cut him.

"Mother," she said, "I believe I'll write him a line saying I've heard of his being in Newport and telling him we're here. That'll look as if we hadn't seen him on the avenue."

"Do you think he'd tumble to it?"

The girl pondered awhile, then admitted that she knew very well he wouldn't; their eyes had met and there had been a mutual recognition. She dared not write the note.

But one morning she received a note from Keith. He told her that, having heard she was at Newport, he had come on from the west to find her. But time had made great changes for both of them and he did not doubt she was following a course which seemed inviting to her in her new sphere. He shrank from parting with her without letting her know that he had kept the boyish promises made years ago. He refrained from mentioning the cut she had given him, but it was evident it was this that had turned him from her. He closed his epistle with the word "farewell," and she knew that he had passed beyond recall.

For a time the Murphys heard that Keith was being introduced under the wing of the Forbeses. Then they began to hear his name mentioned among the people and in the society notes independently of his introducers, and it was not long before they learned that which travels on the wings of the wind. Keith was rich. He had become interested in certain western speculations with Mr. Forbes, and the two had made money together. Then came a rumor that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes.

Up to this time the Murphys had merely wondered. Now they were astonished. And over Mary Murphy came a wave of regret. It was not for the loss of Barton Keith's wealth or position; it was for Keith himself. The prize they sought for and for which she had snubbed the lover of her young girlhood every day seemed farther from her grasp. Despite their millions the Murphys found it impossible to effect an entrance into Newport society. Mary had become accustomed to wealth, and it failed to satisfy her. She was hungry for the boyish love that had been hers in poverty, but she had thrown it away.

The report that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes proved true. When the engagement was formally announced the Murphys read in the society columns of a New York newspaper a story concerning the contracting parties that gave them the key to the situation. It told how Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and their daughter were traveling in the Rocky mountains, how a stage driver fell asleep, how a young man who had been formerly a handler of the ribbons saved the passengers from death, how Mr. Forbes had taken him up and enabled him to make a fortune. But the story did not tell the most important feature that had led to the union—a young girl seeing an act of cool bravery on the part of a young man.

The wedding of Barton Keith and Alice Forbes was not celebrated with that splendor usual to nuptials in the fashionable world. It was said that this was in deference to the wishes of the groom, who bore the reputation of being an extremely modest man. He devoted himself to business, his only recreation being driving four-in-hands, and this was supposed to be in memory of experiences of former days.

"Mother," said Mary Murphy one day, "I have a plan."

"What is it, Mame?"

"We can't break through the shell of this Newport egg. We must go elsewhere."

"Where shall we go?"

"To London."

"Good gracious, daughter! If we can't succeed here, how can we do so among the British nobility?"

"Others who have failed here have succeeded there. Leave it to me. Money, dear mother, is the power that opens doors wherever money is needful. These British nobles are getting poor. Our people are getting rich. Many here have always been rich, and some care nothing about becoming richer. In England commoners have been getting rich, while the nobles have been getting poor. Noblemen would prefer to marry an American to a commoner of their own country, there being no titles here. I shall go to London, marry a title and come back here for just long enough to snub those who have snubbed us."

Two years later Mary Murphy returned to Newport as the Countess of Munkennon. Her advent was heralded, and when she arrived invitations were piled on her table. Before looking for those she intended to accept she picked out those from certain people who had snubbed her as Miss Murphy and sent immediate "regrets."

Inheritance Tax Argument

Inheritance taxes are very heavy. Unlike Fire hazard they are not merely possible, they are absolutely certain.

They deplete your estate at once, and to your heirs represent a specific and definite loss of money.

In New York a $250,000 estate would pay a combined Federal and state tax of about $12,000. If left to a friend or distant relative, about $22,000. The John Jacob Astor estate paid $3,150,000. J. P. Morgan has insured his life for $2,500,000 to cover a similar loss.

Thus the estate is provided promptly with the ready cash to pay this tax and other expenses without the need of hurriedly disposing of securities or other assets, perhaps at a loss, to meet such needs. The logic of the situation urges immediate action. Premium rates, however low, advance with age and so does the possibility of entering the physically impaired group and losing the opportunity to secure this protection.

Knowing that this loss is actually coming, it is simply a matter of ordinary business prudence to guard against it. The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada offer you a plan to do so at very low cost.

Priceless Potash.

Plants cannot live without potash—that indispensable product which we once so largely imported from Germany, and which our chemists have now learned to make for themselves.

The potash in the soil comes from the granite rocks beneath it, for air and rain act upon the felspar and mica of granite and take potash from them, which dissolves in water and enters the soil as food for plants.

But the farmer rarely has sufficient potash in the soil of his land, and before the war our farmers obtained large quantities from Stassfurt in Germany. There was once a great inland sea or lake in this region which contained the potash compounds in solution, and when the water dried up the potash was left behind.

Potash is one of our essential mineral foods, too, and is contained in fresh meat and vegetables, the lack of which predisposes towards the disease of scurvy. In olden times, when these foods were rarely obtainable on long voyages the sailors suffered a great deal from this disease.

WIRING A TWELVE INCH GUN.

It Takes 117 Miles of Steel Tape to Make the Jacket.

According to the Milligate Monthly no fewer than 117 miles of steel wire are wound on a twelve inch gun that weighs thirteen and a half tons. In appearance this wire, which is of the same quality as piano wire, resembles tape. It is a quarter of an inch wide and a tenth of an inch thick. It is tested to a breaking strength of 110 tons. The wire unwinds from a reel as the gun barrel revolves, and a tension of about fifty tons to the square inch insures mechanical accuracy in wrapping it round the gun.

Various parts of the gun receive different thicknesses of wire. At the breech of a twelve inch gun, where the chief strain comes, there are ninety-two layers, which give a thickness of nine and a half inches of wire, but at the muzzle there are only fourteen layers. Over the wire the gunmakers shrink on steel rings at white heat. When they cool they contract and grip with immense force. The rifling of the barrel is an automatic process, an example of wonderful mechanical ingenuity. When the gun is finished experts test the accuracy of the rifling with plastic guttapercha.

WHEN TOMMY ATKINS PRAYS

British Psychologists Are Interested in This Subject.

Tommy Atkins prays in the hour of danger, we are told by two army chaplains who have issued a volume called "Papers from Picardy"; but that does not mean that he has grown any more religious than he was before. He has found out that praying helps him to carry through the business in hand, and that is his main thought. What he really is may tax the brains of the best psychologist. "There is no character which has at the same time so puzzled and amazed the world as that of the British soldier," say these writers, naming him "that strange mixed character, with its gaps and its unevennesses and its extraordinary lovableness." They speak of Tommy's prayers:

"It is not perhaps a very high type of prayer, it is purely individual, self-centered, and inspired by fear. At one time, especially during the early stages of the war, we heard a great deal about religious revival and a new turning to prayer. There is a story that during a lull in a heavy bombardment a man emerged from a dugout and shouted inquiries to a neighboring shelter: 'You all right in there, mate?' 'Yes, so far, but some of them b—— shells come close. What have you been doing while it was going on?' 'Well, as a matter of fact, we've all been saying our prayers.' 'So've we—we've been praying like hell.'"

The writers do not withhold their criticism of this religion of fear; but The London Daily Mail adds a sidelight by quoting a bit of verse from Lieutenant Mackintosh's "A Highland Regiment":

A God like a super-bishop in an apron and nice top-hat—
O God, you are God of battles. Forbid that we come to that!
God, you are God of soldiers, merry and rough and kind,
Give to your sons an earth and a heaven more to our mind;
Meat and drink for the body, laughter and song for the soul,
And fighting and clean, quick death to end and complete the whole.

Tolstoy also speaks in a passage in "Sebastopol" of a young soldier in an agony of terror at the bombardment who turns to prayer and at once recovers his courage and calm.

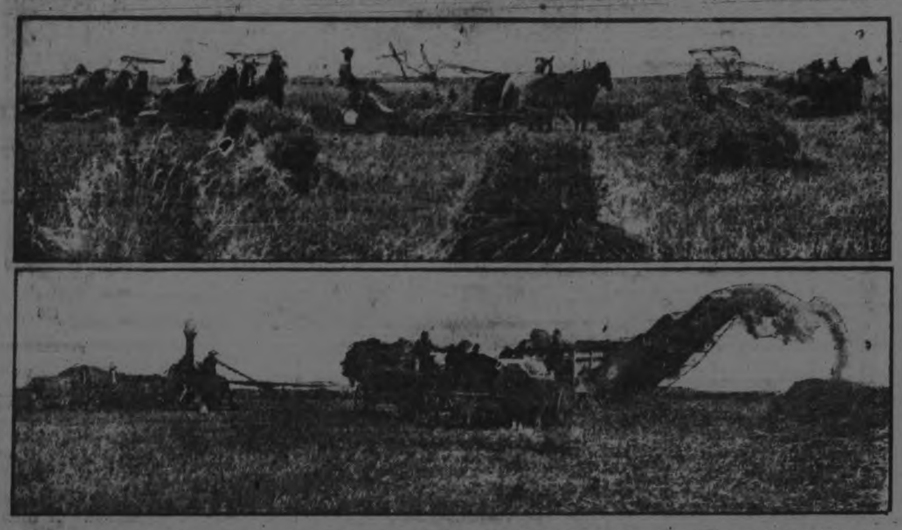
CANADA AND THE WORLD'S SUPPLY OF WHEAT



(1) Reaping wheat in Portage-la-Prairie Manitoba. (2) Threshing wheat in Portage-la-Prairie.

IT was with considerable satisfaction that readers in all Allied countries received the statement, made a short time ago by the Institute of Agriculture at Rome, that 1917 had seen an increase in the wheat crop of the principal countries of the world, outside of the Central Powers, of 3.3 per cent over 1916. These figures were based on returns from Spain, France, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, the United States, India, Japan and Algeria, which countries are this year estimated to show a total wheat production of 1,665,448,000 bushels. At the same time these same countries show an increase in their barley crop of 2.4 per cent; an increase in their rye crop of 10.7 per cent; an increase in their oat crop of 19.9 per cent, and an increase in their corn crop of 25.3 per cent. That such increases should be possible among nations, most of whom are engaged in war, is in itself a tribute to the productive energy of manhood.

The enormous total of 1,665,448,000 bushels of wheat is so great that it refuses to be grasped by the human mind without some units of comparison. If this crop of wheat were loaded into freight cars, 1,000 bushels to the car, and each car occupied forty feet of the railway track, it would represent one solid loaded train 12,617 miles in length—more than enough to reach half way around the world at the equator. These loaded cars, without engines, would [illegible] lights the entire trackage of the Canadian Pacific Railway, known as the world's greatest transportation company.

There is, however, another point of view, and a very appropriate one at this particular period, when the agricultural countries are called upon to produce the utmost pound of food. While the countries mentioned have done well their accomplishment shrinks into insignificance when compared with their possibilities. For instance, the three Canadian provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta could produce three times the total wheat crop above referred to! This statement may seem extravagant until submitted to the test of cold figures. Then we get data like this:

According to the Government of Canada there are in the provinces mentioned the following areas suitable for agricultural purposes:

Manitoba	74,216,000 acres
Saskatchewan ..	93,459,000 "
Alberta..	105,217,000 "

The average wheat crop in these provinces for the last ten years has been: Manitoba, 18.20 bushels per acre; Saskatchewan, 18.44 bushels per acre; Alberta, 20.19 bushels per acre. The average for the three provinces is therefore practically 19 bushels per acre. If you multiply the available acreage, as given above, by 19 you will find that these provinces, if entirely cultivated, are capable of producing in an average year 6,184,948,000 bushels of wheat—considerably more than three times the total which is being produced this year, 1917, by Spain, France, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, United States, India, Japan and Algeria combined. The single province of Alberta can produce as much wheat as all of these countries and have more left over than was grown in 1917 in all Canada.

Of course, it is impossible, as a practicable manner, to put every arable acre of land in any country in wheat, but if we say for the sake of illustration that one-third of the arable land in these provinces is summer-fallowed, one-third sown to coarse grains or pasture, and one-third to wheat, the proportion that is sown to wheat will produce a greater crop than that already mentioned as being grown by all the countries before referred to.

These figures may be interesting generally for the great comparison which they afford, but they must also carry the conclusion that the world is a very long way from having exhausted its food producing possibilities. Any scarcity of food production which may at present exist is traceable almost entirely to an improper distribution of population. In the older countries population is compelled to exist on such limited areas that production on a relatively large scale is impossible, whereas in the newer countries such as Western Canada the population is as yet totally insufficient to bring the country under cultivation. These are conditions which will doubtless right themselves; in fact, the process of correction is going on very rapidly, and, whatever difficulties may be experienced in feeding the world during the next few years, there can be no question that they will be solved as soon as sufficient population is found for the great open plains which are still awaiting the husbandman.

Lava Is Slow to Cool.

Peasants on the slopes of Mount Aetna can still boil water over the lava that flowed from the volcano during the eruption of 1910. Lava, according to Walter Woodburn Hyde of the University of Pennsylvania, writing in the Geographical Review, often reaches a temperature of 2,000 degrees F.

Even the ancient poets recorded the tenacity with which lava retains its heat, and Borelli, describing the great eruption of 1669, says the lava took eight years to cool. It is related that steam was still rising in 1830 from lava ejected in 1787. And this is not astonishing when we remember that the stream of molten lava which reached the sea at Catania on that occasion was at least 600 yards in breadth, forty feet deep and contained 3,532,000,000 cubic feet. It banked up against the walls of Catania, which were sixty feet high, until it flowed over the top and destroyed a large part of the city. The huge promontory that acts like a breakwater to the harbor is the remains of that stream of lava that flowed into the sea.

A Sincere Compliment.

I remember as a boy hearing the late Rev. Sam P. Jones tell my father of what he considered to be the most sincere compliment he ever received, says a writer in the Dallas Pitchfork. "I was holding a meeting in the city of Louisville," Rev. Sam Jones related, "and spending the nights with an old Methodist colonel who owned a fine country home. During my first evening at the colonel's home the old colored yard man was instructed to bring out one of the colonel's finest saddle horses for my review. The aged negro did as he was instructed and led before me a magnificent animal. The horse was a deep bay stallion, and he walked with high, swaggering steps. I said to the old negro, 'What makes him step so proudly?' And he answered without hesitation: 'Dat hoss has got sense, Brudder Jones. He knows who's lookin' at 'im.'"

Sam Jones said that was the sincerest compliment he ever received.

Monster Haystacks.

On the first approach to a Roumanian village one is startled by the largest haystack that the American will probably ever have seen. Rod upon rod this monster stretches upon the horizon. The explanation is a simple one. Hay is one of the largest articles of production in Roumania. Landed proprietors and peasants, one and all, raise it and depend upon it for their support. When, however, a peasant feels grievances intolerable, it is a matter of no great difficulty to set the proprietor's hay afire—and no peasant in the district would think of assisting in the detection of the incendiary. So the law permits the proprietor to force all the peasants in the district to place their hay with his, a record of the weight of each man's contribution being kept by both sides. In the event of fire—and it now behooves both sides to guard against all this—all contributors suffer in proportion.

Much Food in Small Bulk.

The British soldier when fresh bread is not available is supplied with what he calls "dog biscuit." It looks like just that, being a thick cracker four inches square and weighing three ounces. Of whole wheat flour pressed solid, it might be described as a condensed loaf of bread.

The French have a "war bread" somewhat similar, which when put into hot water or soup swells up like a sponge.

The famous German "pea sausage" is composed of pea meal, bacon and fat. It was the invention of a Berlin cook, who discovered a process whereby pea meal could be made proof against deterioration. One sausage eight inches long yields twelve plates of nutritious soup.

Spikenard.

Spikenard, or nard, mentioned by St. John xii, 3, and St. Mark xiv, 3, was a highly aromatic plant growing largely in the Indies. From this plant was made the valuable extract or unguent or favorite perfume used at ancient baths and feasts.

RUSSIAN CITY OF PSKOV

Has Been a Trading Post for a Thousand Years.

Pskov, the half-way city between Riga and Petrograd, and a strategic point of prime importance, is the capital of a province of the same name, and one of the most ancient cities of the Russian Empire. Pskov has a population of 36,000, and lies directly in the path of a German land advance upon Petrograd from Riga.

Pskov is situated on both banks of the rivers Velikaya and Pskova, at their confluence. It is divided into four quarters, the oldest and most important being the Kremlin, surrounded by white limestone walls in a fair state of preservation in spite of the fact that they have been standing for more than eight centuries.

Petrograd lies to the north-east of Pskov, a distance of 171 miles by rail, and Riga is almost the same distance to the south-west. The town lies nine miles south of Lake Pskov, into which the Velikaya flows.

For more than a thousand years Pskov has been a trading post for merchants of Southern Europe seeking an outlet to the Baltic by way of the natural channel of the Velikaya. As early as 992 the town was united with its sister trading center of Novgorod, 125 miles to the north-east, to form a bishopric, after which both places grew rapidly in importance and wealth.

During the Mongolian invasion of Russia, Pskov succeeded in establishing its complete independence of Novgorod, setting up a republic of its own, a government which differed somewhat from that of its rival in that Novgorod was dominated by a plutocratic merchant class, whereas in Pskov the poorer elements of the population usually maintained themselves in power.

The princes of Moscow early in the sixteenth century succeeded in depriving Pskov of its independence, and from that time its rulers were subject to the overlords of the great Russian metropolis.

Pskov owed its salvation in 1570 to a patriotic monk, Nicholas Salos, who, by feigning madness, dissuaded the ruthless Ivan the Terrible from his determination to destroy the city because it had been suspected of treason to that monarch's cause. Eleven years later the citizens resisted the besieging army of Poland's king, Stephen Bathory, for seven months. It was also besieged at one time by Gustavus Adolphus.

Inside the walls of the Kremlin is the famous old Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, founded in 1138. The present structure dates from 1691-99. Here are buried the princes of Pskov, among them the courageous Prince Dovmont, under whose leadership the Teutonic Knights were defeated in the thirteenth century, and during whose regime the city's first walls were built, enabling the citizens of Pskov to make good their claim of independence from Novgorod.

For many years during the middle ages Pskov was an important member of the Hanseatic League, and a German factory was established here on the left bank of the Velikaya. The Germans, however, were not especially popular in Pskov even in that day, for they were not permitted to cross the bridge of boats from the factory into the main portion of the town, which at its zenith had a population of 60,000.

Pskov is an important station for trade between Riga and Novgorod. Its exports include flax, corn, honey, tallow, skins, tar, and timber, while its imports consist chiefly of woolens and manufactured goods. It has a regular steamer service with Dorpat, on the Embach River, a tributary of Lake Peipus.

Unbelievable America.

In the chapter of Hugo Munsterberg's unfinished autobiography, published in the Century under the title, "Twenty-five Years In America," the Harvard professor tells some of the amusing misconceptions of America current in Germany a quarter of a century ago.

"The one, however, who brought me nearest to America was the historian Holst," wrote Professor Munsterberg. "In the lecture room his real life work was silenced. Who would care to study American history? But in the drawing room he did not talk of anything else; America and America again. Sometimes we had to listen to American stories through whole dinner parties. I do remember that at my first Freiburg party he reached his climax when he told the fascinated company that he had been in a hotel in New York where his room had a private bathroom in which he could have a hot bath at any hour of the night. The lady next to me relieved the dramatic tension by whispering, 'I do not believe it.' Well, no one believed much of what he heard concerning America."

Butter From Bird Fat.

A queer sort of butter is obtained in Trinidad, where cows and cream are scarce. This butter is the boiled down fat of a bird called the guacharo. This bird lives in the darkest caves and seldom is seen in the daylight. The young birds are extremely plump, and from them is obtained the rich fat. The birds are taken from their nests when two or three weeks old. After they are killed they are put on to boil, not in water, but in their own fat. The natives experience some difficulty in getting at the nests of the guacharo, for they must creep through caves and wade through stagnant pools to reach their prey. The full grown guacharo is so timid that no one ever has been able to photograph a living specimen.

Odd Marriage Ceremony.

Polynesia is probably the only place in the world where the marriage feast takes place without the presence of the bridegroom. For some unexplained reason the young man is "sent into the bush" when negotiations are opened with the family of his bride, and he remains there during the subsequent festivities. It is only when the guests have departed and the girl is left alone with his parents that messengers are dispatched for him.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES
Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache; and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

Italians Withdraw From The Tagliamento

CANADIANS WREST VITAL DEFENCES FROM ENEMY

"Operations Were Undertaken by the Canadian Troops With Complete Success Against the Enemy's Defences in and Around Passchendaele" is Field Marshal Haig's Official Report ---Italians Withdraw From the Tagliamento River Line.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, November 6.—The town of Passchendaele, lying northeast of Ypres, has been captured by the British forces, according to the official communication issued to-night. It reads:

"Operations were undertaken this morning by the Canadian troops with complete success against the enemy's defences in and around Passchendaele and on the spur north-northwest of the village.

"The assembly of our troops for the attack was carried out successfully. At 6 a.m. the assault was launched as arranged.

"The enemy had been ordered to hold this important position on the main ridge at all costs. Hard fighting took place at a number of points, particularly on the high ground north of the village and for a collection of fortified buildings and strong points on Goeberg Spur. None the less, our troops made steady progress, and at an early hour the village of Passchendaele was captured, together with the hamlets of Mosselmarkt and Goeberg. Before midday all our objectives had been gained and a number of prisoners taken.

"During the day the weather was unsettled. The rain, which fell at intervals, improved the visibility, however, and assisted the work of our artillery and aircraft, and, combined with valuable observation gained by our advance, has enabled our guns to deal effectively with the enemy's batteries and with concentrations of hostile infantry."

WAS COMPLETE TRIUMPH.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, Nov. 6.—In another great advance along their whole front the Canadians have taken Passchendaele, Goudberg, and Mosselmarkt. No more signal triumph has been won in the whole history of the Canadian corps. Our divisions will have more than settled the old score of St. Julien. Dominating Roulers and Roulers Plain, Passchendaele gives the allied forces a firm footing on the series of great spurs extending from Gheluvelt on the south, including Bellevue Spur, and Passchendaele Ridge, running northeast for miles.

Knowing too well the vital necessity of maintaining the Passchendaele position secure, Hindenburg, after the successful Canadian advances on Bellevue Spur, and the capture of Crest Farm and Meetcheele, issued a special army order commanding that Passchendaele should be held at all costs, and if lost must be retaken. For days the enemy had been rushing up guns and new formations of troops to ensure his hold on the position. His efforts proved unavailing. The best troops the enemy has gives ground before our forces, who have moved steadily towards their objective since the beginning of the Passchendaele operations, October 25.

NUMEROUS POSITIONS TAKEN.

At six o'clock this morning our guns opened a tremendous barrage fire, and two minutes later men from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Western and Eastern Ontario were out of their shell-holes and temporary mud-wall trenches in an advance which by 7:30 had carried them beyond their objectives. It was an artillery and machine-gun battle. For a hour and a half our guns were never silent. Protected by a splendid barrage our infantry moved slowly forward while our counter-batteries dominated the enemy's guns, and swept his assembled artillery positions with their fire. Our forces on the right, plunging towards Passchendaele, have advanced well beyond the ruined village, overcoming the fortified enemy shell-holes and concrete strong points in advance, and capturing numerous machine-gun positions which threatened our attack from the Passchendaele-Zonnebeke road to the village itself, where the enemy, from cellars, and machine-gun positions in the ruins, fought to break down our attack. To the left our infantry met with desperate opposition seventy-five yards in front of Meetcheele, where the enemy stronghold formed the key to their whole left position, as Meetcheele did to ours.

Mosselmarkt was the scene of another determined resistance.

No Party Conventions in Western Provinces Reports Hon. J. A. Calder —Conditions Seem Different From Those in Ontario

SAYS UNIONS STRONG

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—"From present indications I would say that not more than twelve anti-Unionists will be elected in the four Western provinces at the coming election," said Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, who arrived in Ottawa this morning. "Remember nobody knows what will happen between now and nomination day; I am simply speaking from present indications. So far as Union is concerned, things will be completely straightened away in the next few days. Party spirit naturally dies hard, but sentiment for union is very strong in the West. Anti-Unionists are devoid of effective organization in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and have yet very few candidates in the field. I am not very conversant with the Alberta situation, and I only spent a few days in British Columbia. In the latter province Unionist candidates are being placed in the field everywhere. Conventions in the West are all purely Unionist and not party conventions.

"We have established Unionist offices at Vancouver, Regina, and Winnipeg, and the organization is proceeding apace."

In his own riding of Moosejaw Mr. Calder does not anticipate any opposition unless a Labour candidate runs. He did not believe the rumour that W. F. Knowles would run against him, though he admitted there was a possibility he might run elsewhere.

Altogether, Mr. Calder concluded the situation from the Union viewpoint in the West is most satisfactory.

Mass Meeting Of Liberals On Sat. To Decide On Action

The executive of the West Peterborough Liberal Association at a meeting in the Empress Hotel last night decided that since no Unionist candidate has been nominated in this riding, the Liberals be consulted upon the issues before the people to-day. For that purpose a convention will be held in Victoria Hall on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This convention will be a mass meeting of the Liberals of West Peterborough, and not of district delegates. Hence all Liberals are invited.

ROULERS IS BOMBARDED

Key to German Line of Communications to Submarine Bases Under Fire From British Guns as Result of Canadian Victory

SHELLING UNCEASING

(By William Philip Simms.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 7.—British artillery to-day was bombarding Roulers, the key to the German line of communications to the coastal submarine bases. The capture of Passchendaele in yesterday's great push brought the British lines to within five miles of the railway centre. Behind the lines British heavy guns immediately began their pulverizing of Roulers. The bombardment was unceasing to-day. The capture of Passchendaele and the neighbouring villages puts the British on the very top of Passchendaele Ridge, and with only a small remaining bit of high land still in the enemy's hands. He was clinging desperately to this today. High American army officers saw the British go over the top in their victorious assault.

The Canadians held tight to the British victory at Passhendaele today. They stood their ground all through the night, hanging to the entire village in the face of heavy artillerying. The Germans had orders direct from Hindenburg that the ridge positions must be immediately retaken. The enemy massed tremendous forces for those attacks several times —but on every occasion the British observers caught a hint of the menace and the British guns promptly put down such a fearful barrage around the regained land that the enemy was checked in his tracks.

WAR VETERANS WANT THE CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND TAKEN OVER BY GOVERNMENT

Resolution to This Effect is Passed by Peterboro' Branch of the G. W. V. A. Who Also Call for the Resignation of Mr. Walter Stocker From the Executive Committee of Local Branch of the Fund

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

Moved by Comrade R. H. Muir, seconded by Comrade Edward Bird, that the following resolution be sent to Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada:

Resolved, that we the members of the Peterborough Branch of the G. W.V.A. of Canada, do hereby consider that the administration of the Canadian Patriotic Fund should be taken over by the Federal Government and the allowance increased, and the money required to carry on the Fund raised by taxation.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association held in the Barrie Building last night, and followed a discussion of considerable length over the question of the Patriotic Fund and its administration. The Veterans are of the opinion that the whole matter of the caring for the dependents of the men on overseas service should be in the hands of the government and their feelings are adequately expressed in the resolution adopted. Similar action has been taken by other branches of the G.W.V.A. throughout Canada.

After Mr. Stocker.

At last night's meeting a resolution was also passed by the Veterans calling for the resignation of Mr. Walter Stocker from the committee of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Patrictic Fund. The complaint was made that Mr. Stocker had been unsympathetic towards returned soldiers, and it was reported that he had denounced them as a "bunch of fakers." In view of these complaints the members of the G.W.V.A. felt that they were justified in considering that he should not be a member of the Patriotic Fund Committee.

Members Appointed.

A letter was read from the Patriotic Fund committee notifying the G. W.V.A. that at a recent meeting of the Fund two members of the Veterans had been elected as members of the Relief or Distribution committee of the Fund and asking the Veterans to choose two who would be suitable for the position.

On motion it was decided to appoint Comrades Sidney Whatley and Geo. Toone as members of the Patriotic Fund committee. They have been representing the Veterans at the Fund meetings for some time, but up to the present have not been entitled to vote.

Italians Withdraw From The Tagliamento

CANADIANS WREST VITAL DEFENCES FROM ENEMY

"Operations Were Undertaken by the Canadian Troops With Complete Success Against the Enemy's Defences in and Around Passchendaele" is Field Marshal Haig's Official Report ---Italians Withdraw From the Tagliamento River Line.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, November 6.—The town of Passchendaele, lying northeast of Ypres, has been captured by the British forces, according to the official communication issued to-night. It reads:

"Operations were undertaken this morning by the Canadian troops with complete success against the enemy's defences in and around Passchendaele and on the spur north-northwest of the village.

"The assembly of our troops for the attack was carried out successfully. At 6 a.m. the assault was launched as arranged.

"The enemy had been ordered to hold this important position on the main ridge at all costs. Hard fighting took place at a number of points, particularly on the high ground north of the village and for a collection of fortified buildings and strong points on Goeberg Spur. None the less our troops made steady progress, and at an early hour the village of Passchendaele was captured, together with the hamlets of Mosselmarkt and Goeberg. Before midday all our objectives had been gained and a number of prisoners taken.

"During the day the weather was unsettled. The rain, which fell at intervals, improved the visibility, however, and assisted the work of our artillery and aircraft, and, combined with valuable observation gained by our advance, has enabled our guns to deal effectively with the enemy's batteries and with concentrations of hostile infantry."

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, Nov. 6.—In another great advance along their whole front the Canadians have taken Passchendaele, Goudberg, and Mosselmarkt. Italians Withdraw From The Tagliamento

CANADIANS CONSOLIDATE THEIR GAINS

CANADIANS WREST VITAL DEFENCES FROM ENEMY

"Operations Were Undertaken by the Canadian Troops With Complete Success Against the Enemy's Defences in and Around Passchendaele" is Field Marshal Haig's Official Report ---Italians Withdraw From the Tagliamento River Line.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, November 6.—The town of Passchendaele, lying northeast of Ypres, has been captured by the British forces, according to the official communication issued to-night. It reads:

"Operations were undertaken this morning by the Canadian troops with complete success against the enemy's defences in and around Passchendaele and on the spur north-northwest of the village.

"The assembly of our troops for the attack was carried out successfully. At 6 a.m. the assault was launched as arranged.

"The enemy had been ordered to hold this important position on the main ridge at all costs. Hard fighting took place at a number of points, particularly on the high ground north of the village and for a collection of fortified buildings and strong points on Goeberg Spur. None the less, our troops made steady progress, and at an early hour the village of Passchendaele was captured, together with the hamlets of Mosselmarkt and Goeberg. Before midday all our objectives had been gained and a number of prisoners taken.

"During the day the weather was unsettled. The rain, which fell at intervals, improved the visibility, however, and assisted the work of our artillery and aircraft, and, combined with valuable observation gained by our advance, has enabled our guns to deal effectively with the enemy's batteries and with concentrations of hostile infantry."

WAS COMPLETE TRIUMPH.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, Nov. 6.—In another great advance along their whole front the Canadians have taken Passchendaele, Goudberg, and Mosselmarkt. No more signal triumph has been won in the whole history of the Canadian corps. Our divisions will have more than settled the old score of St. Julien. Dominating Roulers and Roulers Plain, Passchendaele gives the allied forces a firm footing on the series of great spurs extending from Gheluvelt on the south, including Bellevue Spur, and Passchendaele Ridge, running northeast for miles.

Knowing too well the vital necessity of maintaining the Passchendaele position secure, Hindenburg, after the successful Canadian advances on Bellevue Spur, and the capture of Crest Farm and Meetcheele, issued a special army order commanding that Passchendaele should be held at all costs, and if lost must be retaken. For days the enemy had been rushing up guns and new formations of troops to ensure his hold on the position. His efforts proved unavailing. The best troops the enemy has given ground before our forces, who have moved steadily towards their objective since the beginning of the Passchendaele operations, October 25.

NUMEROUS POSITIONS TAKEN.

At six o'clock this morning our guns opened a tremendous barrage fire, and two minutes later men from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Western and Eastern Ontario were out of their shell-holes and temporary mud-wall trenches in an advance which by 7:30 had carried them beyond their objectives. It was an artillery and machine-gun battle. For a hour and a half our guns were never silent. Protected by a splendid barrage our infantry moved slowly forward while our counter-batteries dominated the enemy's guns, and swept his assembled artillery positions with their fire. Our forces on the right, plunging towards Passchendaele, have advanced well beyond the ruined village, overcoming the fortified enemy shell-holes and concrete strong points in advance, and capturing numerous machine-gun positions which threatened our attack from the Passchendaele-Zonnebeke road to the village itself, where the enemy, from cellars, and machine-gun positions in the ruins, fought to break down our attack. To the left our infantry met with desperate opposition seventy-five yards in front of Meetcheele, where the enemy stronghold formed the key to their whole left position, as Meetcheele did to ours.

Mosselmarkt was the scene of another determined resistance.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, November 7.—The Germans lost many men last night in vain attacks on the Verdun front at Chaume Wood, also near St. Quentin and northwest of Rheims. The artillery was active in all points.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, November 7.—The Italians have withdrawn in good order from the Tagliamento River toward the Livenza, it is announced officially.

SAYS UNIONS STRONG

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—"From present indications I would say that not more than twelve anti-Unionists will be elected in the four Western provinces at the coming election," said Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, who arrived in Ottawa this morning. "Remember nobody knows what will happen between now and nomination day; I am simply speaking from present indications. So far as Union is concerned, things will be completely straightened away in the next few days. Party spirit naturally dies hard, but sentiment for union is very strong in the West. Anti-Unionists are devoid of effective organization in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and have yet very few candidates in the field. I am not very conversant with the Alberta situation, and I only spent a few days in British Columbia. In the latter province Unionist candidates are being placed in the field everywhere. Conventions in the West are all purely Unionist and not party conventions.

"We have established Unionist offices at Vancouver, Regina, and Winnipeg, and the organization is proceeding apace."

In his own riding of Moosejaw Mr. Calder does not anticipate any opposition unless a Labour candidate runs. He did not believe the rumour that W. F. Knowles would run against him, though he admitted there was a possibility he might run elsewhere.

Altogether, Mr. Calder concluded the situation from the Union viewpoint in the West is most satisfactory.

Mass Meeting Of Liberals On Sat. To Decide On Action

The executive of the West Peterborough Liberal Association at a meeting in the Empress Hotel last night decided that since no Unionist candidate has been nominated in this riding, the Liberals be consulted upon the issues before the people to-day. For that purpose a convention will be held in Victoria Hall on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This convention will be a mass meeting of the Liberals of West Peterborough, and not of district delegates. Hence all Liberals are invited.

ROULERS IS BOMBARDED

Key to German Line of Communications to Submarine Bases Under Fire From British Guns as Result of Canadian Victory

SHELLING UNCEASING

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 7.—British artillery to-day was bombarding Roulers, the key to the German line of communications to the coastal submarine bases. The capture of Passchendaele in yesterday's great push brought the British lines to within five miles of the railway centre. Behind the lines British heavy guns immediately began their pulverizing of Roulers. The bombardment was unceasing to-day. The capture of Passchendaele and the neighbouring villages puts the British on the very top of Passchendaele Ridge, and with only a small remaining bit of high land still in the enemy's hands. He was clinging desperately to this to-day. High American army officers saw the British go over the top in their victorious asault.

The Canadians held tight to the British victory at Passhendaele to-day. They stood their ground all through the night, hanging to the entire village in the face of heavy artillerying. The Germans had orders direct from Hindenburg that the ridge positions must be immediately retaken. The enemy massed tremendous forces for those attacks several times —but on every occasion the British observers caught a hint of the menace and the British guns promptly put down such a fearful barrage around the regained land that the enemy was checked in his tracks.

CHEERFUL WORKERS ENTERTAINED

The Cheerful Workers Bible Class of St. James' Methodist Church were entertained at a banquet given on Monday night in the basement of the church by the Social Committee of the class. Short speeches were given by Rev. B. Greatrix, Mrs. Welborne, Mrs. Barnes, and Miss Barrie.

An interesting event of the evening was the presentation of a signet ring to Miss Annie Barrie, president of the class, who had sent in her resignation, having held that office for the past six years. An address was read by Mrs. Charles Hill, and the presentation was made by Miss Henthorne.

Machinists' Smoker Was Well Attended

A large attendance and a good programme marked the first smoker held last night by the Machinists' Union of this city. The auditorium of the Labour Hall was hazy with cigar smoke early in the evening, and everybody had a good time. It is the intention of the Machinists to hold a series of concerts and social evenings, and with their curtain raiser they scored an encouraging success. Mr. Fred. Collins was chairman. The numbers were as follows:

Vocal solo—John Cairns.
Comic song—Chas. Coleman.
Step dance—Jas. Murty.
Vocal solo—Hatty Murduff.
Vocal solo—Ed. Bartley.
Recitation—Wm. Thompson.

There were other entertaining features that carried the concert through to a pleasant close.

WAR VETERANS WANT THE CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND TAKEN OVER BY GOVERNMENT

Resolution to This Effect is Passed by Peterboro' Branch of the G. W. V. A. Who Also Call for the Resignation of Mr. Walter Stocker From the Executive Committee of Local Branch of the Fund

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

Moved by Comrade R. H. Muir, seconded by Comrade Edward Bird, that the following resolution be sent to Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada:

Resolved, that we the members of the Peterborough Branch of the G. W.V.A. of Canada, do hereby consider that the administration of the Canadian Patriotic Fund should be taken over by the Federal Government and the allowance increased, and the money required to carry on the Fund raised by taxation.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association held in the Barrie Building last night, and followed a discussion of considerable length over the question of the Patriotic Fund and its administration. The Veterans are of the opinion that the whole matter of the caring for the dependents of the men on overseas service should be in the hands of the government and their feelings are adequately expressed in the resolution adopted. Similar action has been taken by other branches of the G.W.V.A. throughout Canada.

After Mr. Stocker.

At last night's meeting a resolution was also passed by the Veterans calling for the resignation of Mr. Walter Stocker from the committee of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The complaint was made that Mr. Stocker had been unsympathetic towards returned soldiers, and it was reported that he had denounced them as a "bunch of fakers." In view of these complaints the members of the G.W.V.A. felt that they were justified in considering that he should not be a member of the Patriotic Fund Committee.

Members Appointed.

A letter was read from the Patriotic Fund committee notifying the G. W.V.A. that at a recent meeting of the Fund two members of the Veterans had been elected as members of the Relief or Distribution committee of the Fund and asking the Veterans to choose two who would be suitable for the position.

On motion it was decided to appoint Comrades Sidney Whatley and Geo. Toone as members of the Patriotic Fund committee. They have been representing the Veterans at the Fund meetings for some time, but up to the present have not been entitled to vote.

A complaint was made that information in regard to returned men's pensions, medical history sheets and oth-

LATE BUT RIGHT.

Has anybody noticed the necessity of a new Government, a Government with the capacity of doing things, a Government that leads and is not driven? Has anybody noticed how long it has taken to do the obviously right thing? We had no food control nor fuel control, nor any attempt at them till the people rebelled and unpleasant consequences threatened to disturb the peace of government inaction or laissez-faire.

We had frantic Government appeals to the people to save food for export while the Government was permitting millions of bushels of grain to be wasted in distilling or brewing. Now, in the fortieth month of the war, we have, thanks no doubt to a new Government with some red blood in it, an Order-in-Council passed declaring that after November 20th, no substance that can be used for food shall be used for the distillation of potable, that is "swiggable," liquor. Last August Food Controller Hanna forbad the use of wheat in distillation, but as there was virtually no wheat used for that purpose, this action was a mere feint.

How much food stuff would have been saved by earlier action, say, when the Ontario Temperance Act wa passed, can be estimated from the fact in the last fiscal year, according to the returns of the Inland Revenue Department, 139 million pounds or about three and a quarter million bushels of food grains were used in one year in distilleries, not to mention the use of about thirty million pounds of molasses—another form of sugar.

Ontario's loss of revenue by refusing to license strong drink has been more than made up by the increased license revenue from automobiles—which, it is expected this year, will reach $900,000.

FULL STEAM AHEAD.

The universal sentiment in Canada, amongst all classes, is full steam ahead in the matter of the country helping win the war. We are all anxious to help and we must be guided by those who know, in giving our help to the most needed and effective reform.

Our patriotism makes a general call upon us, but the British government has laid particular emphasis on one form of help—the only form specially invited. Too many of us, people perhaps obsessed with one idea, as well as government, ignore the fact that the most pressing need of Great Britain and our allies is food. We have been asked for that and we must, or should, respond. Of course the demand for food involves greater production, and there the difficulty comes. We all know that the farms of this country are inadequately manned, and that though the farms are there, ready to produce, the shortage of help prevents making adequate use of them. We all know the struggle we had last year in putting in and harvesting the crops, on account of the scarcity of help.

And the prospect is for a still greater struggle next year. The scarcity of help remains. It is stated by farmers and observed by those who pass through the country that in no autumn in the past has there been so little plowing done in this district, and probably the same applies generally in the province. This does not promise increased crop acreage nor early seeding next spring; both elements in an increased yield, and no increased ability for meeting the most urgent, and specifically indicated need of Britain and the allies for more foodstuffs.

We evidently must do something to correct these conditions, if we are to give the most needed help, according to the Home authorities. This is a problem that the farmers themselves and the people, without organization and assistance, cannot solve. The government of the country is naturally indicated as the agency that must grapple with this question. Here is where the new Minister of Agriculture in the Union government has a chance to win his spurs. He can incite his colleagues to give attention to the problem of stimulating production in Ontario by providing more help on the farms—if in no other way—in the form of either machinery, tractor ploughs, etc.—or men, or both.

Being a western man, familiar with western conditions, Mr. Crerar is well fitted to initiate energetic action to increase crop production. While the settled areas of the west might be helped to greater production, it seems possible for the government to undertake farming on its own account. There are millions of acres of good land, now unused, within easy reach of the three transcontinental railways. If the government could, or would undertake a big scheme of production, the addition to the wheat yield would be so gerat that Canada could meet the demand of the Mother Country for 250 million bushels of wheat for herself and allies.

The government is instructing women how to mark ballots without "defacing" them. What about the inevitable postscripts?

THE NEW GOVERNMENT'S FUNCTIONS.

We already see signs of, and dangers of, friction in the Union cabinet, and some newspapers are lecturing Hon. Mr. Mewburn, Minister of Militia, and Hon. Mr. Carvell, Minister of Public Works. In Hamilton these gentlemen "spoke out in meeting." The War Minister said that on taking office, conditions in his department were in "a deplorable and delicate state." This fact does not surprise many of us, who have a good deal more than suspected that inefficiency had honeycombed the late government's war administration.

The Minister of Public Works declared war against "grafters" and denounced the patronage system which, as applied by the late government, made Canada to stink in the nostrils of honest men.

The Ottawa Journal Press, deprecates this frankness. "It is a poor service to union." The plain-spoken ministers are told that they must be careful; that is is bad form to criticise their "colleagues." Did they criticise their "colleagues?" No; in entering or staying in the Union government, ministers, if the union is a real union, shed their party skins and as they perhaps hoped, their party sins; and to all intents and purposes are not the men who gained so bad a record by their administration that they had to be made over and the government of which they were members had to be replaced with a "win-the-war" government.

The Journal Press ingenuously says that "partizanship," the bane of a Union government, "cannot be destroyed, as patriotism decrees that it should be, unless we are disposed to forget what has gone before." That, then, is the raison d'etre of the Union government, wiping out old scores, clearing the slate. This is held as an objection or weakness in the Union government by many stupidly prejudiced persons.

If the Union government was justified in coming into being—it was not intended as a ticket-of-leave expedient in the interests of the late government. It was not to do anything else than help Canada win the war by creating new conditions—involving a new government with new ideals, and appealing to a new national sense of relation and responsibility. It did not contemplate whitewashing the old government or relieving it from the action of the everlasting law of retribution for wrong-doing.

The Union government will not be true to its object, to its purpose, if it does not work a revolution in our national administration, if it does not institute and carry out needed reforms and correct, and even expose, the abuses that flourished under the late government; and in fine does not stand for all that Canada, in the way of right dealing and high principle of action is fighting for and for which, if it does, it will commission the Union government.

Local Tribunals Will Commence Work To-Morrow

Immediate Dealing With Claims.

"As the Act forbids more than one application for exemption by or at the instance of any man, tribunals will satisfy themselves that applicants, who appear on these days in person to make application have not already done so, either through the Post Office or before another tribunal.

"Where, in the case of applications made in person, the tribunal has satisfied itself that the applicant has made no previous application, it will first obtain from the applicant the information called for on the form of claim for exemption. The applicant may be asked to sign the form, but it is quite unimportant whether it is signed or not, it should, however, be dated and initialed by both members of the tribunal."

The memorandum declares that if the number of personal applications is few, the claims can be dealt with immediately. If the number is large, however, it may be necessary for tribunals to confine themselves on November 8, 9, and 10, to receiving claims and obtaining the necessary particulars. Actual disposition of the claims would be postponed until cases assigned by the registrar have been disposed of.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that the tribunals are judicial bodies and that any attempt to use undue influence imposes liability to a heavy penalty.

Local Registrations.

Up to noon to-day 617 claims for exemption had been made at the local postoffice, while twenty-nine men had reported for service, making a total up to that time of 646.

SOLDIERS' VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Session of the Local District Training Board to Be Held on Nov. 14th

Returned men who wish to take advantage of the facilities afforded by the Vocational Training Courses instituted by the Board, under the Military Hospitals Commission, will be glad to learn that on Wednesday, November 14th, the District Vocational Officer, Major Good, of Kingston, accompanied by Captain Randall, will be in Peterborough to confer with men desirous of taking up training.

It is not intended that men will be assisted to change an occupation if they are at all fitted physically, to go back to it. But to endeavour to afford opportunity and instruction to any who from physical unfitness are now obliged to look to some other trade or occupation to afford employment.

The very best possible results are coming out from the efforts of the Vocationala Board, and many men to whom the future seemed to offer very little chance for employment have been placed in a position to go on with work profitably.

The officer will arrive in the city on the evening of the 13th, and can be consulted by any who may be engaged in the day time. Make appointments, in advance, with the local member of the Board, F. H. Dobbin, at the Patriotic Fund Room, and the case will have every attention.

It will be well to communicate wishes in writing, and as early as possible. These statements will be forwarded to the Kingston Office, for early consideration, and then on personal interview, the matter can be closed up.

In the meantime register your wishes at the office, as above.

Advanced Prices of Milk Have Thrust It Into the War's Discard.

Milk is now ten cents a glass at the Boston Cafe and custard pie has been withdrawn entirely. The increased price of milk is blamed for these changes. As the milkman raised his price the succulent custard sections diminished in both breadth and depth until it was decided that customers would be better served by withdrawing custard from the 57 varieties of pies, and increasing the output of apple, pumpkin and other favourites that have thus far escaped the effects of war.

URGED TO DEFEAT ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONISTS

Manifesto From Acting President of the G.W.V.A. is Endorsed by Members of Peterboro' Branch at Last Night's Meeting—"Obvious Duty is to Support the Principles For Which We Have Already Fought" is the Message.

At last night's meeting of the Peterborough Great War Veterans' Association, the following manifesto from Jas. P. Shanahan, of Ottawa, the Acting President of the G. W. V. A. of Canada, was read by Secretary Whatley and was unanimously endorsed by the members present:

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE GREAT WAR VETERANS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA.

Comrades:

Our President, whom duty to the country has taken overseas, having relegated to me his duties in our Association during his absence, it devolves upon me to address you at this, the greatest crisis in the history of our country.

Over three years ago our Empire of necessity entered into a war which has developed into the most stupendous conflict of all time. The issues at stake are the greatest for which men have ever fought. The forces of oppression, barbarism and brutality oppose those who champion liberty, freedom and righteousness.

Britain stands and fights for what she has long stood and fought for—the freedom and advancement of the world. Canada, the child of Mother Britain, and the greatest of the British Dominions, has thus far proudly and gloriously borne her part in the great struggle; and has thereby gained an unsullied name and reputation, which history will record for the benefit of generations to be, long after those who gained the glorious heritage we are fighting for have passed away. When we say that the issue is the freedom of humanity, we assert that it means the existence of the Empire; for, if freedom died, it would be because its greatest champions had gone down in the fight.

The great conflict still continues. Our object is yet unattained. The blood of our fallen Comrades cries from the ground that their sacrifices shall not have been in vain. The ideals our Comrades died for are not realized. Our foe is as determined as ever. Are we? Is Canada? Is Britain? Is the Empire as determined? If we are, there cannot be any doubt as to the outcome.

We, Comrades, must not refrain from giving a decisive answer to this question; and we dare not stand aloof from taking an active part in the struggle incident to the approaching general election, the outcome of which means so much to Canada and ourselves, and to our Comrades, living and dead. Its vital effect upon the lives and needs of those who still fight on demands not only our earnest consideration, but our active participation in the struggle at home.

Consequently, it behooves us to bring all our forces to bear, and leave no stone unturned in an endeavour to secure the defeat of any candidate who seeks your suffrage, who is not prepared to give us the fullest guarantees that he will do all in his power to secure the enforcement of conscription, and aid to the fullest extent the successful prosecution of the War.

It must also be our earnest endeavour to imbue our fellow citizens with the knowledge which we ourselves possess of the true state of affairs at the battlefront, and so impel them to act, as we know they would, did they but realize how serious the menace is that confronts us.

It is for you to give the answer; for you to say whether the proud name of our country shall have its lustre dimmed; for you to say whether our brave Comrades have fallen in vain; for you to say whether reparation shall be made, and for you to say whether those of our Comrades, who are now facing the foe, shall be left to continue the struggle unaided, and confronted with the certainty that not only they, but also Canada, shall become effaced from the ranks of those who are fighting for the freedom of humanity.

Comrades, in conclusion, I wish to remind you that we are an independent body, and determined to remain such. That fact, however, does not remove from us the obvious duty of supporting the principles for which we have already fought, and; therefore, I have not any doubt as to what will be your reply, when the time comes for you to go to the polls: and that your voice and action will be so united as to sound the death-knell in public life for any forces in this country who would be willing to permit Canada's further participation in the War to cease, for that is what the issue amounts to, and; therefore, with every confidence, I leave the decision in your hands.

(Signed) JAS. J. SHANAHAN,
Acting President, The Great War Veterans' Association of Canada.

Fish Hatchery For Lindsay

LINDSAY, Nov. 7.—In reply to a request from the town authorities concerning the establishment of a hatchery in Lindsay the Minister of Public Works and Highways writes stating the Fishery Department has been busy for a time. An officer will visit Lindsay within the next couple of weeks to make an investigation.

Mr. Watson, of the Department, Toronto, was in town this summer. Mayor Kylie said and looked over the situation. He heartily approved of the idea of a hatchery for Lindsay, and assured the Mayor that he would go back to Toronto and recommend that hatcheries for bass and maskinonge be placed here.

His Worship urged the Council to take the matter up seriously and try to secure the co-operation and support of Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon in the matter. If the hatcheries were secured it meant that the river and lakes would be restocked with fish.

The matter was left in the hands of His Worship Mayor Kylie, Ald. Matthie and Chambers.

EMPLOYER TO MAKE ENQUIRIES. er matters was being given out and it was the opinion of the meeting that an effort should be made to stop that practice.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the Veterans did not consider that it was obligatory on the part of a returned man to accept a position offered him by the Soldiers' Aid Commission or any other body, unless the wages and conditions were satisfactory.

New Members Received.

Two applications for membership were received and favourably passed on by the meeting. The new members are Lieut. T. W. Quinn, formerly of the 2nd and 247th Battalions, and Pte. Horace Ballard, formerly of the 21st Battalion.

Comrade Oldroyd, of Almonte, a member of the Ottawa branch of the G.W.V.A. was in attendance. He is now a resident of Peterborough and has asked to be transferred to the Peterborough branch of the Association.

Two Peterborough soldiers, who are still serving, Sergt.-Major T. R. Blunt and Comrade Loader, have requested the Peterborough branch, of which they are members, to transfer them to the Kingston branch, as they expect to be on duty in Kingston for some time.

New Executive Members.

A letter was read from Comrade C. H. Hurst, who left Monday for Pittsburg, tendering his resignation as a member of the executive committee, and expressing his regret at having to sever his connections with his Peterborough comrades. On motion, Comrade Hurst's resignation was accepted.

To fill the vacancy caused by his departure, Comrade Sergt.-Major Walter Hughes, formerly bandmaster of the 93rd Battalion Band, was elected and Lieut. T. W. Quinn was also chosen as a member of the executive committee, completing the organization of that body.

Comrade R. H. Muir presided at last night's meeting in the absence of President Staunton.

THOSE WHO MAY VOTE IN COMING ELECTIONS

In Ontario those entitled to have their names on the voters' lists and to vote in the Dominion general elections, 1917, are as follows:

(1) All those (except in the cities) whose names are on the Ontario voters' lists as revised in 1916. In cities a special and entirely new list will be prepared.

(2) All women (except Indian women) who are the wives, widows, mothers, sisters, and daughters of the Canadian forces overseas and naval forces in Canada or Britain, whether the members of such forces have been at any time resident in Canada or not.

(3) All electors or voters, male and female, must be twenty-one years of age, and British subjects by birth or naturalisation, and according to the War-time Elections Act, 1917, section 32, the elector is to reside for one year in the Province and have his residence and domicile in the electoral district for thirty days, both of said periods to be fixed by reference to the date of the writ of election, 1917.

(4) There are persons who are not entitled to vote. These are of alien enemy birth or other European birth within enemy jurisdiction, and of alien enemy mother tongue or native language who have been naturalised in Canada since March 31, 1902. In this class, however, persons who have sons, grandsons, or brothers in the overseas forces or who can produce certificates of service or application to enlist, are entitled to vote.

(5) The sons of these men who have been naturalised since 1902 who were not of age when their fathers were naturalised are not disqualified. Neither are the sons born in Canada, whether the fathers were naturalised or not. All of the foregoing classes naturalised previous to 1902, with their sons, are not disqualified, nor are the female voters under Section 33A of the War-time Elections Act.

(6) The Russian Mennonites who settled in Manitoba under order-in-Council dated August 13, 1873, as well as the Doukhobors who settled in Canada under order-in-Council dated December 6, 1898, are disqualified, unless they have sons, grandsons, or brothers in th overseas forces. All other Mennonites resident elsewhere in Canada are not disqualified as a class.

(7) All who apply for exemption from combatant naval or military service on conscientious grounds are disqualified, unless and until they are refused exemption.

(8) Those who apply for exemption for other reasons are not disqualified, whether refused or not, and clergymen, although not required to perform military service, are entitled to vote.

(9) Returned soldiers are entitled to vote whether they are on the voters' list or of age.

(10) Armenians and Syrians known to be out of sympathy with Turkey are not disqualified.

Work of the Enumerators.

The enumerators take the list of 1916 and add to it the names of the female voters and strike off the names of those disqualified as above. There are not many in Ontario disqualified.

Two Aldermen Have Gone In Quest of Coal For City's Depot

Municipal Supply Exhausted and Many Citizens Are Clamouring For Fuel—One Car Strayed Here From Toronto and City Saw It First.

THE DEALERS' PROBLEM

Aldermen Dobbin and Stratton left this morning for Toronto and Buffalo to buy, beg or borrow coal for the city's fuel yard, which has been swept bare, even to the last grains of dust. A long and unfortunate list of citizens who state that they cannot get fuel, and are dependent upon the municipality, has been an increasing worry to City Treasurer Adams and Ald. Dobbin. Hence, the reason for to-day's expedition into the coal belt. There may be some suspicion that the municipal authorities have been inactive, but to get supplies they have even gone to the limit of appropriating a car that was destined for a Toronto company. It strayed into Peterborough, and apparently the city's coal men saw it first. Perhaps it was recognized as providential assistance, but the city's action was spurred by the fact that many of their cars have strayed into other hands, according to a practice of the trade that custom has made legitimate. At any rate that car of nut was quickly delivered and payment made by the city to the Toronto company to whom it was originally booked.

One of the reasons given for the shortage of coal in the hands of the local dealers is their entire dependence on their regular "line" companies. The city has bought "independent" coal only, and has had to pay the higher price demanded by these companies. One or two dealers have also snapped up the offerings of independent and have even made long and exhaustive buying trips for the purpose of getting coal from any source available. Other dealers were content to depend entirely on their limited shipments from their regular companies, but those few who obtained "independent" coal at a higher cost are said to be the only local dealers who have supplies at the present time. Hence consumers will appreciate the necessity of husbanding this supply and of apportioning it carefully in order that necessitous cases may be attended to first. There are no indications of concerted action by the Peterborough dealers. The most of them have little or no coal, and are turning away consumers empty-handed, and with no promise of deliveries even in the near future. They state that they do not know when they may receive shipments from their regular companies. But those who bought independent coal, thereby augmenting their regular supplies, should not be unfairly criticized for their methods of distribution when they, too, might have adopted the policy of depending only on the sources from which they secured their regular supplies.

Arts and Crafts Column

HUGHSON JOHNSTONE, painter and decorator, 416 Water street, will answer in this column each Wednesday for Examiner readers, questions relating to painting, sign-writing, paper-hanging, kalsomining, furniture polishing, decorating, etc., for the benefit of those who might like doing their own work. Questions sent to the Examiner will receive attention in due course.

Question: C. S. B., Aylmer Street, City — What is the reason I can't hang the paper on my kitchen without it showing bubbles? I bought the washable kind, and it seemed to curl all up. Was it bad paper?

Answer: The trouble is a common one with amateurs, and may be attributed to several causes. Most washable (varnished) papers, however, should be pasted with a good heavy smooth paste and allowed to stand about five minutes before hanging. Then brushed well, or, better still, smoothed down with a wide roller.

Question: Mrs. B. F.—I am so glad you have again decided to have a question and answer column. I for one will take advantage of it. What is the cause of the paint on my verandah gathering up in little rings? It sort of separates. The first coat went on nicely, but the second coat, Oh!

Answer: Painters call it sissing or crawling, and is due to cold weather, too much oil in the paint, trying to paint on an oily undercoat, etc. Add a little spirits of turpentine to your paint, or with fine sandpaper rub over the undercoat to roughen it, to give your second coat a bite.

Question: West End—In your Arts and Crafts Column last year you gave a recipe to remove old dried paint from cloth goods. Will you kindly print it again?

Answer: Drop a little chloroform on the spot, allow it to stand just a moment, then with an old tooth brush, rub briskly with the grain of the cloth.

Question: H. T. J., Charlotte St., City—Can a paint brush that has hardened be softened again? If so, how?

Answer: Try soaking it in boiling vinegar for a few minutes. That often answers if the paint is not too hard.

"THE FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS"

(Kingston Standard, Oct. 24.)

Those who witnessed the remarkable motion picture, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," which was presented for the first time in Kingston at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon and evening, saw what is unquestionably one of the most notable productions of its kind ever presented in this city.

For two hours and a half the audience watched with the keenest interest an accurate presentation of the weird events leading up to the overthrow of the Russian dynasty. The central figure in this great drama of history is not, strange though it may seem, the Czar of all Russia, but an ignorant dissolute peasant, Rasputin by name, who, wrapping about himself the cloak of religion, claiming for himself divine powers and rights, using to the full his diabolical mystical powers by playing upon the superstitious of an ignorant people, became one of the most powerful, notorious and loathsome figures in modern history.

The play follows the career of this great imposter from his obscure native village until his body was thrown into a river near Petrograd by his murderers, if murderers they may be called.

The machinations of Rasputin, which completely undermined the Russian court and left him the power behind the throne, embraced a plot for separate peace with Germany, which, it seems would have been consumated had not certain members of the Russian nobility decided to purge the court of this moral leper.

The acting throughout was superb, particularly the portrayal of Rasputin. The picture is a masterpiece of motion picture art, and abounds in many magnificent scenes. "The Fall of the Romanoffs," which is founded on facts, is a play which will last for years. When history of the present war is written no chapter will be more fascinating than that which deals with the deposal of Nicholas II, of Russia. This great photo play will be shown at the Grand Opera House for three days, commencing Monday, November 12, with daily matinees.

She Had Suffered For 20 Long Years

Mrs. Morris Had Rheumatism So Bad She Couldn't Walk—Finds Relief at Last

"Words can only partially describe the suffering I endured before I began taking Tanlac," said Mrs. Mary Morris of 462 St. Johns Road, Toronto, a few weeks ago.

"For twenty years," continued Mrs. Morris, "I have tried in vain to get relief from stomach trouble, kidney disorders and rheumatism, and when I began taking Tanlac I was a confirmed invalid. During all these years I haven't been able to eat without suffering afterwards. My stomach was all upset, I had no appetite, I simply had to force myself to eat and then my food would sour and bloat me up terribly. I suffered all the time from indigestion and was constantly belching up my food sour and undigested. My kidneys worried me nearly all the time and during the past three years I developed rheumatism, which started first in my shoulders and arms and then got down into my lower limbs, and for more than two and a half years I have almost been an invalid. I was so crippled up that I couldn't walk, I couldn't even dress myself and the misery was almost unbearable. Sometimes the pain was like a knife cutting in, then again it was a dull throbbing pain that seemed close to the bone. My legs would puff up and my joints were so stiff and hurt so I could hardly move. At times I had cramps in my legs until they felt like they would almost draw double and no one, unless they have suffered the same way, knows what I had to endure.

"Well, I have spent lots of money for medicines of different kinds, but was never able to find anything to do me one bit of good, I had almost given up in despair, but Tanlac has already done me a world of good and I believe now I am going to get sound and well. I have just started on my third bottle of Tanlac and I can tell that I am improving every day. The rheumatism doesn't bother me anything like it did and I feel stronger and more vigorous than I have in a long time. While I haven't taken Tanlac long enough to say it has done wonders for me, I can say it is doing me good and that's more than I can say for any other medicine I ever took. I am certainly well pleased with the results I have gotten from Tanlac so far and I'm going to keep on taking it as I believe my relief will soon be complete."

Jam and Linen Shower a Success

The jam and linen shower held yesterday at the Protestant Home was a great success. Many jars of jam, honey, maple syrup, etc., were handed in, besides generous gifts of linen from the Cressman Company, the Robert Fair Company, the Dickson family, and other private individuals. In addition to this, two beautiful quilts were received from Miss Margaret Wilson, who said they were all made of new pieces from Scotland.

Prohibition Results Uncertain

(Canadian Press Despatch).

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Contrary to last night's report, there is this morning considerable doubt regarding the result of voting on prohibition in this State yesterday. At an early hour this morning there was ten thousand of a majority against prohibition, with two notably dry counties to hear from. Women's suffrage is undoubtedly decisively beaten in this State.

Presentation To Retiring Teacher

The Cheerful Workers' Bible Class met in the basement of St. James' church, where a banquet was given by the Social committee of the class. On behalf of the class Miss Henthorn presented Miss Barrie with a signet ring.

Peterborough, Nov. 5, 1917.

Dear Miss Barrie,—The members of your class have assembled here this evening to express in some degree our appreciation of your efforts among us. We realize that mere form of words can only touch the compass of all we feel, but still we should like in some measure to express our appreciation.

Your energy has been untiring, no task has been deemed too great when performed for the class, and we should not been in vain. No meeting has not been in vain. No meeteing has taken place that has not felt your presence, no meeting that has not needed your personality to complete it.

In the words of Longfellow, your presence has made our meetings a veritable wayside inn, where we may feast our souls on love, and in the centre of this love feast has always stood prominently our beloved president.

But we know that in losing you from our circle, you are not lost from Christian work, for where work is to be done, you are certain to be in the midst of it. This reconciles us somewhat, for if we are losers, someone else is sure to be the gainer.

Signed on behalf of the Cheerful Workers' Class—

Leah E. Wilbourn, Teacher,
Edith Fry, Vice-President,
Margaret Hill, Sec.-Treasurer.

NEW ROOM AT CENTRAL.

Overcrowding of Classes Demands More Accommodation for Pupils.

The increased attendance at the Central School has necessitated the opening of a new room, according to Inspector Mowat's statement at the Board of Education meeting last night. In October there were five hundred pupils, including the kindergarten, at this school, with a staff of twelve teachers. One extra room is already furnished, and the overcrowding in some of the classes will be relieved by using this room and engaging another teacher.

Heart Beat So Fast

Could Not Sleep

HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE BIG Y.M.C.A. CONVENTION

Mr. Meserve Has Returned From National Gathering at Ottawa —Local Association to Observe International Week of Prayer.

SOME Y. M. C. A. NOTES

November 11th ot 17th is the In- November 11th to 17th is the In- and will be observed by the local Association as follows:

A meeting at the Y.M.C.A. building for young men on Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock (speaker to be announced later), and a special programme in connection with each of the Bible Classes to be held during the week.

The General Secretary represented the local Association at the Y. M. C. A. National Convention at Ottawa on November 2nd to 5th, there being present at this convention one hundred and seventy-seven delegates from all parts of the Dominion. Two leaders representing the British National Council and four representing the Y.M.C.A. International Committee were also in attendance. As this was the first National Convention held in five years, it was necessary that a large part of the sessions be devoted to the business that has accumulated owing to the fact that the National Convention has been deferred on account of the war. The main item of business that occupied the attention of the Convention was the setting up of a programme to be followed by the Canadian Associations immediately following the close of the war. The Y.M.C.A. is occupying a very prominent place in the world to-day, especially in connection with war work, but it is felt that reactions are likely to follow the close of the war, which will present great problems to the Association movement.

The Convention speakers were of the opinion that the soldiers at the front had deeper religious convictions than the men at home, but that there was likely to be a need for a strong evangelical programme to touch every Canadian man immediately after the war. The Y. M. C. A. National Council is suggesting a coast to coast evangelical effort somewhat similar to to the "Men-and-Religion" movement that was so successful in the States a few years ago. The Association leaders have conferred with nine of the leading religious denominations in Canada, seven of which have already given assurance that they are willing to co-operate in such an effort. Every Association is asked to emphasize the religious work among men as never before.

The strongest address of the Convention was delivered by Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the International Committee, who pictured the world situation in a masterly way. He proved a strong defender of Russia, which, he said, had been called upon to meet four crises at once—a test that no other nation in the world's history had ever been called upon to meet. He felt that if the Y. M. C. A. work had been as thoroughly organized among the Russian troops as among the British and French, the situation would to a large extent have been saved. Dr. Mott asked for nine hundred men to be immediately distributed among Russian, Italian and the American troops that are now in France, and also expressed the need for an unlimited number of men to work among the American soldiers now in training in the United States.

A pleasant feature of the Convention was the presentation of a series of moving pictures which had been taken of the Y. M. C. A. work in England and France. These pictures are to be released and shown by various moving picture circuits throughout Canada. When they strike Peterborough every person should attend, because Dr. R. W. Frank and Charlie Thorpe are shown as prominent winners of athletic contests at the Shorncliffe camp.

A meeting of the Religious Work Committee of the local Y. M. C. A. will be held the fore part of next week to consider suggestions growing out of the Convention.

HUNS CUT THE THROAT OF A U. S. SOLDIER

(By J. W. Pegler).

AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, Nov. 7.—One of the American soldiers killed in the recent German trench raid had his throat cut. He was overwhelmed by Boches, backed up against the trench wall, and a knife was drawn across his neck.

The wound was inflicted with a trench knife—a deadly tool carried by the fighting men for hand-to-hand battling.

All the wounded Sammies now in the base hospital were improving today. They will probably return to their units, either for revenge, when the army surgeons pronounce them fit for active service.

Board of Education Decides To Deal With Problem of Mentally Defective Children And Their Special Care

Exhaustive Report by Dr. Neal, Chairman of the Committee That Investigated This Question in Its General and Particular Effects Upon the School and the Community —Recommendations Approved by the Board Last Night

ACTION WILL BE IMMEDIATE

The Board of Education adopted the following recommendations in the report of the special committee appointed to consider the problem of metnally defective children in the schools:

"That the School Nurse be given further training by having her visit other centres."

"That we as a School Board, in co-operation with other School Boards of the Province, support the petition of the Ontario Medical Association and other organizations that the question be fully and speedily dealt with by a commission."

"That it is advisable to introduce some form of medical inspection in our schools."

"That during the coming month Dr. Helen McMurchy be invited to visit our schools, and go into the matter fully with the whole Board to advise as to arrangements for dealing with the problem in our schools."

Dr. F. C. Neal, Chairman.

With nearly thirty mentally defective children attending the public schools of this city, the Board of Education appointed some time ago a special committee to investigate the problem of their special care and instruction. The report of this committee was submitted to the Board last night by Dr. F. C. Neal who, as chairman, a physician and ardent advocate of improved school conditions, gave this question his deepest interest and thought. He visited Ottawa, reported to the committee by whom the various aspects of this serious subject were thoroughly debated, and the complete result of their deliberations is provided in the following comprehensive report:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen:

Your committee appointed to deal with the matter of mentally defective children beg to submit the following report:

Public men and women are at last beginning to recognise the importance of caring for the feeble-minded, and the responsibility comes home to us of making ourselves cognisant of the existing facts, of educating the public as to these, and of shouldering our part of the task of coping with the problem. There are estimated to be about 7,500 defectives in the Province of Ontario, and we may take this to be a conservative estimate.

Of this number about 2 per cent. are to be found in our elementary schools.

As to the causes, about 75 per cent. of all cases are hereditary, the remaining 25 per cent. being due to such cases as birth injuries, cretinism, hereditary syphilis, etc.

Schools the Key to Situation.

A striking increase in the number of cases is shown from the age of nine to eleven years, and a gradual increase from the age of twelve to fourteen years. The older the child, the more marked does the mental defect become. Thus it will be seen that the public school is the key to the situation, as far as obtaining information regarding the number of defectives among children, especially those of the lower grades. The high-grade mental defectives do not generally become known until they have committed some depredation or have given some evidence of moral delinquency.

Groups of Defectives.

Regarding the classification of these cases, they are usually arranged in three groups:

(a) Idiots, or those persons whose mental age is about two years. These form about 6 per cent. of the cases, and are absolutely unable to care for themselves, being unable ever to guard themselves from ordinary physical dangers.

(b) Imbeciles, or those whose mental age varies from three to seven years. They are only partially capable of caring for themselves and cannot manage their own affairs. These constitute 18 per cent. of the cases.

(c) Higher grades or Morons, those whose mental age is from seven to twelve years or higher. These cases have certain gifts and capabilities, and may be made to a large extent self-supporting, but require care and supervision, for their own protection and for the protection of others. These form 76 per cent. of all cases.

Menace to the Community.

We will next consider the relation of the feeble-minded to the normal members of a community. To the average person the term "feeble-minded" does not suggest very much. They are apt to think of them as poor weak creatures unfitted to fight the battles of life, who should be taken care of in some way, and there the matter ends. A deeper scrutiny would show that this class of people are a startling menace to a community, as the following figures will show. If all feeble-minded were placed in suitable environments, and given special training to develop their limited capabilities:

(1) The number of criminals would be largely reduced, as 25 per cent. of all criminals are found to be in the feeble-minded class.

(2) The number of juvenile delinquents would be fewer, as 40 per cent. of these are feeble-minded.

(3) The normal pupils in schools would not be retarded by those unable to keep up with them, and they would be free from the baneful moral influence of this class.

(4) The number of unemployables would be reduced by 80 per cent.

(5) The number of inmates of charitable institutions would be reduced by from 30 to 50 per cent.

(6) The number of illegitimate births would be much fewer, and the spread of venereal disease greatly checked.

(7) The number of hereditary cases would be fewer, as, under proper care, these people would not be allowed to marry. Their right to life and happiness is one thing, but their right to parenthood is another.

(8) The number of prostitutes would be greatly reduced, as it has been shown that about 50 per cent. of prostitutes arrested are feeble-minded.

Institutional Care.

Now having noted the extent of this trouble, its cause, its classification, and the effect upon the community of its control, we will note in passing what has been done in a general way and then come down to the question of how our schools are affected. Permanent institutional care seems to be the ideal way of dealing with the cases, and this, as shown by such institutions as Waverly, Mass., and Vineland, N.J., etc., seems best carried out by an industrial farm on the cottage plan where all mentally defective persons, properly classified, may have a happy home, and earn their own living as far as possible.

Those who have engaged in this work say that it is a revelation to see how the character of a troublesome mental defective changes, when he is taught to work with his hands which he can do, and is not troubled so much about working with his head which he cannot do. To pave the way for the institutional work, leaders of public opinion, and through them the general public, should know the facts concerning these cases, they should be made to understand the necessity of permanent care, and the advantage of having cases diagnosed and placed under institutional care early.

Local Cases.

There are between twenty and thirty pupils in our Public Schools who are unable to pursue the regular course of study with any degree of profit. Of these, about half are very backward and will never get beyond the Primary grades. Some of them are unable to do anything but the simplest mechanical work, and anything that requires reasoning is utterly beyond them.

The brighter portion of these pupils derive some profit from their school studies, and may reach Book Two by the time they are fourteen years old.

The physical condition of many of these children is not good. Their appearance or walk usually indicate that they are not normal children.

An Obstacle to Progress of the School

The presence of defective children in the regular school classes seriously inconveniences the progress of the normal pupils. It is considered that two mentally defective children in a class take up one-fourth of the teacher's time. These children, too, are always older than the rest of the pupils in the class and their influence upon the smaller children is a good deal to recommend them. In the first place much time would be saved to the normal pupils by the removal of the mentally defective from the classes, and at the same time the moral tone of the classes would be much improved.

The mentally defective children would be much happier and better behaved, for they would be being taught what they could learn, and not being forced to attempt what they could not learn.

Parents Should Be Told.

Through the auxiliary classes, many of the facts regarding this problem could be made clear to the public. It is a mistaken kindness to attempt to deceive parents as to mental defect in a child. Every consideration and kindness should be shown them, but they should not be deceived. When it is too late to act they will find out the real state of affairs, and when they will naturally blame those who have kept them in ignorance, thus neglecting the best interests of the mental defective and his family. In this connection, the work of the school nurse and the medical inspector of the school would be indispensable. Their work would furnish data which should be given to the public so that they may know conditions as they exist in our schools, their tact and influence should go far toward eradicating prejudices and ignorance.

What Ontario Is Doing.

Outside of Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa, nothing definite in the way of auxiliary classes has been done in the schools of the province, although a number of other places have been considering the question. After visiting Ottawa and seeing the work there, my own conclusion was that the greatest gain was to the normal pupils through the removal of the dedectives, and the great weakness of the auxiliary classes, that no permanent cave was provided.

Each auxiliary class should have:

(1) A special teacher.

(2) A small number of pupils, 14 to 20.

(3) A double room—one with school desks for class work, and another with equipment for manuel training, household science, sewing, weaving, etc.

Committee's Recommendations.

In view of their research in this matter, which they feel to be far from exhaustive, your committee beg to submit the following for your consideration:

That the school nurse be given further training by having her visit other centres.

That we as a School Board in co-operation with other School Boards of the province, support the petition of the Ontario Medical Association and other organizations, that the question be fully and speedily dealt with by a commission.

That it is advisable to introduce some form of medical inspection in our schools.

That during the coming month Dr. Helen McMurchy be invited to visit our schools, and go into the matter fully with the whole Board, to advise as to arrangements for dealing with the problem of our schools.

Dr. Neal moved, seconded by Mr. Crane, that the report be adopted and that Dr. McMurchy be invited here as a preliminary to the Board's plan of action as outlined in the report.—Carried.

Dear Sir,—It is exceedingly interesting and illuminating to notice how anxious the Examiner is to see the former member for West Peterborough [illegible] Burnham, retire from public life.

You have been constantly urging us to have a union convention here in Peterborough as in other places. The idea is admirable as far as it goes, but it does not always apply to local conditions, as witness many constituencies in Ontario.

We have also had speakers here from the so-called Win-the-War League, urging us to call a union convention. These men were ignorant of local conditions and would not have come here at all if they had known they were doing so to satisfy the personal grudge of a few men, and were therefore made catspaws by them.

The Examiner, as the official mouthpiece of the Liberal party here in Peterborough, has not once declared whether it is in favour of union government or not.

We hear now, instead, rumours from authoritative sources, that the Liberals are going to nominate Mr. R. R. Hall as their candidate and that he will run as a straight Laurier Liberal.

Now, shouldn't we have been foolish if we had called a new convention and perhaps had a few Liberals help foist a weak candidate upon us, however well intentioned, to afterwards fight the wiles of an experienced politician like Mr. Hall.

No, let us say, as Lord Salisbury said, "Let well e nough alone," and let us stick to a man who is already a candidate and whose patriotic stand in this war no one question.

Capt. Burnham has publicly, and also to the Prime Minister, declared himself in favour of Union government, and his great record, both in public life and as a patriot, can withstand the strongest searchlight.

Let win-the-war Liberals support the candidate who is willing to support the Union government if elected.

Yours truly,
J. W. WORTH.

Peterborough, Nov. 7th.

Our correspondent's reasoning is not quite impregnable. He argues that "we" (whoever "we" means) "would have been foolish to call a new convention" and "perhaps have had a few Liberals help foist a weak candidate upon us" (whoever "us" means. Why "a few Liberals?" If a fair conference to decide upon a Union candidate were called, it would consist, approximately, of equal party numbers and a few Liberals could not "foist" a weak candidate, especially when, according to our correspondent, a candidate of such great strength, ability and patriotism as Mr. Burnham is, according to his suggestion, available.

So far there is no Union candidate in West Peterborough. "Capt. Burnham" may have "publicly and to the Prime Minister declared himself in favour of Union government." That does not make him a Union candidate. Sir Robert Borden has publicly declared that he will accept no man as a Union candidate who is the nominee of a party convention or association. And it is said that cabinet ministers invited and announced to come to Peterborough, refused to come except in the interests of a recognized Union candidate. Mr. Burnham is not a nominated Union candidate, though he is eligible, for, as a matter of fact, he is not even a party candidate. A prominent citizen, and prominent Conservative, this morning declared that Mr. Burnham was not a Conservative candidate. He resigned his candidature, and his resignation still holds, for no authorized body dealt with his resignation or endorsed its recall. Win-the-War Liberals may be innocent, but not so innocent that they cannot do a little thinking for themselves, and refuse to fall in with a transparent partizan enterprise.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN VISITED

Mr. G. W. Powell, agent for the Peterborough Branch of the Children's Aid Society, spent yesterday in Dummer Township, inspecting two cases of neglected children that had been reported to him. In one household he found the father away on a hunting trip, and the mother and baby absent in Norwood, leaving two youngsters alone in the house. They were badly off for clothes, and the house was in need of repairs. Mr. Powell outlined a programme of improvements that will have to be carried out. In the other case there were three children, and as the conditions were bad, it is likely that the Society may have to take action.

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERIAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY HELD A MEETING

At an executive meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Peterborough Presbyterial, held Nov. 6th, it was resolved that The Peterborough Presbyterial place on record their deep sense of loss in the removal by death of Mrs. Hugh Waddell, their beloved president.

The officers feel keenly the great blank caused by her removal. Her beautiful Christian character and devotion to duty have been an inspiration to all. Her clear judgment and executive ability were invaluable to the society, and her keen interest in the Master's work was a stimulus to many others.

Although called to the higher service, her life and influence still speak, and beckon them forward and onward in the work she loved so well. —Annie M. Erskine, Cor.-Sec.

GERMANY'S AIR FLEETS.

Teutons Are Planning to Control "Air Commerce."

If this war had never been, and if Germany, in times of ordinary peace, had established sailings of fleets of zeppelins and airplanes across the North Sea to England, carrying tons of merchandise, delivering it, returning safely, and doing this regularly, the whole world would have been astounded. The eyes of the world would have been centered on that achievement. We would have said:

"It has come at last, the conquest of the air."

Germany has done that very thing, except that the freight has been bombs, instead of merchandise. For the last three years Germany's air fleets have sailed regularly with their cargoes of tons of bombs which they have dropped almost where they chose in England, and they have proved that if it were not for the guns of war there would be little danger in such navigation. Few of the airships have been lost through any cause except English gunnery.

England, too, has established a regular airplane passenger service between her coast and France. The planes sail almost hourly, carrying army officers to and from the war front, and so far there have been few accidents.

We have been so intent upon the war operations on land, and the airplane battles above the war fronts, and the mere military side of the bomb-dropping in England, that we have failed to appraise the achievements of the aircraft in their proper relation to future trade and trade routes. But the Germans have appraised those feats at their proper worth and already they are planning air routes for German commerce after the war.

Before the war Germany specialized in the manufacture of a number of things that were made better and cheaper there than anywhere else, and Germany had almost a world monopoly on those articles. Among them were a long list of coal tar by-products such as dyes and medicines. Among them also were thousands of different kinds of chemicals and many kinds of delicate instruments. These things are so costly that a million dollars' worth of them take up only a small bulk. The Deutschland, a submarine, with not much more cargo space than a big zeppelin airship, would have brought over $4,000,000 worth of this stuff in one cargo.

A London newspaper has startled England with the story that already a German company with millions of capital behind it has organized and been given a charter to go into the airship carrying trade after the war. It has even laid out the routes of travel and schedules of sailings of its monster airships. It proposes to cross the Atlantic from Ireland to Newfoundland in 16 hours. Its ships will sail from Germany to the west coast of Ireland without stop, and from there to Newfoundland, then to Nova Scotia, and from there to Boston and New York. Other fleets of airships will sail to India and the Orient, and to Egypt and the countries of the Mediterranean.

The story goes that Germany is saying: Our fleet of merchant ships is captured or destroyed, we know, and we have been too busy building submarines and airships to replace them. We have been destroying the merchant ships of other countries, too, and when peace comes there won't be ships enough to begin to carry the commerce of the world. We shall not wait until we have replaced our ships, but will turn our war zeppelins to the carrying of merchandise at once; and, no matter if the world has tried to build its own dye plants and chemical works since the war began, we shall get back again all of that trade we have lost, and get it at once through our airships. Our plants are intact, we can resume manufacture at once, we can make cheaper than anyone, we can deliver by airship quickly and at low cost.

That is the story. Whether there is enough of fact in it to warrant its being taken seriously or not, the newspapers of England are printing columns about it, and it is interesting enough to be retold here, merely as indicating one of the speculative possibilities after the war.

A Spanish Mecca.

In the historic city of Seville, near the famous cathedral and occupying a frontage of about two hundred feet, stands a building that is of paramount interest to the people of practically all the American republics. Because of the contents of this building Seville is becoming the Mecca of American historians. The structure is a veritable treasure-house of authentic facts concerning the colonial period of all the Spanish-speaking countries of the New World as well as a mine of information relative to the early history of a very large part of the United States. The house is known as the Casa Lonja, and the treasures it contains consist of the general archives of the Indies, that wonderful collection of unpublished, unedited, and for the most part even unindexed original documents, reports, letters, etc., which practically embrace the administration of the colonies under the dominion of Spain in all the Americas.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD MEETING ON MONDAY NIGHT LAST

A large attendance was present to receive the head officers here on Monday night and a long business session ensued.

C. C. Ivey called upon H. C. C. Cinnamon to address the meeting, and he to a large extent dwelt upon the new membership now coming into the Order in every camp, and in some towns new camps were being passed. His home town, Lindsay, was again active and he told the members they were going to beat Peterborough out in the fall campaign. All these things were a source of great satisfaction to the head officers, and the future looks very bright for the welfare of the Order.

Head Clerk Clair Jarvis then addressed the meeting. Mr. Jarvis was warmly received. Peterborough camp, he said, was making a fine record in the honour roll, being at the head of the list, and he hoped to see Sherwood Forest Camp finish at the top and win the coveted trophy put up by the head office at the end of the year. He then passed to the financial standing of the Order and gave those present the assurance that their society was more than 100 per cent. solvent. This should encourage them to go on and build on the solid foundation now established. He gave the records and balance sheet up to the end of last year, which was investigated by Mr. Frank Sanderson, M.A., LLD., the consulting actuary, which showed the society to have a surplus over and above the government requirement of over $93,000.

The valuation has been made as in previous years upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, with interest at 4 per cent.

It is very gratifying to the Woodmen of the World to-day to know they are still better this year and the order is growing wonderfully during these times of the world's terrible conflict.

It was very late when the speaker arrived, therefore he could not go into all the details he would liked to have taken up with them, but promised a return visit when on his way back from Ottawa and thanked the members for their patience and also for their cordial welcome extended to him.

A good deal of discussion afterwards took place on business matters and the meeting closed after the midnight hour with the singing of the National Anthem.—Com.

The regular weekly tea of the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Masonic Dining Hall. Mrs. H. Rush will be in charge.

IN MEMORIAM.

In Loving Memory of Mrs. W. H. Irwin, who died Nov. 6, 1914, in Toronto.

"We loved her, yes, we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more;
And so he sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.

Our hearts they still are aching,
But Jesus thought it best,
And so He took our mother
Up with Him to rest.

But we shall always love you, mother,
We'll ne'er forget your smiling face,
For you left us to remember,
None on earth could fill your place.

Campaign For Bigger Hog Production

Market Is Practically Unlimited and Farmers Need Not Hesitate

The Canadian Food Bulletin says in regard to the production of hogs:

A campaign for increased production of hogs is being inaugurated in Canada. The market is practically unlimited and the farmers need have no hesitation in devoting much more attention to the production of hogs, which is one of the most important and most rapid means of increasing the available supply of meat animals.

It is absolutely essential that Canada should conserve and increase live stock as rapidly as possible. Stocks in Europe have been greatly depleted. The allied nations in Europe have been compelled to kill more than 33,000,000 of their stock animals. Moreover, the shortage of tonnage and difficulties of arranging convoys for merchant ships from more distant countries have practically confined the source of supply to the North American continent.

The question of the slaughter of cows that are capable of breeding is also a serious one which should receive immediate attention.

Reducing Danish Swine.

Owing to serious difficulties in obtaining fodder, the Danish Food Committee has advised the farmers of Denmark to kill three-quarters of the country's stock of pigs, reducing it from two millions to half a million.

Latest Canadian Advance Widens Artillery Scope On Flanders Front

Passchendaele Spires Now Merely a Memory, But Village Site Looks Across Occupied Belgium—Capture of Stronghold in Flanders is Crowning Climax of Nightmare of Struggle and Attainment of End

VILLAGE IS IN RUINS

BRITISH FRONT IN BELGIUM, Nov. 8.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's stern edict that if the Germans lost Passchendaele Village it must be retaken at all costs had not stirred his beaten-back groops to action up to last night. The intrepid Canadians were still standing, as they had for thirty-six hours, along a line well beyond this vital point, although rain drenched and shivering under the bitting autumn wind in their muddy fastnesses.

Every hour made the British positions on the front of Passchendaele Mosselmarkt and Goeberg stronger, for the work of consolidation proceded apace during most of yesterday and all of last night.

Passchendaele, whose spires not long ago showed picturesquely against the sky from their elevated position is now a memory. The little hamlet has all but disappeared under the deluge of shells. It was not the village that counted, however, but its enviable site. From it one can see a great distance out across occupied Belgium, and the possibilities for artillery work from here are wide in scope.

EFFORT IS AFFIRMED.

The correspondent of the Petit Parisien on the British front says Passchendaele marks a glorious stage in the battle of Flanders. It is the crowning of a nightmare of struggle and the attainment of an end.

"The effort of our allies is affirmed and the superiority of their guns is proved," the correspondent continues.

"It was the Canadians, who, supported by drumfire, entered at the charge into Passchendaele in a formidable rush, and occupied the positions there. They then had to form a sort of square so as to face on all sides at once the Germans who hurried up from all quarters. Three times the Germans retired from the struggle. They had been given orders to retake the church and hold it to the death, and large numbers fell in the attempt.

"Passchendaele has become the target of the German guns and in a few days, or rather in a few hours, this village will share the fate of others, and will consist of nothing but heaps of broken stones and dust."

CHURCHES, CONVENTS, SCHOOLS FILLED WITH ITALIAN WOUNDED

Hotels and Other Buildings Crowded With Refugees Who Fled Before the Invading Armies—Doctors Are Short of Supplies Lost in Retreat

AID IS NEEDED

ROME, Nov. 5 (Delayed).—The first exchange of shots between the Italians and the enemy on the Tagliamento is considered by the public the initial phase of a struggle leading to a big battle, even a decisive one; but experts warn the people not to be too sure of this. The Tagliamento suffices as a line of protection, and the Italian Army has admirably carried its orders to gather behind it. The river, with its fortified bridgeheads, has served to arrest the march of the enemy tmporarily, but it is asserted that it will have to be crossed when the hour for a decisive battle comes.

One of the most pitiful sights here is the arrival of the wounded from the front, with heartrending stories of their escape from the invaded towns. The Austro-German advance was so unexpected that no order of evacuation had been given to the towns near the border, thus hardly any conveyances were available for the transportation of the wounded. Those who were table to stand were told to get up and walk away, while those too seriously wounded were left behind with the doctors and nurses and others who volunteered to remain. Others, who had attempted to walk, after a few miles had to give up through faintness and exhaustion.

Therefore in the torrential rain could be seen pitiful, forlorn groups of wounded, sitting worn out by the roadside and imploring already overloaded motor cars and trucks to give them a lift.

All the hospitals, convents, schools municipal builings, and even the churches in the towns and villages between the Tagliamento and the Piave are filled with wounded, some lying on the floors, in the corridors, and in the courtyards—wherever there is the smallest space—while the doctors are working indefatigably day and night, with a scarcity of surgical instruments and dressings, great quantities of which have been lost in the retreat.

Rome has offered to find room for 15,000 wounded, while committees are working feverishly to send to the front surgical dressings and articles of clothing. Among those working most strenuously are the Embassy workrooms directed by Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, who has always lent herself untiringly to the service of the Italian wounded. She has received an urgent message from the Third Army, asking for any aid that can be given.

The Eternal City, immediately on hearing of the retreat, set to work to find shelter, food, and clothing for the refugees. Crowds of women, children, and old men, half clothed and without shoes or stockings, which had been worn out in their flight, carrying the bundles containing the few possessions they had time to collect, alight from the crowded trains and look around with frightened, hunted looks as if they expected the enemy to be upon them at any moment. Others, so stunned by the confusion and sorrow that they seem to have gone out of their minds, have to be led away, while children cling to their mothers' skirts, crying pitifully.

The Goverment has taken over several hotels and buildings near the railway station for the housing of these people, while committees have been formed to meet the refugees, and conduct them to hotels and procur them clothes and other necessities. Young women visit the buildings, noting the name of each person and trying to reunite the members of families which have been divided by the disorder of the flight. All the newspapers have opened subscription lists, and the Giornal d'Italia raised more than $20,000 in one day. Some of the subscriptions range from 25 cents to $1, showing that everyone is giving, even the poor who can hardly afford it.

A touching incident happened the other day. An American woman entered a shop in which a clerk came up to her bowing profoundly. "Thank you, Signorina," he said.

"For what?" asked the customer in surprise.

Seized A Man Hiding In Crow's Nest Of An Army Transport

STEAMSHIP WAS DELAYED

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Federal agents took into custody a man who was found hiding in the crow's nest of a German-owned steamship recently impressed into government service and which was about to leave this country as a troop transport. The leaving of the steamship was delayed as a result of the capture of the suspected man, but it could not be learned whether the troops she was to have carried abroad had gone on board at the time the suspected spy was found huddled in his lofty hiding-place.

Despite the reluctance of the secret service agents to discuss the case, it was learned that when the man was detected the federal agent who caught him saw him tear up a large piece of paper and scatter the torn fragments to the wind. The pieces of the torn paper were gathered up, only one or two of them being lost. They were pieced together, but the nature of the document's contents could not be learned.

Seizure Viewed as Significant.

Following the apprehension in Brooklyn of a man alleged to have carried a bomb of unusual destructive power aboard one of the largest of the vessels now being used as a transport, and the arrest of another man accused of having attempted to bribe a workman to get him on board a steamship, formerly of the North German Lloyd Line, which also now is in the service of this government, the arrest was looked upon as of more than ordinary significance. Nothing, however, besides the torn paper was found on or near the man who was arrested. Nevertheless, the federal agents refused to divulge his name. Likewise, they refused to make known the nature of the charge that had been made against him, or to reveal his nationality.

All that could be learned about the man was that he had no business on board the steamship, and especially not in the place where he was found hiding. It was intimated that, temporarily at least, the man would be sent to the alien enemy detention camp at Ellis Island.

No Bail for Bomb Carrier.

Accused with violation of the Espionage Act, Mathewa Vaitiekounos, a Lithunian carpenter, who was seized as he was about to go aboard a government transport at a local shipyard carrying a powerful bomb in his pocket, was arraigned before Judge Howe in the United States Court in Brooklyn.

Melville J. France, United States Attorney, asked that bail be fixed at $25,000, but Judge Howe committed Vaitiekounos without fixing bail.

Victor E. Gartz appeared as attorney for the accused man, and entered a plea of not guilty. He said that he had entered the case after the fact that the prisoner was a Russian had been laid before the Russian Consulate here, but stated that with the entering of the plea his connection with the case ended, the seriousness of the crime charged precluding the Russian Consulate interesting itself in the defence of the man.

M. J. France and James M. Power United States Marshal, questioned the prisoner in an unsuccessful attempt to get any information of any plot. The prisoner repeated that he had picked up the bomb near the navy yard and had put it in his pocket believing that the metals of which it was made would be saleable.

KILTS AND CHAPLIN MOUSTACHE MUST GO.

Canadian Highlanders in France to Lose Their Distinctive Uniform.

LONDON, Nov. 7. — Someone in high authority has been exercising an active brain over the sartorial affairs of Canadian officers and men, with the result that the "tooth brush" moustache, consisting of a few hairs only, is now strictly barred. Another new order condemns the somewhat foppish fashion among officers of wearing wash-leather gloves. Black ties for officers are also prohibited.

Orders have been given for all the Canadian drafts for France to be supplied with woollen gloves, shoulder bands and woollen winter shirts.

The kilt is not to be allowed to share in the glories of the Canadian victories in the future. The order has gone forth that all Canadian Highland regiments in France, after November 1, will be issued with trousers.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the soap and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

"THE PAINTED WOMAN"

By FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

"Guaranteed sound and without blemish, as all may see." He waved his whip toward the silent girl. "Observe her well, good people." He seized her wrist and jerked her roughly toward the front of the block. "See the colour of her, the excellent carriage, the high spirit, the complexion of the rose, the goodly shape. Is she not a rare beauty?"

"Hear! Hear!" came from the crowd. "A rare beauty!" jeered one. "A Spanish devil," another cried. "By my soul, I'd not give a crooked shilling for her." The laughter increased; the throng was beginning to enter into the cruel sport of the occasion.

"I'll bid a penny," cried Trix.

The Portugee motioned to the crowd to be silent.

"Hold your tongues," he cried. "I have still more to say. The true merit of this wench, good sirs, lies not in her beauty. Other accomplishments she has to recommend her. For one, a ready hand with the knife."

Those among the crowd who had learned of Ormiston's death burst into loud guffaws at this sally. To the others it meant nothing.

"But last night," the Portugee resumed, "she murdered her master, The Firebrand."

This announcement produced a profound sensation. Ormiston was a prominent figure in the town; the news of his death aroused a feeling of enmity toward the girl. There was another outbreak of shouting.

"The Firebrand?" cried a tall man at one side of the crowd.

"Yes. Had you not heard!" replied his neighbour.

"A murderess!" "Kill the jade!" "They say it is not true!" "God pity the wench!" "A handsome baggage, by my faith!" "Look at the eyes of her!" "Silence!" "Silence!" "Let the Portugee be heard!" came from various quarters of the market place. There was much diversity of opinion. Some of the onlookers, with a spark of pity still lingering within their breasts, cried out in Ramona's favour. Others, hardened by the life about them, called for her punishment. Still others treated the whole affair as an excellent joke, and cheering the Portugee to further effort, demanded that the show go on.

A citizen in the crowd, who had no great love for the buccaneers in spite of the golden harvest they brought to the town, spoke up.

"How comes it, master buccaneer," he asked, "that if the woman be a murderess, as you say, you do not deliver her over to be hanged?"

"For three good and sufficient reasons, my friend," he retorted. "The first, because the woman belongs to me, by right of purchase. The second, that although she confessed the murder last night, she now denies it. The third, that I have no mind to see the wench escape so lightly. To hang is easy. The cane fields will be a fitter punishment."

"The woman should have justice," the man remonstrated.

The Portugeee scowled.

"And who hands out justice here in Port Royal, I should like to know, if it be not Captain Morgan, and we, his loyal men." This was true enough. The feeble attempt made by the English governor and his handful of soldiers to preserve order had long been a standing joke in the town. "Interfere no more in my affairs, my friend," the Portugee continued, "or it will be the worse for you. The wench shall be sold, if it be for but half a crown, and there's an end to it."

"Half a crown!" exclaimed Long Rodgers. "If you cry her down much more, you'll not get that."

"What of it, an it pleases me? The wench is mine. Come, gentle sirs"—he turned once more to the crowd—"a murderess! Who'll buy a sweet and loving mistress, who knows how to handle the knife? A fair trick, is it not? Right between the ribs, forsooth, as you lie sleeping at her side. She has sworn to kill any man who dares make her his own. Who'll buy?"

"You do the wench scant justice, my friends," observed Portuguese Joe, ironically. "Look well at her. Do you not see that she is a very lamb?" He laughed as he curled the lash lightly about Ramona's shoulders. "What, good sirs! Are you afeard of a woman Beat her daily. 'Tis the only way with a wench, as good Master Tench will tell you. Come. Shall it be said that there is no man in Port Royal who can tame this Spanish devil?"

"Tame her yourself," came a laughing voice from the outskirts of the crowd. The story of the Portugee's adventure had begun to obtain circulation. "Why not, indeed?" laughed another.

The Portugee treated the interruption with indifference.

"Alas, my friends," he said. "I have not the time. Within a few hours must I sail for Tortuga, as Captain Morgan has ordered. But you, good sirs! Are you then made of milk and water? Would you let so fair a bargain pass you by? Come—make your bids. Are there not slaves lacking on the plantations? Make your bids."

A murmur arose from the crowd. No one seemed anxious to make an offer. In fact, the Portugee's words had very nearly turned the whole affair into a jest. At last a voice rose above the laughter.

"Ten pieces of eight," it said.

Portuguese Joe burst into a loud laugh.

"Ten pieces of eight, say you?" he roared, pointing with his whip. "You, there, with a green feather. Ten pieces of eight! God's blood! Look at the wench. 'Tis not every day you have a chance to buy so excellent a piece of flesh. Bid up, good sirs, bid up! Show your spirit. A sweet and loving mistress, for ten pieces of eight! Hell's fire! Bid up!"

Susannah, who had forced her way almost to the foot of the block, spoke up.

"Fifteen!" she cried.

"Fifteen pieces of eight!" The Portugee laughed again. "Aud from a woman. She's no coward, if the rest of you be. Shame on you, my masters. Fifteen pieces of eight, for this sweet dove! Santa Maria! 'Tis an insult!" He glanced at Ramona. She stood with lowered eyes, and with so pitiful and beaten a look upon her face that one might have thought her ready to fall, from exhaustion and shame.

"Twenty!" came a voice from the crowd.

"Good!" The Portugee turned. "Speak up, gentles. Show your blood. Twenty pieces of eight — twenty pieces of eight. Who bids twenty-five? Surely there must be one amongst you who has need of a woman."

"Twenty-five!"

"Ha! The cock in the crimson doublet! Excellent—excellent! She'll make you a rare handmaiden, my friend, but give her no knives. She has too playful a way with them." Again he turned to Ramona, and observing her downcast eyes, struck her under the chin. "Hold up your head, wench," he cried, "and let the company see the face of you!"

The girl looked out over the crowd. Her eyes burned with a terrible light—against the gray pallor of her face they seemed like coals of fire. More than one man in the throng shuddered as he encountered her gaze, yet in spite of its tragedy, there was no denying her beauty.

"By my faith, the eyes of a tigress!" exclaimed one.

"Thirty pieces of eight!" another cried.

The Portugee took up the bid. Thirty! Who bids thirty-five? Santa Maria! 'Tis but the price of a lean cow. Is this choice bit of flesh to go so cheap? Bid up, good sirs!"

"Thirty-five!" someone cried.

"By my soul! So you are awake at last. Heigho, friend Duvall. I thought to find you in the running. Speak up now. Who says forty?" He turned to Susannah, who hung, laughing, on De Rocheville's arm. "Come, Queen. Do you not want a woman to dress your hair? A gentle slave, forsooth——"

"Not I, Portugee. I prefer to sleep, nights."

Tench was becoming weary of the sport. He was anxious to get back to his rum, and a night in the taverns, before leaving for their rendezvous at Tortuga.

"Fore God, Portugee," he cried. "Have done. I'm thirsty as a shark."

"And I as well, One Eye, but I must first sell the wench. Did you not so advise? On with you now." Once more he faced the laughing crowd. "I've no mind to see my friend Duvall get this baggage. I think too much of him. Come—speak up, you slave dealers over there." He pointed with his whip to a group of men on the outskirts of the crowd. "Speak up. The cane fields wait for this murderous jade."

The men laughed, without interest. "Too frail, my friend," remarked one of them. "You'd best keep her yourself. She'd not last a week."

"Hell's fire! Feed her up, and she'd last for six. Come, bid me forty, one of you, and I'll remit half the price, so she goes to the plantations. Is that not a fair offer?"

There was a brief silence. Then one of the men spoke up.

"Forty, to oblige you, Portugee," he said.

"Forty it is. Who says fifty? Who says fifty?"

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. How Canadian Railway Men Are Helping

Lieut.-Col. C. W. P. Ramsay.

AMONGST the most prominent Canadian railroadmen with the Canadian Overseas Railway Construction Corps, is Lieutenant-Colonel C. W. P. Ramsey, formerly Engineer of Construction for the Eastern Lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Lieutenant-Colonel Ramsey has won the Companionship of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. His record is an example of the rewards that result from energy and perseverance. Born at Bury, Quebec, in 1883, he began to serve his apprenticeship at Delorimier Avenue Shops, Mechanical Department, in 1898. Later he was draftsman, transitman, assistant engineer, division engineer, and, in 1912, was made Engineer of Construction for Eastern Lines. In February, 1915, he went on leave to command the Canadian Railway Construction Corps in France. Besides having received the distinction already referred to, on June 3rd, 1916, he was several times mentioned in despatches. The C. P. R. has given 7,000 recruits to the army, and many of these are adding to the glory of the allied railroad makers in France.

The work of the Canadian Overseas Railway Construction Corps has been the subject of a great deal of praise from all sections of the British Army at the front. The Military Department at Ottawa has just issued an article received from war correspondence headquarters, France, describing the importance of the service rendered by these brawny recruits from the railway systems of the Dominion. The article says:

"In this devastated country, where a pile of broken bricks overgrown with weeds and a sign with a map location designate a former village, where roads have altogether disappeared and even cross-country trails melt in a single night, the Canadian railway men construct and maintain their lines. They are shelled by Fritz, if anything, more persistently and in greater volume than the infantry, yet night and day tons of ammunition and rations and men go forward over repaired lines, feeding guns and men alike. The experiences of the railway troops are not lacking in excitement."

"During one of the recent attacks Sergeant Oscar Samson, of Alberta, was seriously wounded in the arm. Instead of trekking for medical assistance back in the rear, he attempted to carry on at his job of mending lines destroyed by Hun shells, so that more ammunition could be rushed up. Finally his arm got so painful, he decided to go forward on the track that had been mended, to an advanced dressing station that he knew of. His wound had been fixed by a comrade, and his arm was tied on in an improvised sling. Samson climbed on a tractor which was hauling a trainload of Stokes gun ammunition. When they got to a junction near the front line both guard and driver were wounded by splinters from a high explosive shell. The little train had made the crest of the grade and was gathering momentum every second with the driver of the tractor hanging limp and unconscious from his seat. Samson pulled him up to a plate of safety and shut off the engine, but the heavy train had too much headway to be stopped, and in addition the brake gear had been blown away by another shell. Climbing back to try and set the brakes on the cars, Samson came across the wounded guard. He had been knocked off the top of the truck, and his foot catching in the framework of the car, he was being dragged along with his head and shoulders bumping on the ballast. The Canadian sergeant released his foot, but failed in his attempt to gather him up into the rapidly moving car. About one hundred yards ahead was another ammunition train, its cargo of high explosive shells being unloaded at a battery position. By good luck and a knowledge of braking, learned on the grades in the Rockies, Samson managed to slow down his train just as it reached the standing trucks, and a serious collision and explosion was avoided. Then, although the shell fire was extremely heavy, the sergeant went back and rescued the wounded guard. Samson won the Military Medal for this splendid exhibition of pluck."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PENNED IN

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

There is an infinite number of islands in the Pacific ocean, and there is a diversity of condition among the inhabitants of the different islands. Fifty years ago I knew more about them than I do now. When I was a boy of eighteen I shipped on a small steam vessel running from San Francisco among these islands, trading by the way. The captain, Simpson, was then quite an old man and had sailed among them for a number of years. He knew the character of the people of the different islands and told us that, while most of them were approachable, there were a few at which he would not care to touch unless with a numerous crew and with plenty of arms and ammunition.

During one of our voyages we had had luck from the start. Our crew was a small one when we left San Francisco. Two men were taken ill within a week after we left, and both died. Another fell down an open hatchway, and still another was washed overboard and lost.

We had passed the Hawaiians and crossed the equator not far from the international date line when we struck a northeaster that drove us on to a point directly north of the Fijis. During the storm we shipped a sea that drove one man headforemost against the bulwarks and washed another one overboard. This left us the captain, the mate and three seamen. Hardly had the storm blown itself out when something about the firebox gave out and we were obliged to let the fires go down in order to find out what it was. We had sail enough to keep steerage way, but no more.

Just before the captain gave the order to put out the fires I noticed him looking intently at an island lying off our port bow and heard him tell the mate that he believed it to be one from which on a previous voyage he had narrowly escaped with his life. Having found the natives bent on plunder and ready to strike any weak crew that came within their reach, he did not relish the idea of putting out the fires in that locality.

However, there was no choice in the matter, and when the firebox had cooled down one of our number went into it for an examination. Unfortunately the wind was blowing straight toward the island. Presently we saw a number of canoes coming out from the shore. The captain looked grave. Under sail we couldn't make four knots, and we were too few to defend ourselves against the swarm of dusky men who were coming for us. The mate suggested that they were only coming out for trade or to beg and wouldn't harm us. The captain said he knew better; they would murder us, take what they wanted and either set the ship to the shore or sink her.

The only chance there seemed to be for us was to hide. We all went down and got into the firebox, where a man was working, and closed the door. The latch fell and could be opened only from the outside. But this didn't trouble us, for the man who had been at work had his tools, and when we wanted to get out it would be possible for him to bore a hole near the latch so that it could be lifted.

The furnace room was pretty dark, and since we all packed ourselves in the far end of the firebox we were not likely to be seen except by a pair of first rate eyes. We waited in suspense till we heard men tramping about above. They must have been surprised to find the vessel deserted, but delighted as well, considering that there was much plunder for them. We heard them everywhere, evidently collecting what they wanted. The door of the firebox was opened twice, but whoever opened it shut it again without taking the trouble to make an examination.

The visitors remained on board till we began to feel the vessel rolling considerably; then the sounds suddenly ceased. It was evident that the sea was getting rough, and they did not dare stay longer. Then Captain Simmons directed the man who had been repairing the firebox to drill a hole so that the latch could be lifted.

Boring a hole in wood and iron are two different things. The one can be done in seconds; the other may take hours. The man had been drilling some time when we began to feel water on the firebox floor. Bringing the light the workman had with him, and by which he was drilling, to bear on the floor, we saw water trickling in at several points.

Every man of us paled. The ship had been scuttled, and we were penned in to be carried to the bottom.

The man who was drilling had splendid nerve. He did not lose his head, but kept steadily on, conscious of the fact that he must make an opening before the ship sank and not knowing how soon she would sink. When he was nearly through, removing his drill and putting in a steel implement, he hammered it through. In a few minutes he inserted his fingers and lifted the latch.

The water had made considerable headway, but not so much but that it could be seen pouring through an auger hole in the side. We plugged it and, rushing on deck, saw that we had been blown past the island and were drifting away from it. Then we manned the pumps for awhile, completed the work in the firebox and in due time were once more steaming safely on.

Start of Our Navy.

The United States navy has the distinction of being somewhat older than the government itself, for nine months before the actual Declaration of Independence congress authorized the construction of two "national" cruisers and appointed a committee to purchase vessels to form the nucleus of a fleet. Within three months of its appointment this committee got together fourteen armed vessels and appointed a personnel of officers, among whom was the famous old sea dog, John Paul Jones. During the war of the Revolution the infant navy captured as many as 866 prizes, but suffered so heavily that by the time peace was declared it had almost ceased to exist. A new start on a more ambitious scale was made in 1794.

The "Tawdry Saint."

St. Etheldreda has been unfortunate, inasmuch as her memory is perpetuated in the disagreeable adjective "tawdry," and she is sometimes even referred to as the "tawdry saint." In the Isle of Ely, where she died, a fair was formerly held in her honor, at which a peculiar kind of cheap but showy lace was sold, which, as St. Etheldreda's or St. Audrey's lace soon became proverbial and tawdry, an easy corruption of the saint's abbreviated name, was used to denote all things more gaudy than valuable.—London Chronicle.

The Use of Names.

Judge Glegerich of New York in denying the petition of a foreigner desiring to use an American name recently said: "I have the greatest objection to foreigners who take up their residence in this country assuming the names of old American families of New York. It causes embarrassment to men who are of high standing in the community and take pride in their family names."

Children Had Whooping Cough

Whooping cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

Whooping cough starts with sneezing, watering of the eyes, frritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. The coughing attacks occur frequently, but are generally more severe at night.

On the first sign of a "whoop" Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered, as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. George Cooper, Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure I can write and tell you that there never was a better cough medicine made than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Our children had whooping cough last winter, and that is the only thing that seemed to help them. It loosens up the phlegm so that they could raise it easily. I will never be without it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c. a bottle; put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COUP D'ETAT HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT IN RUSSIA

Kerensky is Deposed---Maximalists Are in Control and New Government Announces That It Will Propose An Immediate Separate Peace For Russia---Welsh Troops Make Successful Raid on Western Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, November 8.—Kerensky has been deposed.

The Maximalists have obtained control of Petrograd and issued a proclamation saying the new government will propose immediate peace. The Maximalists were assisted by the Petrograd garrison, which made possible the coup d'etat without bloodshed.

An exchange telegraph despatch from Petrograd says a strong detachment of troops of Soldiers' and Workmen's delegates occupied the Baltic railway station, and that the government commandeered all motor cars confining the troops to barracks.

A wireless despatch from Petrograd says that the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's delegatese has announced that the split in the Council has been healed, and that a call has been sent out for delegates from each 2,500 of the population to express the will of the Russian army.

NEW YORK, November 8.—News from Petrograd telling of the overthrow of the Russian Provisional Government precipitated a fresh slump in the stock market to-day after an early period of comparative strength.

Losses of two to five points were registered before noon by leading rails, shippings, coppers and war group as a whole.

WASHINGTON, November 8.—The general opinion here among those in a position to be best informed of Russian affairs, is that Kerensky and his followers probably will at once help the government at Moscow leaving Petrograd to the Maximalists and those troops who adhere to them. An armed clash is counted among the the first probabilities, but it is said here that the greater part of the army is expected to remain loyal to the Kerensky Government. Whether the new revolt will go the quick way of the Korniloff rebellion no one here ventures to predict. The War Council of co-belligerents just about to assemble in Europe to arrange the policies of co-ordination of the fighting forces, is not faced with a new and great problem at its very outset.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BURIAL OF FIRST AMERICAN DEAD A TOUCHING CEREMONY

United States Artillery Fired a Salvo of Shells Over Hun Lines as a Farewell Volley Instead of the Usual Blank Cartridges

THANKS FROM FRANCE

(By J. W. Pegler).

AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, Nov. 7.—(Delayed).—American artillerymen sent a salvo of shells whistling over to Boche land to-day as a farewell volley marking the burial of America's first dead from the firing line. It was fitting in the opinion of those whose eyes glistened with tears throughout the simple but dramatic funeral services that the volley which marked the last farewell should have been fired, not by a squad and with blank cartridges, but by American gunners shooting great French seventy-fives, and speeding each shell with a prayer that it would find its mark among the enemy.

DRAPED IN FLAGS.

The coffins of America's first dead in action were draped in the folds of flags for which they died. Comrades bore them to the centre of a hollow square formed by American soldiers and French troops. From the massed ranks there stepped a French General. He walked straight to three coffins, reverently hesitating at the first. Then he stiffened to the salute, doffed his cap, and bowed, his face lined as though the mute remains before him were of his own children.

"Private Enright," he said, softly, as he bowed before the nearest bier, "and Private Gresham," and he turned to the second; "and Private Hay," as he turned still further to face the third coffin, "in the name of France I bid you farewell. Of your own free will you left your happy, prosperous country and took your place by our side. You fell facing the foe, in desperate hand-to-hand fighting."

FAMILIES SHOULD BE PROUD.

The General hesitated a moment, looked at each of the three flag-draped coffins, and then turned. "All honour to them," he continued. "Their families should be proud to learn of their deaths. We of France ask that the mortal remains of these young men be left with us forever. We will inscribe on their tombs, 'Here lie the first United States soldiers to fall on French soil for liberty and justice.' Passers-by will uncover their heads to their graves, men visiting the battlefield will go out of their way to bring their tribute of respect and of gratitude.

"Private Enright, Private Gresham, Private Hay, in the name of France, I thank you. May God receive your souls. Farewell."

THE FINAL VOLLEY.

A great salvo of seventy-fives crashed the final volley of farewell through the leaden, rain-soaked air. Then stalwart American soldiers, tears trickling down their faces, lowered their comrades' remains and covered them over with the soil for which they fought and died. No one who saw the simple ceremony will ever forget it. Throughout the rain drizzled dismally. The detonation of the exploding shells and the shrieks of others passing through the air sung the soldiers' requiem.

Exemption Tribunals Heard Only Five Cases This Morning

Few Class One Men Took Advantage of the Opportunity of Making Oral Claims For Exemption and As No Cases Had Been Assigned by the Registrar the Duties of the Board Were Light.

712 HAVE REGISTERED

Peterborough's two Exemption Tribunals under the Military Service Act commenced their duties this morning, but in both cases the morning session was a light one. No claims for exemption filed at the local Post Office have been assigned by the Registrar for consideration by the local Tribunals for the balance of this week, and this leaves the Board free to deal with any oral claims that may be made. Class One men have this privilege to-day, or on Friday and Saturday, after which the only cases taken up will be those which have come through the Post Office and have been assigned to the Tribunals.

That there is some work ahead of the Boards is evidenced by the fact that up to noon to-day Postmaster Edgar had registered 677 claims for exemption. Fifty-eight claimed exemption yesterday, but there were only a few claims filed to-day. The Post Office will be open on Friday and Saturday evenings to accommodate Class One men who have not yet registered.

The total reports for service number thirty-five. One of those who reported was an Italian, who did not come under the provisions of the Act, but who wants to serve nevertheless.

At the Council Chamber.

There were only two applicants for exemption before Tribunal 276 at the Council Chamber, where Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., and Mr. J. A. Aylmer, with Mayor Duffus as military representative, are sitting. The long expected operation of the Exemption Boards apparently created no interest except to the two young men who made personal appeals for exemption. There was no audience and no embarrassing conditions for the appellants. They were called singly before the Board and invited to state their case, and if there had been an anticipation that the work of the Tribunals would be momentous it was entirely unrealized. The proceedings were almost colourless except for the momentary breakdown of Mrs. Ben. Jinks, who accompanied her son and presented the application for him.

Orville Jinks.

Orville Jinks, according to his mother's appeal, is practically her only support. In claiming exemption for him, she stated that her husband had joined the 93rd Battalion, but had been invalided home from England. He was now earning $2.50 a day, but couldn't work steadily. He had received no pension or any form of help from the Government.

The Board asked Mrs. Jinks to call her son from the Peterborough Lock Company, where he is employed.

On his appearance he stated that he had not been before a medical board.

"We read in the paper," his mother said, "that an appeal for exemption could be made without first going before the doctors."

Mr. Aylmer replied that he had the official regulations before him, and advised that the young man be first medically examined. He questioned the authenticity of press reports.

Mrs. Jinks replied that she had read the advertisements regarding the operations of the Military Act, and the announcement of the sitting of the Tribunals, and learned that her son had to appear before Exemption Board 276 in the Council Chamber, and that it was unnecessary for her son to go before the doctors before making a claim for exemption.

Her son is employed as assistant time and stock-keeper at the Peterborough Lock Company.

Both Mr. Moore and Mr. Aylmer renewed their advice that the young

Liberal Convention
West Peterborough

I am instructed by the Executive of the Liberal Association to call a Mass Meeting of the Liberals of West Peterborough for Saturday, the tenth day of November, A.D., 1917, at two o'clock p.m., at Victoria Hall (formerly known as Bradburn's Opera House), 332 George St., Peterborough, for the purpose of nominating a Candidate to contest the election of a member to represent West Peterborough in the Dominion House of Commons, and for the election of officers, etc.

DATED November 7th, 1917.

J. J. HARTLEY, President

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

MR. BURNHAM'S PROPOSAL

The following communication was printed in the Review, with the intimation at its close that a copy of it be sent to the Liberal Association:

To the Editor of The Review:

Some two years ago I was selected by the Conservatives of West Peterborough as their candidate at the next election. Since then a Union Government has been formed by the Prime Minister. Immediately upon its formation I submitted my support of it to the Prime Minister, and was thanked by him. I also communicated with the executive committee of the Conservative Association of West Peterborough, and my action was approved by it. The committee also pledged its support of the Union Government and of my candidature, on behalf of the Association which it represents, as it has power to do under the constitution and by-laws of the Association, made and adopted by a full convention. As the matter stands at present, therefore, I am a duly accredited Union candidate — "a" Union Government candidate, you will observe, not "the" Union Government candidate—and only the candidate chosen by the Conservatives of West Peterborough. If no one else comes out, there would be an election by acclamation. But it is open to the Liberal Association to do precisely as we have done, and if the Liberal Association selects as their standard-bearer a supporter of the Union Government, then it will be up to both of us to see which of us is to withdraw, if it should be deemed necessary for either of us to do so. In the event o ur being the only candidates, it might be considered desirable, however, that both of us should remain in the field, both getting the blessing of the Union Government, since whichever one was elected, he would be a supporter of the Union Government.

This might be considered desirable, since it cannot be denied that whoever is elected now will have the better chance at the election after the war of being elected. Therefore it is plain that both parties might like, if no harm is done now to the cause, to have both Union candidates remain in the field.

But the question takes on a different complexion when the possibility arises—as appears to be the case—of the Liberal convention selecting a Laurier candidate, and not a Union candidate.

I ventured to write to The Examiner yesterday, stating our case, and asking about the prospect, but did not get an answer, although there was a courteous reply.

This letter to you now is to let it be known, therefore, just where I stand and just where, doubtless, the Conservative executive and Association stand, viz.: for a compromise, if need be, on a Union Government candidate, but for no compromise if the Liberal convention choose a straight Laurier candidate.

If any other recognized party, such as the Labour party, for example, wishes to nominate a man, similar considerations would, no doubt, arise. When two gentlemen went about recently in the two ridings (as your correspondent pointed out), asking that all party candidates should be banished and that they themselves should be chosen as representatives, they failed to see the peculiarity of the position in which they placed themselves. It is not necessary to say more about that.

To conclude, therefore, let me repeat that we hope all parties will join in choosing one or more Union Government candidates. We are ready to consider any such proposition from any recognized convention. But manifestly there cannot be any compromise with an opponent of the Borden Union Government, nor with people nominating themselves for the position on the pretence of being exclusively the only reliable win-the-war champions or on any other similar and somewhat specious pretext.

A copy of this letter is being sent to the Liberal Association.

J. H. BURNHAM.

If Mr. Burnham is sincere in making his proopsal, he should first resign the party nomination he says he has had for two years, and leave the selection of a Unionist candidate to a convention to be called by supporters of Union government. In that event the supporters of Union government in this riding will have a fair chance to select a candidate who would be acceptable to all those whose sole purpose is to win the war through the agency of a Union government.

There are many in both political parties in West Peterborough, who have just as much right to be nominated as Union candidates as Mr. Burnham has; and to clear the situation let him resign and take his chances of being the choice of a Unionist convention.

In his present party relations, Mr. Burnham has no right of claim to being selected as a candidate of the Union government, unless the head of the government, Sir Robert Borden, goes back on his declaration, that no person will be recognized as a candidate of the Union government who is the nominee of a party or partizan organization.

If Mr. Burnham's "hope that all parties will join in chosing one or more Union government candidates," is to be realized, it is obvious that he cannot be one of them so long as he maintains his claim that he is the candidate "of the Conservatives of West Peterborough."

In connection with the proposition of Mr. Burnham as to "choosing one or more Union candidates," he might define, for public enlightenment, who is meant by the "we" in the comment —"we are ready to consider any such proposition coming from any recognized convention."

If Mr. Burnham is sincere in his desire to have the Union government represented in West Peterborough by a real Union candidate, let him resign his present party candidature and thus clear the field for the nomination of a Unionist candidate, who can, consistently with its declared policy, be recognized by the Union government.

WHAT MAKES IT.

General Mewburn, Minister of Militia, said at Hamilton, that "public was what you made it." One would like to know what process is to be employed to make public opinion as one likes. If the process of manufacture of public opinion is anything like the expression of it through the Borden government's disfranchising franchise act, we don't want a new industry introduced in Canada.

Persons who need reinforcements for their coal bin can sympathise with the demand of our soldiers at the front for a little more home backing.

ELECTION OF ALDERMEN.

There is much to be said for the proposal of Alderman McIntpre of electing aldermen by general vote of the whole body of city electors. It is the way Peterborough tried for a time and with satisfactory results, except to some who had reasons unconnected with the effective representtaion of the city and the public interests. The election by general vote seems to work very well in the case of the members of the Board of Education. The membership of that body is generally of a high character, and the services of the Board generally satisfatcory and in many cases gratifying. It seems only in accord with the proper idea of representative government that a representative in any such body should represent more than a mere fraction of the citizens entitled to select their municipal business managers.

A UNION CANDIDATE.

The Cabinet of the Union Government has a committee to which is entrusted the matter of designating candidates who will be acceptable to the Government. If there is to be a Union candidate in West Peterborough, the Cabinet committee has some work to do here. Those who are loyal to the Union Government and favour the measures it considers essential to its greatest strength and usefulness, will respect its wishes and policy. The Union Government refuses to recognise any candidate as representing its interests or wishes who is the nominee of a partizan organisation. The Union Government was organised on the theory of eliminating party interests and ambition and concentrating the whole energies of the country in an administration whose object was to enlist the whole soul and strength of the country in the work of winning the war.

If the Canadians in France or Flanders want us to add to the joy of our hearts, the use of our voices in tribute to their valour, they should capture some places with pronounceable names.

THE LAST MAN AND THE LAST DOLLAR.

We have had, often repeated, many statements by public men of varying importance and responsibility, that Canada was in this war to "the last man and the last dollar." Of course, this declaration is not to be taken literally; but even in its academic and figurative sense, it expresses the earnest determination of Canada to measure up with splendid completeness to her responsibility and duty.

We are making a mighty struggle to carry out one part of the slogan. We are making national and systematic efforts to get the last man, and in this we have resorted to a drastic compulsory measure, whose only defence is its necessity and promised efficiency to secure the desired result—the last man, of course, figuratively speaking. There is need for this if we are to redeem our double pledge—the last man and the last dollar.

But are we taking a similar, not to say drastic, but energetic course to secure the last dollar. We trusted to appeal and voluntary action to recruit our ranks till, from one cause or other—not altogether confined to the manhood of the country—appeal to the voluntary spirit became barren and ineffective. We have appealed to the voluntary spirit in the matter of enlisting the last dollar, and, if we regard the result, here also the voluntary spirit has failed. We conscript men, but we have not conscription of wealth. If we had done this better long ago, there would not have been aroused so much of the spirit of resentment and sense of unfairness and inequality of demand and treatment, that, no doubt, had a large influence in progressively deadening and finally extinguishing the voluntary spirit of recruiting.

We have had extensive profiteering out of this war; to an extent that in part creates, and emphasizes, the national demand for more money. It is not too much to demand that conscription be applied to these swollen profits, as well as to the men, who have only refrained from offering for active service, but have not made gross profits out of the agony of those who have gone to fight, and of those upon whom their sacrifice has reacted at home.

It is to be hoped that Hon. Mr. Carvell's declaration at Hamilton, that unrighteous—if not unrighteous, inordinately—large war profits were to be got after, it is an earnest of the policy of the new government to conjoin conscription of wealth with conscription of men, a measure not only of justice, but a wonderful impulse to the object of getting, the last dollar, as we are, in a sense, getting the last man.

We have the splendid patriotism of the Victory Loan presented to us. The money is needed; the people have the money, and we should get the 150 millions. But the appeal to popular response would come much more quickly if the money, as well as the man should be brought under the conscription squeeze.

The principle of democracy for which we are fighting implies equality of demand of service and equality of treatment— without distinction of class or individual.

FAIR PLAY.

Mr. Editor,—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper. In the Tuesday evening edition I read an article favouring an appointment of a fuel inspector, which I consider a good move. As to look into some of the cases cited to in the Monday evening issue, of which Alderman Dobbin said he did not believe the statement made in the letter. Perhaps Alderman Dobbin would not believe a statement, be it ever so true, if it would shield a few of his friends. I believe what the man said to be true who delivered the coal, and is prepared to back up his statement, for he said he told the man it was a-d——d shame for people to be hoarding up coal when other people can't get it and are in need, and the man referred to as having the sixteen tons, never answered a word, and this driver came back and told Mr. Lytle who delivered the coal from the municipal man, and perhaps Alderman Dobbin will remember Mr. Lytle calling him down over the 'phone about it. The citizens who need coal think it would be a wise plan to inspect the cellars and coal elevators.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
RATEPAYER.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—There have been recently certain reflections, designed to discredit the local gentlemen who have been actively associated with the "Win the War Movement" since the inception. It will be recalled that this organization was formed a year or so ago to advocate compulsory service. Since then they have not changed their attitude and to-day they are among the most ardent supporters of the Unionist, pro-conscription government. With the position of their plans, in the passing of the Military Service Bill, their object has practically been accomplished; but instead of dropping their interest and discontinuing their efforts to secure adequate machinery for the reinforcement of the Canadian soldiers at the front they are lined up behind the Unionist party, which Sir Robert Borden, himself, has endorsed, and rather anxiously recommended to recalcitrants among his own party, of whom Mr. J. H. Burnham and his little following are not the least conspicuous. In justice to the Peterborough "Win-the-War League" it must be recognized that when Premier Borden was assuring the people that conscription would not be introduced in Canada delegations representing the "Win-the-War League" made frequent and comparatively fruitless trips to Ottawa, Kingston, and elsewhere, trying to impress the military authorities with the gathering need of a new and more effective system of obtaining reinforcements. When Mr. Burnham made his spectacular balk on the Conscription measure, for which the local Conservative paper read him out of the party, the "War-the-War Leaguers" were steadfastly behind the government and have never altered their position.

Yet Mr. Burnham was noticeably absent from the recent meeting which the League, as a non-partisan body, held here for the purpose of smoothing the way to a Union Convention. He would not pretend that the League was not strongly in favour of the proposed Union Government, and yet he ignored the invitation to attend, and thereby indicate that he was for union and what Sir Robert Borden has declared it represents. Furthermore, some of his followers have spoken and written disparagingly of the "Win-the-War League," of which apparently, they are not and never have been, members. It is unnecessary to point out that these criticisms of the "Win-the-War League" are unfair and undeserved, for the conscriptive measure they demanded a year ago is just the same measure that the Union party names to-day as the first and main plank in its platform.

WHERE PETEBOROUGH'S MONEY GOES, AND WHO IS AT FAULT

Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I am a working man and felt that I should not let this chance slip by. I noticed in to-night's Examiner a Peterborough storekeeper's advertisement. It read: "And in order that the working man will not miss these values, we are keeping our store open till 7 p.m." Now, this storekeeper sees a light, and it is real and great, but he dare not look after 7 p.m. till 5 a.m., and then he can sell. He knows that the working man was at work all day, and so had no chance to buy his wares. He therefore keeps open to the limited time. (My thanks to him.)

But at 6 p.m. the working man goes home (and wisely) to dine with his family. And by the time supper is over, he must make up his mind that he has missed that chance; so he sits back from the table and reads the paper (Examiner), and his wife gets busy clearing up the dishes and afterwards tidying up the room. But the working man reads on without notice as she picks up the catalogue.

—Yours, Subscriber.

Peterborough, Nov. 6, 1917.

Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Your answer to my letter in yesterday evening's edition of your paper may sound plausible to many, but the points you made are easily met.

Before proceeding to do so, let me point out that you neglected to answer two allegations I made which I considered would have undoubtedly received an answer from you. Firstly, That the Examiner has not yet on any occasion declared itself in favour of Union; and secondly, That Mr. R. R. Hall is rumoured from authoritative sources to be the coming Liberal candidate in West Peterborough as a Laurier Liberal.

It seems that you, by your silence, concede these two points, and if so, that clears the air considerably, and we know just where we are at. In saying we and us, I am speaking as one of that part of the general public that is in favour of the Union Government, to which, it seems, we are not allowed to add the Liberals as a party.

I quite understand that a Union convention would probably be composed of 50 per cent. Liberals and 50 per cent. Conservatives, but it would be quite an easy matter for the 50 per cent. Liberals, along with a few disgruntled Conservatives, to nominate a candidate who would be incapable of successfully contesting an election with Mr. R. R. Hall who knows, and is not against using every political trick going.

There is in Ottawa at present a committee of men who are to decide which candidate in each constituency is to be supported by the Union Government, and it will not take them long to decide which one is to be supported in West Peterborough after Mr. R. R. Hall has been nominated as a Laurier Liberal.

The prominent Conservative mentioned was talking through his hat, and the Examiner could only have been led astray by its keen desire to believe his statement. The very fact that Capt. Burnham's resignation was never accepted proves that he is still the candidate of the Conservative party.

Your allegation that Cabinet ministers have refused to come to Peterborough otherwise than on behalf of a Union candidate may be true. If so, Sir George Foster's letter to Capt. Burnham, accepting with pleasure on behalf of himself and Mr. Carvell, as stated in last night's Review, must show the Cabinet's endorsation of Capt. Burnham as a Union candidate.

Win-the-war Liberals will not need to do any deep thinking when called upon to choose between Capt. Burnham and a Laurier Liberal.

In conclusion let me say that every voter knows of Capt. Burnham's keen desire to see Conscription brought into force. The voters have not forgotten his connection with the glorious 93rd, and that he would hav gon to the trenches if his age had permitted. Perhaps it is not generally known that all of his military pay was given to the Red Cross and other patriotic societies. Many a family in Peterborough has been comforted by messages brought by him from their loved ones in the trenches, to which he paid a long visit when he could not go as a fighting unit.

Capt. Burnham can rest assured that West Peterborough voters will show their appreciation when at the polls.—Yours truly,

J. W. Worth.

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS

An Opinion

The following is taken from the New York Sun:

Charles L. Craig, Comptroller-elect, last night prepared a statement on the result of the election. He had prefaced it with this comment, delivered to the newspapers through Congressman Hulbert:

"It looks to me, from present indications, as if the committee of 250 did not all vote for Mitchel and Prendergast." Then a few moments later he made the following more formal statement:

"The election is a triumph of democracy. It conclusively demonstrates that no amount of misrepresentation can mislead the people of Greater New York. The beneficial influence of an un-Garvized public school system is reflected by the intelligence with which the people have discriminated against a volume of falsehood, calumny and misrepresentation unparalleled in an American election.

"A systematic attempt with an unlimited campaign fund to mislead the people as to the controlling issues of the campaign has failed completely. The controlling issue in this campaign was whether New York should reflect unscrupulous and incompetent officials. Patriotism was never an issue. I was a mere cover or disguise behind which the defeated candidates sought to avoid discussion of their iniquitous record.

"There are no more patriotic men in America than those elected on the Democratic ticket. There never was, there is not now and there never can be any question as to the wholehearted loyalty and unreserved devotion of these men to the cause of Americanism, as represented by President Wilson and Congress in their efforts to make the world safe for democracy."

MUSIC IN THE HOME

METHOD IN EXPRESSION.

A little book called The Technique of Musical Expression was written some years ago by a New York opera coach. It is not generally known, perhaps because of the contradiction in the title. One generally thinks that technique and expression are terms so distinct as to defy co-ordination. The ability to play certain notes on the piano in correct rythm and tempo and with good tone is necessary before the artist can begin to search out and express the message of the composer. Yet this searching out itself has a method and there are a few rules that must be followed by player or singer. For example, as one approached a climax, marked in the music by an ascending scale passage, it is necessary to quicken the time a little until the climax note is reached. Then a sudden slowing of the time for a measure or two is wonderfully effective. In how many ways this simple rule can be applied no one can tell. Its possibilities are infinite yet every singer must needs find it out for himself unless he has studied with a teacher of sound method and long experience.

Another rule, quite as important is that the general rhythm of the composition must be observed rigidly in order to make the necessary variation at the proper time most effective. Many singers are utterly deficient in rhythm, and seemingly believe that the composer of the music did not know what he was doing. Long drawings upon every other note and a lack of understanding of time-values make singing a public nuisance. It is worth while to play over several times a record by any great singer, such, for example, as Marie Rappold or Alma Gluck, just to observe how closely she adheres to the specified time, how careful she is about rhythmic accent. All the great artists are in the habit of singing with an orchestra and the soul of a good orchestra is rhythm and accentuation. Let the singer therefore practice with a metronome until he or she has a thorough appreciation of the "swing" of the composition. Then let him or her select climatic points for broader or livlier treatment and the result will be surprising.

Few people realize how valuable as an aid to the study of singing a phonograph can become. Nearly all the great artists make records in these days and a singer with good sense and a good ear can profit amazingly from a careful study of some artist's method. The advantage of being able to play a record over and over again must be apparent to everyone. Expression has a "technique," and this is the best way to acquire it.

WHY CHORAL SOCIETIES SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED.

There are those in every city who take a deep interest in the community's musical life and who feel that the choral societies are deserving of more encouragement. Others again are a step more ambitious and urge not only a greater support for the existing choruses, but the formation of still more choral organizations. Touching upon the possibilities of choral music in the lives of the masses, is this expression of opinion by Waldo Selden Pratt in his "History of Music' which states the case clearly and without speaking disparingly of any other class of music: "In the competition for popular effectiveness and artistic achievement choral music is noticeably handicapped. Orchestral music is supported and purveyed by salaried bands of professional players under constant discipline and giving frequent concerts in extended series, often in more than one place. But choral music, with comparatively few exceptions, is set forth by volunteer organizations largely made up of amateurs, having much less rehearsal and giving concerts at much longer intervals. The consequence of all this is that the resources of choral music are popularly not as well understood as those of orchestral music, its repertory is relatively unfamiliar and, in some cases, the fine success of particular composers with it is comparatively unknown. Even if we allow for the obvious fact that choral effects cannot vie with orchestral in variety and in certain kinds of intensity, it is only fair to remember also that choral music has not even yet attained the artistic eminence that is possible, simply because in most places it has not been given similar opportunity."

QUESTIONS FOR PARENTS

The first year of the child's life — roughly speaking from birth to the age of six—constitute the most important period of the child's whole existence," writes Miriam Finn Scott in the October Good Housekeeping, and explains her statement by saying: "It is during this period that the child covers a greater area of growth than during all the rest of his life combined it is during this period that the child's instincts begin to reach out, when his habits are established, when he is most impressionable, most formative, and most imitative; and since it is that during this period that he spends practically all his time in the home, or under its direct influence, it logically follows that we must seek to make the home the most normal and potent factor in the child's existence. Is your home founded upon some wrong ideal? Or is the emphasis laid upon what comparatively speaking, should be a secondary reason for the home's existence? For instance, have you allowed your pride as housekeeper to become a ruling passion with the result that the children seem always to be hauled before the household court on the charge of disorderly conduct Have you let the idea of furnishings develop a disproportionate importance? Have you permitted the comfort, peace and quiet of the adults to become the major motive of the home—and allowed yourself to give secondary consideration to the comfort and equipment of the children? Do you consider the child's mental and nervous make-up? Has hospitality become the dominant aim and purpose of your home? I do not mean to disparage friendship or underrate the fine qualities of true hospitality; but where hospitality is overvalued and overpractised, the result is that time, strength and thought are given to social affairs which should be given to the children."

IN THE CHOIR LOFT.

Church choristers often become bored. Perhaps one reason lies in the incessant repetition of anthems which they have known for ten years more or less, anthems simple in their design, commonplace in their intervals, and not artistically worthy. There is no field of music where more novelties abide than in the cases of octave church anthems. Judicious browsing by the choirmsater in a music store is a profitable and interesting activity, not only for him, but for the choristers and for the congregation. Some of the newer works are of reasonable difficulty but of exceptional vigor and emotional appeal. Perhaps the interest of the choir would be revived by a change from the agreeable inanities of Simper and F. C. Maker, and a peep into the pages of Noble.

Here arises the old question. Is it better to do an easy thing well or a difficult thing poorly? Certainly the easy thing well done will always be more satisfactory. But in these days most city choirs can do the difficult thing well. Therefore, why should they be tied to trivialities? Boredom is the death of a choir. Boredom can be cured by enthusiasm in the director, provided that enthusiasm is the product of knowledge. Enthusiasm will seek out new and beautiful things —it will insist on careful performance of everything attempted.

THERE IS NOTHING FOR THE LIVER

SO GOOD AS MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels and will tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 59 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful, I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

THE DEATH OF MR. S. T. WOOD

TORONTO, Nov. 8—Mr. S. T. Wood a well known newspaper man, and a naturalist of wide experience, whose recent book, "Ramblings of a Canadian Naturalist," delighted many readers, died at his home, 168 Dunn avenue, on Tuesday night, after an illness of more than a month. Although Mr. Wood had been in failing health for some time he was able be about town. It was not until a month ago that he was confined to his bed. Since then he gradually became weaker until he succumbed to his illness.

His father, Mr. Samuel Wood, a native of England, is now 85 years of age. His mother, who was of Irish birth, died some years ago. His eldest son, Sam. D., is employed in the post office; his youngest son, Lieut. Frank Wood, reputed to be about the best swimmer in Ontario, attached for some months past to the Royal Naval Air Service overseas, is now on his way home to see his father, but will be too late. Mr. Wood's first wife was Miss Frances Dwyer of Sandhill, Ont., who died six years ago. His second wife, formerly Miss Dora Speers, daughter of the late Dr. Speers of Toronto, survives.

Born on a backwoods farm in the township of Wollaston, Hastings county, on January 16, 1860, Mr. Wood came naturally by his love for nature. He was rocked as a baby in a birch bark cradle and his childish slumbers were sometimes disturbed by the howl of wolves. At the age of five the lad's family moved to Belleville, and there he was educated at the Public and High schools, and the Belleville Business College. He spent a year in Peterboro before coming to Toronto in 1885, where he took up the vocation of steam fitter. He became an ardent single tax advocate and took part in many park meetings as a "soap box orator." The views on social reform then voiced so earnestly were as tenaciously held to the end of his days. The late Mr. Wood was a member of the Toronto Globe staff.

Chemong Reserve Indian Opposed to Vote

Another member of the Chemong Indian reserve was in the city to-day, and in conversation with a representative of the Examiner, protested against the action of Chief Whetung in advocating the enfranchisement of the Indians.

"If any Indians want the vote let them get out of the reserve altogether, live as the white men live and pay taxes to the Government," was the way this member of the reserve expressed his view of the Indian franchise seekers. "The Indians are content to remain as they are," he added.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

"If dyspeptics, sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well-known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

PETERBORO' CLUB OR ROYAL BANK FLAT FOR THE WAR VETERANS

G. W. V. A. Prefer the Former and Sub-Committee Has Been Appointed to Meet the Executive of the Peterborough Club—Veterans and Citizens' Committee Meet.

The securing of suitable temporary quarters for the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association has narrowed down to a choice between the quarters at the Peterborough Club, if the necessary arrangements can be made, and the top floor of the Royal Bank Building, with the former as the Veterans' first choice.

This was the concrete result of the meeting last night in the City Council Chambers between the executive of the G.W.V.A. and the citizens' committee. The matter was discussed at some length and finally a motion was passed authorizing Mayor Duffus to name a joint sub-committee to wait upon the executive of the Peterborough Club to see if suitable arrangements can be made for the use of the club by the G.W.V.A., and in the event of this not being possible, to go into the question of the cost of renting and furnishing the Royal Bank flat and report back to a public meeting.

The committee named by the Mayor to represent the citizens consisted of Messrs. G. N. Gordon, and E. A. Peck, Alderman Dobbin and himself, while the Veterans' nominees for the committee were Comrades H. J. Staunton, S. Whatley, G. Coleman and W. Hughes.

The Veterans were represented at the meeting by President H. J. Staunton, Secretary S. Whatley, Treasurer G. E. Coleman, Financial-Secretary Fred Haggart, Sergt.-at-Arms R. H. Muir, and Comrades E. Bird, W. Hughes and T. W. Quinn, members of the executive committee. The members of the Citizens' Committee present were Mayor Duffus, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. S. T. Medd, B. F. Ackerman, G. N. Gordon and E. A. Peck.

When the meeting was opened, President Staunton of the Veterans, said that a number of places had been looked over, including the Peterborough Club and the Royal Bank Building, and the members of the G.W.V.A. had decided that the Peterborough Club would be the most suitable if arrangements could be made for it as temporary quarters with the understanding that later on a campaign could be made for a permanent building.

Mr. G. N. Gordon remarked that the members of the Peterborough Club were all men who had made sacrifices and shown themselves patriotic and willing to do all that could be done. He was sure that the Club executive would deal with a request from the Veterans in a fair and just way, and had no doubt but that arrangements might be made to have the Veterans use the club with such members of the Peterborough Club who use it now.

Mrs. Morris enquired from the Veterans if it would meet their views to use the quarters in conjunction with other people.

"The general feeling among our members is that we would like to have a place for themselves," replied President Staunton.

Mrs. Morris remarked that it was not at all likely that the Peterborough Club would consider any other proposition than that of selling the place outright.

Mrs. Medd was of the opinion that the Peterborough Club proposition would be an expensive one, as contrasted with the Royal Bank flat.

Mayor Duffus informed the meeting that the yearly rental of the latter would be around $300 a year. His Worship suggested that a sub-committee might be appointed to meet the Peterborough Club executive.

President Staunton agreed with this suggestion.

Mr. E. A. Peck remarked that he had thought that the Peterborough Club proposition had been abandoned and had expected that the choice would have been the Royal Bank, which could be secured at a reasonable rent. He thought that it might be possible to make temporary arrangements, say for a year, in the Royal Bank Building, and was sure that the citizens would be glad to come forward with the necessary funds.

Comrade R. H. Muir thought there would be heavy expenses in connection with the Peterboroopgh Club, and wanted to know who would have to assume that obligation. It was an expensive place to heat and the caretaker alone would cost $600 or $700.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman favoured the Royal Bank Building. If this was decided upon there would be no difficulty in the way and a successful appeal could be made to the citizens for funds.

Mrs. Morris was of the opinion that the Peterborough Club would prove an expensive building.

Mr. Gordon said that it was not suggested that the Veterans should pay. His idea was that the present members of the Peterborough Club would be glad to continue to pay their membership fee and maintain the Club, sharing the use of the rooms with the Veterans.

Mrs. Morris remarked that it was not fair that the Peterborough Club members who were men who were called to give largely to everything, should have to assume the increased cost of the club that would necessarily arise out of the admittance of a large number of members.

President Staunton remarked that if it were at all possible, the Veterans would like to get the Peterborough Club.

Mrs. Medd believed that the Veterans could be made comfortable for less expense in the Royal Bank Building.

Mr. Peck said that they must agree with the views of the Veterans, no matter what their personal opinion might be. It was up to the citizens to endeavour to do for the Veterans what they desired to be done. Mr. Peck accordingly moved, seconded by Comrade Muir, that a sub-committee be appointed as outlined above, and the motion carried unanimously.

The meeting then adjourned.

To Get Rid of Wrinkles And Bad Complexions

It is more important now than during the period of profuse perspiration, to keep the pores clean. All cosmetcis clog the pores. In cool weather this interferes greatly with elimination of waste material, injuring instead of aiding the complexion. Ordinary mercolized wax serves all the purposes of creams, powders and rouges, giving far beter results. It actually peels off an offensive skin, at the same time unclogging the pores. Minute particles of scarf skin come off day by day, causing not the least discomfort. Gradually the healthy, younger skin beneath peeps out, and in less than a fortnight you have a lovelier complexion than you ever dreamed of acquiring. Mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is spread on nightly like cold cream and washed off mornings. One ounce usually suffices.

For removing wrinkles, without stopping the pores with pasty stuff here's a never-failing formula: One ounce powdered saxolite, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this daily for awhile; every line will vanish completely. Even the first application gives surprising results.

KINMOUNT, Nov. 8.—Many aged people are dropping out of this life this autumn, the last of whom to go, Mrs. John Flaherty, of Swamp Lake Settlement. She wandered away from her home on Friday last as she had been in the habit of wandering away very frequently, and did not return. The family and neighbours searched earnestly for her all night. She was 76 years of age and leaves her husband and three sons, Dan, of Digby Twp., George, of the 109th Battn., who is now in the trenches, and Edward on the homestead. NEW ROUND HOUSE FOR LINDSAY

Lindsay, Nov. 8. — At a meeting of the town council, the Grand Trunk Railway Company, through Superintendent Macmillan, made a request to the council that George street, between Adelaide street and Albert street, be closed. This request was made because of the fact that the company had decided to construct the new round house, machine shop, and boiler house, at a point between Adelaide street and Albert street, and along the Toronto tracks.

The original site of the round house was just south and west of the site now decided on.

Supt. Macmillan, addressing the council, said: "Some time last spring we planned to build a round house, machine shop and coal house here, costing thousands of dollars, but conditions altered our plans somewhat. We will, however, build the coal house this fall and the round house and machine shop next summer. The site selected was not suitable owing to the grade and the fact that residences were constructed nearby, so we have decided to build alongside the Toronto line. To enable the G. T.R. to do this I have been asked to interview the council and request you to close George street. When asked by the officials regarding this request I replied that I did not think the council would hesitate when it ascertained the benefits that would accrue from the change in the plans."

A resolution was unanimously adopted acceding to the request of the G.T.R. The clerk was instructed to prepare a bylaw closing the street.

SIDEWALKS ARE VERY SLIPPERY

A number of citizens are complaining of the slippery condition of the sidewalks in the early morning due to a number of merchants sprinkling the walks with water prior to sweeping them off. This is a dangerous practice, as the water freezes and leaves the walks in a very slippery condition.

A Truly Patriotic Record

One of the biggest patriotic song hits since the war started is the song "We're From Canada," by the well-known Toronto composer, Miss Irene Humble. This splendid song can be had, sung by Alan Turner, on Victor Record 17565, sold by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Ltd.

The other side of the record holds the fine song "Strike for the Grand Old Flag."—B. H. Britton, Manager, Royal Bank Building, corner George and Hunter streets.

The Military Service Act, 1917

CANADA

A REMINDER

for Class One Men—
Go to the Post Office Today!

WHY WAIT!

The Proclamation which issued under the Military Service Act calls on all bachelors and widowers without children (not otherwise excepted) who were 20 years old on 13th October, 1917, and whose 34th birthday did not occur before January 1st, 1917, to report for service or claim exemption on or before

November 10th, 1917

All that is needed immediately is for the report or claim to be made on the forms obtainable at any Post Office in Canada, and left with the Postmaster for transmission.

There is nothing to be gained by delay

On the contrary Class One men will avoid the congestion probable on the 8th, 9th and 10th of November, if they perform their duty under the law at once.

Claims for exemption may be made by the Class One man himself, his employer, or by a near relative, but not more than one claim should be made for any one man.

EVERY Man in Class One Must Report for Service or Claim Exemption.

Issued by The Military Service Council.

S&B X

The realistic photo-drama based on Russian history for the past twenty years, "The Fall of the Romanoffs," will be shown for three days at the Grand Opera House with a matinee every day commencing at 2:30, commencing Monday, November 12. It is a significant fact that when the picture was presented in New York every seat in the theatre for an entire week was sold out two weeks in advance. Theatre patrons may judge from this the type of spectacle it is. It deals with the intrigue which led up to the overthrow of the Russian dynasty. It has as an actual performer Iliodor, a leading participant in the great game of state. It is a revelation of the redeeming work of Kerensky, the Prime Minister. And when presented at the Grand Opera House, Toronto, drew the largest crowds that have attended this theatre. Hundreds were turned away nightly.

These goods are still arriving, and much has not even been opened. The executors of the estate have ordered us to reduce this stock by about $50,000, and this amount must be sold before January 1st. Consequently nothing is spared; the price on every article is marked at a figure that will ensure its sale. The Royal Theatre has arranged for the appearance on Friday and Saturday of this week of the great Battle Picture, "The Battle of Arras," which has been at Shea's Theatre, Toronto, this week.

There will be an awful crowd to see this picture. Better arrange to go to the matinees Friday and Saturday, and avoid a big crowd.

In order that you might see this film we would ask that as many as can make it convenient, will attend the matinees.

The picture was authorized by the British War Office, and approved by the Department of Militia and Defence.

MILITIA AND DEFENCE CANADA DEPARTMENTAL OFFICE

OTTAWA Aug. 24th, 1917.

I would be glad if every man and woman in Canada were to see these pictures—the most vividly interesting series that has yet come from the war zone. They cannot fail to be a source of inspiration to all who see them, illustrating as they do the unfailing cheerfulness, the indomitable spirit and the resourcefulness of our Canadian soldiers in all the difficult and trying conditions of modern warfare.

A. E. Kemp

Exemption Tribunals, etc.

"Won't you give me any hope that he will be exempted," Mrs. Jinks asked.

Mr. Aylmer replied that she should not anticipate worry and trouble.

"I have suffered everything in this war," Mrs. Jinks stated. She told how she had been distressed about the condition of her husband when he had been invalided in camp with rheumatism, and finally sent home. She had attended him constantly, and he hadn't received a pension or any help from the Government.

Mr. Moore remarked that her case was not worse than his. He had two sons in the trenches.

"Your wife was not at the front; my husband was," answered Mrs. Jinks with feminine logic that carried a tone of finality. She presented a statement from Dr. McGrath that he had treated Orville Jinks for nervous trouble.

The Boards opinion prevailed, and mother and son left for the Armouries, where Orville expected to be examined at once and reappear before the Tribunal for exemption.

Jos. C. Laplante.

Joseph G. Laplante, 275 Romaine Street, applied for exemption on the ground of infirmity. He had been placed in A II. Class by the local Medical Board, but claimed that for fourteen years he had been troubled with a sore foot, which the doctors overlooked.

"It keeps me busy trying to do a day's work," he said. "Only one doctor signed my medical sheet. They just looked at the foot when I told them it hurt me all the time. I suppose they thought I was trying to put a bluff over them. But they should have been able to see that the arch was broken and that my foot was twisted. I want another examination. Dr. Greer is the only member of the Board that signed my medical sheet, and all three doctors should have signed it. I think I am entitled to a careful examination of my foot instead of them just looking at it."

Mr. Laplante received an order from the Tribunal, asking the Medical Board to sign his sheet and to examine the foot he claimed rendered him unfit.

He stated that he is employed by the Canadian Canoe Company at their factory on Rink Street. He has four brothers, two of whom are married and two single. One of the latter lives in Toronto, the other is at home.

Mr. Laplante was asked why he did not submit his claim in writing, and replied that he understood that appeals made in person would be heard by the Tribunal on these three days. Hence he took advantage of the opportunity of stating, instead of writing, the particulars of his case.

Mr. Laplante returned to the Tribunal with his medical sheet signed by all three doctors, whose classification of A II. remained unchanged. The Tribunal rejected the appeal, and it was understood that Mr. Laplante would carry his case to the Appeal Tribunal.

At the Court House.

Three cases came before Tribunal Number 275, over which His Honour Judge Huycke presides, assisted by Police Magistrate Dumble. The military representative of this Board is Lieut.-Col. F. B. Clegg.

Mrs. A. Bertrand, 681 Union street, appeared in person to apply for exemption for her son, Wilbur A. Bertrand, who drives a delivery waggon for J. T. Braund, corner Smith and George streets. Mrs. Bertrand is prepared to testify that this son is her sole support, as her husband is deceased and one other son is at the front, and has been wounded three times, and is again in the trenches. His Honour Judge Huycke informed Mrs. Bertrand that her son would not be required to appear before the Board until November 23rd, and on that date her case would receive consideration.

Must Be Examined.

Joseph Firth, 266 Euclid avenue, claimed exemption on account of "exceptional domestic position." Firth gave his age as thirty-two years and said he was born in Peterborough. He claims to be the only one left in the family to take care of his mother and stepfather, who reside on the Dummer Road. The step-father is a gardener by occupation, while Firth is a teamster and at present has a team employed with the Leonard Construction Company. Firth said his mother was in poor health and was subject to "bad spells," one of which she took this morning and had not recovered at the time of Firth's appearance before the tribunal.

"Do you claim exemption on any other grounds?" enquired Judge Huycke.

"Well I have arranged to take out wood this winter. Some time ago I engaged men and got the camp in shape for this work," replied Firth.

"Didn't you know there was a war on?" asked the Judge.

"I did, but I had the same camp a year ago," replied the applicant.

Judge Huycke reminded Firth that the war had been on for three years.

"People have got to have wood," countered Firth.

"Perhaps and perhaps not. I do not consider it a work of national importance."

Firth who had not been examined was asked to present himself before the Medical Board on Monday for examination.

A Peculiar Case.

Mr. Isadore Simmons proved a more difficult problem for the Board to deal with. After some discussion it was finally left with Mr. Joseph Wearing, who happened in at the time, to look up the legal aspects of the case and if possible determine the nationality of Mr. Simmons. The applicant, who is about thirty years of age, is proprietor of the Simmons Fur Company, 180½ Simcoe street. His parents came from Russian Poland. Some years ago when a revolution was in progress in that country, the parents of Isadore Simmons fled to Great Britain. On their way to England they stopped in Paris for a couple of days where Isadore was born. Isadore went on to England with his parents and resided in that country for twenty years, but was never naturalized. About six years ago he came to Canada and while here has never taken out naturalization papers. The question arises—is the applicant Russian, French or British? Mr. Simmons is asking for exemption. About two years ago he was arrested in Kingston and accused of being a German spy. Subsequently he was released, but the seven hundred dollars which he claims to have had with him when arrested was never returned. He states that he has written to the militia authorities several times about the matter and in reply claims to have been warned not to bother the authorities or he will be arrested. Mr. Wearing at the request of the tribunal is looking into the case.

This afternoon Charles Douglas Palmer, 45 Hunter street, east, a barber, claimed exemption on the grounds of ill health. He claims to have been rejected for military service on a previous occasion. Palmer was authorized to appear before the Medical Board for further examination.

ANOTHER CLASS LEAGUE FORMED AT THE Y.M.C.A.

A new class league was formed yesterday afternoon, the School Boys "A" organizing for competition in games, athletics, attendance, etc. "A" are using automobile names for the teams and the names chosen by the captains were as follows: Gordon Yeaman, Pathfinders; John Carlyle, Peerless; Will Mowat, Pierce Arrows, and Fred Brooks, Paiges. The majority of the members of this class have been playing rugby up to the present time. It is expected that this week will be the last for the outdoor game and the new league will open on Monday afternoon next, 4.15.

Great interest is being taken in the other five leagues and the different teams are changing places constantly. Teams that feel that they have a comfortable margin on the tail-enders often find themselves in the cellar as a result of one day's activities. The Huskies in the Employed Boys' "B" league, and Mic-Macs in School Boys' "C" have furnished the surprises of this week by climbing out of last place, the Mic-Macs going up to second place in the league standing.

The winners of the 20 yd. potato race were: Employed Boys—E. Legon 4 2-5 seconds, G. Thompson 4 3-5, A. Donnely 4 4-5; School Boys 'C'— J. Pulkinghorn and G. Patterson, 4 3-5 seconds.

The attendance at the Business Men's Class has been somewhat affected by the absence of some of the members from the city on hunting trips or other business. A number of new members have turned out this year and the prospects are for a bigger and better year than ever.

LETTER-CARRIERS RESTLESS.

Ottawa Branch Demands $20 a Month Increase, But Minister of Justice Replies it is Impossible.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Copies of a resolution, which was moved at a meeting of the local Letter-Carriers' Association, demanding "that the Government refund to each of us our retirement fund allowance, which has been kept from our wages, and that the Government cease making this deduction in our salaries until such time as a suitable increase is granted," will be sent to Premier Borden, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Acting Postmaster-General, the Federated Letter-Carriers' Association of Canada, and Messrs. Fripp and Chabot, the local Federal members.

It was reported at the meeting that a demand had been made on Hon. C. J. Doherty for an increase of $20 a month, but that the latter had replied such was impossible.

The reading of Mr. Doherty's reply was greeted with shouts of "strike" and "resignation," and a resolution expressing the sentiment of the meeting was passed.

The same condition of affairs apparently exists in other parts of Canada as exists in Peterborough. The Letter-Carriers are determined to have some action taken that will help them out if it is possible to have it done.

SHOULD BE NO RISE IN PRICES OF SUGAR.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Dealers who have advanced the price of sugar to their customers during the past month are taking an improper advantage of the present temporary shortage and exacting an unfair profit. Such is the effect of a statement issued to-night by the Food Controller. Mr. Hanna added hat there was no excuse for retail prices to-day being higher than they were a month or six weeks ago. He pointed out that for the month of September the prices of sugar in all parts of Canada were between 10 and 11 cents per pound.

SOLDIERS ALLEGE UNFAIR TREATMENT

Will Insist in Any Case Upon Running Candidate in London

LONDON, Ont, Nov. 7.—The Great War Veterans' Association made the welkin ring at a big meeting to-night, held to appoint delegates to the Union Government convention on Thursday, by charging the Conservative machine with deliberately attempting to prevent the returned soldiers from becoming delegates. The session was the liveliest political meeting held here in many years and feeling ran high. Threats to rush the convention on Thursday are being made, and soldiers declare they will be on the job and make sure that the convention is not stolen from them. Their candidate, Lieut.-Col. William G. Coles, returned after long service overseas, is alleged to have been knifed by the Conservative machine, and declared to-day that he is a win-the-war candidate, a conscriptionist, and expects to run as an independent. The soldiers will insist on running a candidate as they declare there are many matters in which they have not had fair treatment.

UNIONIST TO SPEAK FOR CONSERVATIVE IN EAST PETERBOROUGH

According to bills that appear advertising it, the Honorable Hugh Guthrie, one of the Liberals taken into the Unionist cabinet, will address a public meeting in Norwood on Tuesday, November 13th in behalf of the East Peterborough Conservative candidate, Mr. J. E. Sexsmith. In that riding there has been no effort to create Unionist sentiment by either party, and especially by the Government which has sedulously sponsored it in many ridings that are regarded as Liberal strongholds or at least doubtful. The situation in East Peterborough provides food for thought by Liberals who may be excused for demanding that the Unionist sauce be passed around without the discrimination to which East Peterborough has been subjected.

PRICE OF BREAD TO BE CONTROLLED

Action to Be Taken Under License System in United States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Direct action to control the price of bread and fix the size of a standard loaf will be taken soon by President Wilson in a proclamation placing all bakers under the license system, administered by Food Controller Hoover. The bakers will be considered as manufacturers and the terms of the proclamation will make it possible for the Food Administration to control the price and size of the loaf. Considerable reduction in price in many localities is expected to be the immediate result.

MILITARY NEWS

to her husband, Pte. Andrew Rutter, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

Madam,—I have the honour to state that information has been received by mail from England to the effect that the marginally notice soldier who has been suffering from a gunshot wound in the chest at the Canadian Convalescent Hospital, Woodcote Park, Epsom, Eng., was sufficiently recovered from his wound to leave that institution on Oct. 5, 1917.

I have the honour to be, madam, your obedient servant,

FRANK BEARD,
Director of Records.

Some time ago it was announced that Sapper Douglas Macdonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Macdonald, had won the Military Medal. His parents have now received the medal, which has been sent home for safe keeping. Sapper Macdonald received the decoration for bravery during the Messines Ridge battle on June 7th. He was wounded on that occasion and is still undergoing treatment in England.

Mrs. Toms, 508 Chamberlen street, has received a letter sent to her husband, Pte. Edward Toms in England, and referring to the death in action of their son, Gunner W. A. Toms. The letter is as follows:

Dear Sir,—I am writing a few lines to say how sorry we were to have lost your son Bill, who was killed on the 10th of August. He is missed by all the boys of his battery and was one of the best men. I have been his sergeant ever since he came out here and shall never get a better man. He refused promotion some months ago. He was killed in the Chalk Pit, which you have heard so much about. While he was loading his mortar, a whizz bang caught him and he was killed instantly. We gave him as good a burial as possible in this country, and believe me he was a soldier and a man.. His watch and pocket book were handed in to our officer and I suppose they have been forwarded on by this time. Anything more that I can do for you or his mother in regard to him, I shall only be too pleased to do it.

Hope you will soon be better and able to get home, I remain,

Your sincere friend,

H. KEY, Sergt.

Fatal Accident In Mariposa

LINDSAY, Nov. 8.—A fatal accident occurred at Manilla Junction on Wednesday morning, when Mr. John Murray, who resides on the boundary between Mariposa and Brock Townships, two miles south of Manilla, was instantly killed.

The unfortunate man, who was about 62 years of age, had been to Manilla Junction with a load of hogs, and when returning home about 9.30 o'clock his team ran away. He was thrown from the waggon and killed instantly.

The late Mr. Murray was one of the best known farmers in Mariposa Township. He was best known as a high-grade sheep raiser and enjoyed the esteem and respect of a wide circle of acquaintances. He was a Presbyterian in religion and is survived by his wife, two sons, one at home, and one living two miles south of Manilla; also two daughters, Mrs. Andy Dixon, of Manilla, and a daughter at home.

Deceased was a brother-in-law of Mr. D. J. McLean, of Galt, ex-Mayor of Lindsay, and officiated as judge at Lindsay Fair for several years.

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BUTTER CUT TO 40C. BUT NOT IN CANADA

New Zealander Tells of Food Control —Workers Forced Compulsion in His Country.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—"Canada has done well, but I hope that you will not consider me unkind when I point out that New Zealand, out of a population of 1,250,000, has given 80,000 young men to the colours," said Thomas Waddell, iron founder, of Christchurch, N.Z., at the King Edward to-day.

"We began with the voluntary system, but, early in the war, the workingmen objected, and the compulsory system was substituted. One fact that caused the change was this: When a patriotic young men donned khaki, a slacker grabbed his job, and some of the billets were worth from £8 to £10 a week.

"We have sent our single men; married men and widowers ar filling the ranks now.

"New Zealand, I feel, has not been backward in supporting war funds. The 1,250,000 men, women and children have averaged ten shillings a head, a total of $3,175,000 for Red Cross and similar purposes.

"Of late, New Zealand floated a war loan of £24,600,000, in two instalments. The first half, in three weeks, has been oversubscribed by £4,000,000.

"Some agitators appeared, but they were few, and jailed.

"New Zealand differs from most countries, in that fifty per cent. of the workers are property owners. Government owns railways, post-offices, telephones, telegraphs, etc. As to the telegraph, we can send 12 words for 16 cents. Our women have votes, we have Government control, and, in short, we are a fortunate people.

"Farming is our largest industry, and women have taken the place of men in the army. We have food control. The retail price of butter has been cut to 40 cents a pound, and the price of wheat has been restricted."

The government will issue the bunker coal for the voyage, and beside carrying a cargo of package freight and all the Dutch refugees gathered in the United States, the vessel will take a quantity of steel wire cable, which Holland sorely needs for the operation of her mines.

Messenger With New Irish Revolt Orders Is Seized In New York

Sinn Fein Going Ahead on Revolt Programme, Chief Flynn Says—Prisoner a Seaman Aboard British Craft—His Arrest is First Under New Trading With the Enemy Law in America.

TORE DOCUMENT UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The first prisoner to be taken in this country for violating the new Trading With the Enemy act was sent to the Tombs, in default of $2,500 bail, in which he was held when arraigned before Samuel Hitchcock, United States Commissioner. The prisoner was Thomas Welsh, a British subject, who was seized on board a British setamship when she reached an American port on Monday.

The arrest was made by William J. Flynn, chief of the Secret Service, who pieced together a letter torn up and thrown away by Welsh when officers of the steamship accused him of attempting to smuggle letters into the country outside the regular mail channels. Reconstructed, Chief Flynn told a reporter, the torn letter was found to be a complete set of instructions to Sinn Fein agents here, from heads of that organization in Ireland, which were made necessary by the recent arrest by Chief Flynn of "General" Liam Mellowes.

The arrest of Mellowes, together with the detention at Halifax by the Canadian authorities of Dr. Patrick McCarton, Mr. Flynn charged, revealed a plot for the launching of a new Sinn Fein rebellion in Ireland next Easter. In the letter which caused the arrest of Welsh, Mr. Flynn said, references were made to "Liam" and to "M." The names of several men still in England and Ireland also were contained in the letter and information regarding them immediately was cabled to the British authorities.

Mr. Flynn said that the uncovering of the details of the original plot apparently did not deter the Irish rebels from seeking to carry out their rebellion programme and that many of the details of the new plot had been revealed in the letter Welsh is accused of having attempted to destroy when he was arrested.

The letter was composed of three pages. It was typewritten and bore no address nor envelope. Welsh is declared to have been booked as a seaman on board the steamship, a ruse which frequently has been employed by plot messengers between this country and Ireland and England.

Although bail was fixed by Commissioner Hitchcock, it was declared Welsh could not receive his freedom in the event a bondsman was procured for him, and that he will be taken into court again to-day. The nature of the proceedings however, were not revealed.

The names of several Americans who have been identified with Sinn Fein activities are declared also to have been obtained by Secret Service operators as the result of Welsh's arrest, and the investigation which followed the taking into custody of Dr. McCarton and Mellowes. Officers on board the steamship became suspicious of Welsh and Chief Flynn was notified as soon as the steamship reached her pier in this country.

WHEN SAMSON CARRIED OFF GATES OF GAZA.

From Judges, chapter 16, verses 2 and 3:

2. And it was told the Gazites saying, Samson is come hither. And they compassed him in and laid wait for him all night in the gate of the city, and were quiet all the night, saying, In the morning, when it is day, we shall kill him.

3. And Samson lay till midnight, and arose at midnight, and took the doors of the gate of the city, and the two posts, and went away with them, bar and all, and put them upon his shoulders, and carried them up to the top of an hill that is before Hebron.

To Take Prisoners As They Come Out

MILITARY SERVICE ACT APPLIES TO THEM AS WELL AS FREE MEN.

Although there is nothing in the Military Service Act which relates directly to males incarcerated in any of the public institutions, all prisoners coming within the first class will be made subject to the draft as soon as their terms expire, Glyn Osler, the Ontario Registrar, stated yesterday.

"As present prisoners being forcibly detained cannot claim exemption or report for service, but when they are freed they will become amenable to the existing military law," Mr. Osler explained.

"At this time of the year the jails are usually pretty full, the fall sessions of the criminal courts being just ended," Col. Greer stated.

Several thousand prisoners, who would ordinarily come under the first draft will therefore have their military careers postponed. They will not escape the provisions of the military law.

SOLDIER PRAYS DESPITE HOOTS WINS PROMOTION

BALTIMORE, Md.—Does it pay to pray in the army? There are seven lads, at least, at Camp Meade who think it does now.

There is a certain little fellow in camp who dropped to his knees every night before he got under the covers to 'square himself" with God before he passed into slumberland. And in the morning, when reveille was sounded, he swung over the side of his cot, landed on his knees, and thanked the Great Maker again for his country and asked Him to guide his footsteps during the day.

Comrades Hoot Him.

Strange as it might seem, this little fellow, George Eckhardt of Baltimore, was the object of criticism and "hoots" from seven of his comrades who had cots near his in one of the barracks. It was the same story every night and the same story every morning for a while.

"Where do you get that stuff?"

"Ask Him to get you exempted."

"Cut it out."

These where some of the many things jeeringly shouted at the little fellow every night and every morning. He only smiled, and, instead of being discouraged as one might expect, the little fellow added a prayer for those who mocked his faith in God.

Captain Watches and Listens.

The captain of the company heard of the affair and he made it his business to watch and listen. For three nights he observed the same condition of ridicule in which the little fellow was placed. On the third night he broke in upon them.

The seven were told a thing or two, deprived of all liberty for thirty days, and given extra duty as a punishment. Turning to the little fellow on his knees, the captain said:

"I shall recommend, Private Eckhardt, that you be made first sergeant of this company," and he walked from the barracks.

The regimental commander approved the recommendation and the little fellow is now the "topper."

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards —Receipts, 62 cars, with 608 cattle, 47 calves, 1,363 hogs, and 1,780 sheep and lambs.

The market turned rather draggy yesterday, and there was anything but a brisk clean-up. There was scarcely anything choice in the butcher steers and heifers class offering, but there was more than enough of common stuff for which there appeared to be a very poor demand. While good butcher, what there was of it, held steady, there was a sudden let-up in the demand for canners and common cows. This class dropped a good quarter of a dollar from the week's prevailing prices. Common light stockers were also draggy. Choice feeders firm.

Manitoba cash oats were lowered 3-4c yesterday, while Ontario oats were advanced 1c higher, barley 1c higher, and peas 10c higher. The Ontario farmers are evidently in no hurry to now bring out their crops, receipts up to now being very light. "THE PAINTED WOMAN"

By FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

Again there was no immediate response. Many of the crowd, tired by now of the fun, turned away to seek diversion in the taverns. In vain the Portugee waited for another bid.

"The fellow grows tedious," muttered a tall buccaneer, striding away, followed by a group of his men.

"I came to buy silks," grumbled a lean-faced trader. "Sell the Wench and have done with it."

On the outskirts of the now diminishing throng stood the proprietor of the Turk's Head. Portuguese Joe, spying him, pointed with his whip.

"Ha—old Van der Hyde," he shouted. "Make me a bid. You need a scullery maid, you Dutch rascal. Your tavern's as foul as a pigsty. Take the girl, and put her to the scrubbing brush."

A roar of laughter greeted this sally.

"Van her Ryde—Van der Hyde!" cried a dozen voices. "Fifty—fifty—bid him fifty and have done with it."

The inn-keeper nodded, more to curry favour with the crowd than from any desire to buy the girl. The Portugee was by no means pleased. He had addressed the inn-keeper in a spirit of jest. Ramona, as the common drudge of the Turk's Head would be in no enviable position, it was true, but he would have preferred to see her sent to the plantations. He turned to the slave dealer who had bid forty pieces of eight.

"Come, my friend," he shouted. "Bid me sixty, and I will return you the half, as I agreed. Sixty, is it?" He paused with an expectant look upon his face, but there was no response. Instead, the slave dealer shook his head.

Others of the crowd hurried away. The hour was growing late, the fun was over. New diversions called; in a few moments but a handful remained about the block. A slight commotion occurred on that side of the market place that faced the harbour, but the Portugee, his attention fixed upon the crowd before him, did not observe it.

"Fifty pieces of eight!" he shouted. "Going for fifty pieces of eight. Going—going. Speak up, you slave traders. Two-thirds of the purchase price will I remit. Am I bid more?"

There was a moment of silence. One of the slave traders seemed about to speak. Then from the edge of the crowd toward the right came a loud and compelling voice.

"One hundred pieces of eight!"

Ramona and the Portugee both turned. The girl's heart gave a great leap. Through the straggling crowd came John Barton, followed by a score of New England sailors.

CHAPTER XX.

When John Barton clambered over the side of The Thanksgiving he at once inquired for Captain Willoughby. Learning that the latter was in his cabin he sought him there, his mind full of a plan he had evolved.

Willoughby, fond of the young man as though the latter had been his own son, rose to greet him with a look of inquiry.

"You bring good news."

Barton shook his head.

"But little news of any sort, Captain Willoughby. Of one thing, however I feel sure. The girl is still in the town. I have been informed that her captors mean to sell her, in the slave market."

Willoughby's face took on a somber expression.

"In that event, my son," he said, "I see but little hope."

Barton brought his hand down upon the other's shoulder.

"Captain Willoughby," he said, his voice full of determination. "I mean to buy the woman at public auction, and for that I need your help."

"But—the—cost——"

"I have some money—not much, more's the pity. For the rest I must depend upon you. Whatever the amount, Captain Willoughby, I beg of you to advance it. I will repay you, though it require the remainder of my life in your service."

Willoughby drew back. The plan was by no means to his liking.

"Think twice before you undertake this thing, my son."

"I cannot hesitate. It is my duty. Did not the woman save our lives? What matters a few pieces of eight, in the face of that? And, besides, Captain Willoughby, I love her."

"I know that my son, and I am sorry for it. Much better were we to go our way in peace. The money is not the only consideration. Think of the danger."

"But if I buy her fair and honest before the crowd, who can say me nay"

"I put little trust in the honour of buccaneers."

"Then let me take twenty of our crew ashore with me. The men will stand back of me, of that I am sure. If resistance be offered we can cut our way back to the water's edge and regain our boats. The market place, as you know, is close beside the quay. The matter will not be difficult, for the buccaneers will suspect nothing. Yet I feel sure that if I buy the woman in good faith my offer will not be rejected."

"A mad plan, nevertheless," Willoughby exclaimed. "I feel little disposed to place my men in such grave danger."

"Then I must attempt it alone. This much I swear to you, I'll not leave in this extremity the woman I love. Were I to do so I should never again have the courage to look myself in the face." He went toward the door. "There is but little time for deliberation. The sale has doubtless even now begun. If we do not make all haste we may be too late. Shall the men go with me, or must I make the attempt alone?"

Willoughby rose, and taking his cutlass from its hook upon the cabin wall buckled it about his waist. Then from a chest that stood near the head of his berth he drew forth a bag of money.

"Here, John Barton," he said, "take this. It is all I have. Let us go on deck at once, and explain matters to the men. Those who wish to accompany us may do so. I'll give no orders for such service."

Barton began to thank him, but the older man put him aside.

"First, let us succeed," he said, "and then offer our thanks to the Lord."

They went on deck, and the crew was at once summoned. Barton explained the matter to them in a few words. They had already heard much concerning the reasons for his long absence, his love for Ramona, and the manner in which she had saved Willoughby, Cotton and himself from death. As a result they volunteered to accompany him in a body but Capt. Willoughby would not permit it.

"Twenty men will be enough," he said. "We dare not leave the vessel without means of defense. Make ready to get under way, against our return. Have all sail set. As soon as you hear our hail, up anchor and take us aboard. Should pursuit be offered, we shall have scant time to escape."

Cotton, to Barton's surprise, offered no opposition to his desperate plan. Instead he insisted upon being one of the landing party.

"The battle is the Lord's," he remarked, and beyond that would say nothing.

The men were divided into two parts, each taking one of the ship's longboats. The Thanksgiving's anchorage was scarce two cables' length from the shore. Within a short time the boats had reached the quay, and were drawn up at a point some little distance from the usual place for landing. Two of the men were left to stand guard while the remainder of the party, carefully refraining from any exhibition of hostility, strolled along the market place, Willoughby and Barton in the lead.

The afternoon was almost spent. Already the crimson disc of the sun lay close to the horizon. Within a short time it would plunge into the sea, to be followed at once by the sudden darkness of the tropical night.

Barton's impatience brought him to the market place some little distance ahead of his companions. The first thing he heard was the voice of the Portugee, urging upon the innkeeper his bid of fifty pieces of eight. With no mind to compete with the latter or anyone else by small advances he took from the bag Willoughby had given him the equivalent of a hundred pieces of eight in gold, and forcing his way through the stragglers on the outskirts of the crowd, called out his bid.

There was an immediate stir throughout the crowd, accompanied by a great craning of necks and loud exclamations of surprise.

"Look! A Puritan!" cried a woman near him. "A hundred pieces of eight!" exclaimed her companion. "A stout fellow, by my soul!" laughed one of the traders, regarding Barton's height. Tench turned with a great laugh.

Constipation Relieved by Food

MAN was provided with the weapon to fight constipation right in his food. The weapon is the natural waste in the cereals. Any doctor will tell you that the long muscular digestive tube is precisely designed to be incited to action by means of waste, and not by irritating drugs.

Dr. Jackson's

is an entirely drugless, full-nutrition food with the proper amount of natural waste. It positively relieves constipation or we return your money.

Roman Meal is composed of entire berries of wheat and rye with wheat bran and flax seed (rendered absolutely tasteless and odorless by electricity).

Roman Meal is different from ordinary bran-foods. The irritating effect of bran used alone, which may cause intestinal catarrh, is counteracted in Roman Meal by the soothing effect of the flax, which also lubricates the digestive tract. Do not stir Roman Meal porridge except while mixing meal and water, or you positively spoil it.

Roman Meal retains all of the natural food elements, and all of them are needed. It is the opposite of the highly milled cereal foods and flours which are robbed of their precious blood regulating salines, also indispensable food elements known as "vitamines."

The United States Government's Health Service will send you a most interesting booklet written by three well-known scientists. Their experiments show the importance of full-nutrition foods.

Just write a letter and ask for booklet entitled, "Bread as a Food." Enclose five cents and address your letter: "Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C."

When you have read this booklet you will realize how precious Roman Meal, the whole grain, full-nutrition food will be to you. At all grocers.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Large Section of Public must Answer Call to Military Service Before November 10th

All the machinery of the law is being started into motion in order to make sure that a large section of the Canadian people respond to the call for military reinforcements. The process will be continued until the men in the first class called up have each and every one responded. They must respond, report for service or send in a claim for exemption, on or before November 10 next.

By "the first class" is meant British subjects in Canada between the ages of 20 and 34 inclusive, who were unmarried on July 6, 1917, or are widowers without children. Under the Military Service Act, now in operation, all such men not exempted for special reasons set forth in the Act as published, are regarded as soldiers absent from duty without leave.

REPORTED DEAD ON LUSITANIA HE COMES HOME

Farmer Reweds Wife Who Had Obtained a Divorce.

LEWISTON, Idaho.— After having been announced by his family as lost when the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine, John Nelson, a wealthy farmer of Dayton, Wash., returned here unexpectedly to greet his former wife, who had divorced him following his supposed death on the voyage to his old home in Sweden.

Following his reappearance, the couple were married in the same court where Mrs. Nelson had obtained a divorce.

Nelson and his wife are pioneers of the Dayton country. After years of effort they massed a fortune and raised a family. Then Nelson decided to revisit his old home in Sweden. He was unable to get a reservation on the Lusitania and took another.

Shortly afterward an apparently well authenticated report reached his home that he was among the victims of the submarine which sank the liner. Nelson had, however, reached Sweden safely, but through some mischance his communication failed to reach his wife and family.

In order to straighten a business tangle which arose as the result of her inability to hear of his death, the wife secured a divorce. Nelson returned home. Mrs. Nelson fainted. Then she welcomed him. The trip to Lewiston was arranged and they are now in their second honeymoon.

THINKS GERMANY LAGGARD.

Houston Denies She Has Been Foremost in Science.

WASHINGTON — Germany has never been supreme in science, and she has been lagging behind England, France, and the United States in discovery, in creative science, and in invention, Secretary Houston asserts in a discussion of "The Prussian Military Autocracy," appearing recently in the Department of Agriculture's weekly news letter.

Secretary Houston attacks as largely wrong what he says is the world's impression that Germany stands for the maximum efficiency in everything. Germany's particular merit, he states, has been that she has made a system of scienc, has organized it back of industry, and has intelligently and persistently applied it back of the industries that are fundamental to military pursuits, with industry organized through every possible form of State aid or support.

Describing Prussia as "a great public corporation for military and industrial purposes, a feudal estate writ large and well administered," the Secretary says the country is unwholesome economically, "strong at the top and weak at the bottom" in its organization, and never has been as efficient as the United States or Great Britain, whose organization, in the main, has been for peace, and not for war.

"I'm in hard luck."

"Why?"

"I told Belle she was the first girl I ever loved and she said she couldn't waste her time training amateurs. Then I told Nancy I had made love to other girls, but that she was my real passion, and she asked me if she was a cultured taste with me or a forlorn hope."—Baltimore American.

"A PINE FOREST IN EVERY HOME"

That is what the Peps treatment amounts to. It is no longer necessary to go to the Swiss Mountains to breathe the health-giving Pine air which doctors so highly recommend for throat, bronchial and lung troubles. With the aid of science these Pine vapors have been condensed into tablet form so that the treatment can be taken at home.

All you do is to dissolve Peps in the mouth. The rich Pine vapors are then set free and breathed down all the minute air passages to the lungs, destroying all harmful germs and soothing and healing the inflamed membranes.

Peps are unequalled for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, sore throat, laryngitis, hoarseness, etc. All dealers. 50c box.

PRISON AND DEATH FOR READING NEWS

PICKED UP BY A GIRL.

Vienna Publication Exposes Cruelty of Military Courts That Brought About Amnesty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The cruelty of Austrian courts-martial against which the people of Austria-Hungary rebelled, forcing a general amnesty proclamation by Emperor Charles, is revealed in an article translated from the Post of Munich, Bavaria, on 18th August last, given to the press to-day by the Committee on Public Information.

This article, which the Munich paper copied from the Wiener Arbeiterzeitung (The Vienna Workingman's Gazette), which is printing a series of "incredible penalties," discloses that six persons were condemned to death and thirty-three others, with several young schoolboys, received prison sentences aggregating ninety-one years for merely reading a forbidden paper.

Th "verboten" paper contained proclamations of the former Tsar of Russia and General Rennekampf, which had been dropped by a Russian airplane on Austrian troops. A copy was found by a girl in a hospital, where she had been to visit a wounded soldier. She sent it to her uncle, who read it to others. Nearly all who heard the proclamation then or subsequently, suffered the supreme or lesser penalties.

The story as published is in part as follows:

"Aurelia Kolik, clerk, 21 years old, sent her uncle, Vladimir Kolik, a letter in September, 1914, and enclosed in this letter a copy of proclamations by the Tsar and General Rennekampf which had been dropped by a Russian airplane on the Austrian troops and which she had picked up from the floor of a hospital where she had been to visit a wounded soldier. The girl was condemned to death on account of this copy. The uncle copied the proclamation into his notebook and read it aloud one day to one Hlasdik, an employee, at a session of the Directors of the Land Loan Company, of Brunn, and had him make a copy of it. For permitting this copy to be made, Kolik was likewise condemned to death.

"The employee made three copies and passed them on to some of his acquaintances. He was condemned to death for this, and two of his friends who had merely read the proclamation and had immediately burned the copies were condemned to five and three years in the penitentiary. This third friend, Paral by name, loaned his copy to an office mate, Brezansky, who immediately made two copies. Paral who condemned to death for loaning his copy! Burch, an employee of an insurance company, read the proclamation on this occasion. He was condemned to three years in the penitentiary.

"Brezansky gave one copy to a woman employee named Psota, the other to his friend Toman, a confectioner. Brezansky was condemned to death. Toman read the papers through and, fearing harm, destroyed them. He is condemned to three years in the penitentiary. The Psota woman read the first proclamation aloud to her landlady, named Tichy, and expresses horror at it. After the Tichy woman understood the purport of the proclamation she became excited at the insult to the Czechs contained in it, and strongly urged the Psota woman to burn the copy. This she did in a candle flame after a short time. On the ground that she had undoubtedly contributed to the indignation against these proclamations she was not condemned, although she had read the document.

The article then goes on to say how the document got into a school and passed from one pupil to another, with the result that several children were sentenced to prison for long terms. The article concludes:

"And so the copy which Aurelia Kolik sent her uncle became the cause of the condemning of thirty-nine persons. Six death sentences and sentences aggregating ninety-one years of confinement in the penitentiary were brought about."

When the people say of a dead man, "He is better off," it's a pity he isn't in the position to appreciate his good luck.

LIBERTY LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. — Complete figures on subscriptions to the second Liberty loan, which closed October 27, have come in from the Federal Reserve districts and after being checked will be announced, together with the allotments, probably within the next day or so.

There is no doubt whatever that the loan has already exceeded the three billion dollar minimum sought; there are indications that it will not exceed the five billion dollar maximum, although the subscriptions probably will exceed the allotments.

NINE BOILS
Kept Coming On Neck
One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood has be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

Five Provinces Have Surplus Of 5,600,000 Bags Of Potatoes But Price Continues To Soar

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—The Eastern Canadian Provinces from Ontario to the sea show an estimated surplus of 5,600,000 bushels of potatoes, tabulated as follows:

Nova Scotia	2,000,000 bus.
New Brunswick	2,600,000 bus.
Prince Edward Is. ..	3,000,000 bus.
Gross surplus	7,600,000 bus.

But Quebec reports a shortage of 2,000,000 bushels and Ontario's crop is normal, thus presenting the net surplus of 5,600,000 bushels. This is a yield in excess of the normal crop, and yet the wholesale price in Toronto had advanced to $2 and $2.25 per 90 lb. bag.

An announcement from the Food Controller's office to-day is to the effect that potatoes, Ontario stock, are selling at $2 to $2.15 in Toronto for a 90-pound bag, $1.90 in Ottawa, and $1.90 in Montreal.

"Potatoes are very scarce in Toronto just now," said another dealer, "and, while I do not think there has been much hoarding, still I understand some of the farmers were very much dissatisfied with their crop and with the returns, considering the price they had to pay for seed potatoes last year. If there is such a thing going on it is not extensive, but would it be much different from practices in other lines of business if some farmers and dealers were holding their potatoes in the hope of better prices during the winter?"

Lot Only $1 a Bag.

Another dealer stated that farmers had complained to him that in some instances they had not obtained more than a dollar a bag for their potatoes, while it had cost them $1.25 to $1.30 a bag to produce them.

"Ontario production after that of Quebec and New Brunswick costs more than in any other province," he stated. "Quebec cost and New Brunswick, according to official estimates, is about $1.50 a bag, while in Nova Scotia the cost is only $1.05, and in Prince Edward Island it is only 90 cents a bag, and in the latter province the price is now $2.25."

Recent Prices.

The Department of Agriculture has just issued the following statement of prices for 2nd November.

	90-lb. bag.
Quebec	$2.10 to $2.25
Ottawa	1.90 to 2.20
St. John	2.05 to 2.20
Halifax	1.40 to 1.50

Food Controller's Estimate.

The statement of the Food Controller for prices yesterday is as follows: Wholesale prices for potatoes, all quotations being on the basis of a 90-pound bag: Toronto, Ontario stock, $2 to $2.15; Ottawa, Ontario stock, $1.90; Montreal, Ontario and Quebec stock, $1.90, New Brunswick, $2.10; Quebec, Quebec and New Brunswick stock, $2.40 to $2.50, supply scarce; Halifax, Prince Edward Island stock, $2.15 to $2.25; St. John, New Brunswick and Prince Edward stock, $2.05 to $2.20. American prices: Boston, $2.45; New York, $2.40; Buffalo, $2.40.

Must Be Licensed.

To protect the public against speculation in the potato trade all wholesale dealers will be registered at the office of the Food Controller and will have to take out a license to do business. Licenses will be issued only to bona-fide dealers, and the latter will be required to file semi-monthly statements showing their purchases, sales and profits. Legitimate dealers and wholesalers will have nothing to fear from the regulation, but the taking of unreasonable profits between producer and consumer will not be permitted.

isn't just a purgative. Quite the contrary.

It makes purgatives unnecessary by keeping the liver lively.

Take small doses regularly—a larger dose only if you're sure you need it.

"IT'S HARD," SAYS MOTHER.

But Indiana Woman is Proud of Her Boy for Sacrifice.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Alice Dodd, the mother of James Gresham, one of Pershing's men killed in a German raid in France, was found to-day bending over a washtub at her little home, 907 Lemck avenue.

She talked freely about her son as she looked through a pile of photographs seeking one of his. He joined the army four years ago, she said, when he was 19. Yes, she was proud of him, of course, but "it's awfully hard to have him gone," she said.

"Don't you think any mother would be glad to have her boy give his life for a cause like that?" she was asked, and she answered, "Yes," with a smile.

Then she broke down and said, "God help me to endure!" Afterwards she added:

"Yes, he's a hero, and for his sake I ought to be brave. But I'm not a hero, I'm just a mother."

"Almost a miracle"

That is what Rabbi M. Shallit of Edenbridge, Sask., says regarding a cure by Zam-Buk, of which he gives the following particulars:

"A short time ago," said the Rabbi, "a man brought his little son to me and asked if I knew of anything that would cure the child of a terrible skin disease, with which he had suffered for three years. The child's forehead, eyes and ears were covered with sores. The sight was shocking, and the child had not been able to see for two years. As he was an only child, the father said he would give anything to have him cured, but as he had already been treated by many doctors, each of whom had given up the case as incurable, he had about despaired of ever finding a cure. Having great faith in Zam-Buk, I recommended it, and to cut a long story short, perseverance with Zam-Buk has now completely cured the child."

THE FATHER'S ACCOUNT

"The Zam-Buk Company, Toronto
Dear Sirs: I beg to testify that my boy suffered for three years with a severe skin disease, which doctors tried to cure, but in vain. The sores on his eyes were so terrible that for two years he was quite unable to see. Zam-Buk, however, has worked a complete and permanent cure.
The Zam-Buk treatment was recommended to me by Mr. M. Shallit, Rabbi of Edenbridge, for which I shall be grateful to him forever.
With hearty thanks to you, I remain, Yours faithfully,
(Signed) E. ROMANUK."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Flight From Death

A Story of the French Revolution.

By JAMES BRAINARD

Truth is so much stranger than fiction that perhaps it is better to state that the main incident of this story actually happened just as it is recorded.

The French revolution had reached that stage commonly designated the reign of terror. Every day the doors of the Conciergerie prison opened to let out a number of human beings not to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," as was enunciated shortly before by the American colonists in their Declaration of Independence, but to suffer death on the guillotine. At first the victims were confined to those who stood for tyranny. The king, the queen, the nobility, royalty and its supporters lost their heads. Then the different factions that had brought about the revolution began to fight for power, and the conservatives were guillotined by the radicals. After this whoever desired to get rid of one he wished to remove had but to inform upon him as an enemy of France, and the accused would join the "innumerable caravan" passing under the yoke of the guillotine to his long home.

It was not always an enemy that was to be got rid of. Sometimes it was a friend. That friend might possess something that at his death would fall into the hands of the informer.

There lived in Paris at that time a young couple, Henri and Marie Chateaubrun, who were devoted to each other. Henri, when the struggle against oppression began, took a deep interest in it, advocating the reforms that were proposed. He and a friend of his, Antoine Boyer, became somewhat prominent as leaders in that quarter of the city in which they lived. Boyer, who was a bachelor, came often to the Chateaubruns to consult with his friend upon the course to be adopted by them in public affairs. Mme. Chateaubrun took a lively interest in the early efforts of the revolutionists to make France a constitutional monarchy and was usually present at the conferences of her husband and his friend.

During these meetings Boyer conceived a passion for Mme. Chateaubrun. For a time he struggled against it, not even acknowledging to himself that he loved his friend's wife. But the time came when he knew that life for him was not worth living without her.

As the revolution proceeded the two friends and coworkers found themselves on different paths. Chateaubrun continued a conservative, while Boyer joined the ranks of the bloodthirsty Jacobins. The latter did not give up his visits to the Chateaubruns. Indeed, he was not able to keep away from the young wife of his friend. Since neither she nor her husband suspected his love he was always welcome.

And now, the revolution having swept beyond the conservatives, those who had hoped for beneficent results to France, who had worked for the beginning of a better regime, found themselves in the position of enemies to their country. In attempting to stay the flow of blood they incurred the enmity of those who were shedding it. Then it was that Mme. Chateaubrun began to fear for the safety of her husband. She urged him to retire from any further participation in public affairs, to go to a small estate he owned in the country. But, dangerous as it was to continue a contest with the leaders of the mob, Chateaubrun was too much of a man to cease to defend what he considered the best interests of his country.

Fiercer and fiercer grew the mob, requiring of their leaders more and larger drafts of blood. Mme. Chateaubrun begged her husband to leave Paris. He sent for his friend Boyer, now one of the Jacobin leaders, and asked him what he had better do. Boyer said he would take the matter under advisement and let him know his conclusions.

The day after this interview there was a knock at Chateaubrun's door, and when it was opened a party of soldiers entered and informed Chateaubrun that he was under arrest by order of the convention. In spite of his clinging wife he was dragged away and lodged in the Conciergerie.

He demanded—all arrested persons made the demand—to know the charge brought against him. He received no reply till he was brought up for the semblance of a trial he was given, then was informed that he was accused of conspiring with others to bring the heir to the throne across the border and establish him as king. Chateaubrun knew that there was not a word of truth in the charge, but its very absurdity told him that it was a pretext rather than an accusation, and he lost hope at once.

There were twenty-one persons tried at the same time with Chateaubrun and convicted on various pretexts. They were all sentenced to be executed on the guillotine on the same day. All were imprisoned in the Conciergerie, which was the depot of supplies, so to speak, for the terrible engine of death. The day before the execution Mme. Chateaubrun went to Boyer and begged him to save her husband. He told her that to show favor to one convicted by the mob's tribunal would be to endanger his own head. She was astonished that he considered the risk in the case of his old friend, but Boyer maintained resolutely that he dared not interfere. From Boyer the wife went to the Conciergerie to tell her husband of the failure of her mission and to bid him goodby. She was taken from the prison and carried home in a swoon.

The next morning a number of carts were backed up to the door of the Conciergerie, and a soldier in the prison called the names of twenty-one men who were to go forth to execution. Among them was Henri Chateaubrun. They all walked out to the carts, some of them dragging themselves, some erect, all of them showing in their pale and haggard features the mark of death. Standing in the carts, they were driven toward the Seine and crossed it by a bridge entering the Place de la Revolution, since called the Place de la Concorde. There stood the guillotine with persons to work it ready to lop off twenty-one heads, and there stood a crowd, kept back by soldiers, to witness the gruesome sight. The carts stopped beside the machine, and the victims descended.

And now began a work that even an implement so well adapted to the purpose found it difficult to perform. Each one of the prisoners, hatless and with his hands tied behind his back, in turn stepped up to it, was laid upon it, strapped to it; the knife fell, his head rolled into the basket, and his body was removed to make room for the next victim. Fifteen of the twenty-one had been executed when the guillotine refused to work. Whether the knife got wedged in the grooves or whether the machinery that raised the ax or that which detached it after it had been raised got out of order doesn't matter. Something had gone wrong, and those in charge of the executions were unable to fix it.

The proceedings were stopped, and a messenger was sent for mechanics to put the guillotine in order. This required time. Waiting is not conducive to discipline. The soldiers who were there to keep the crowd back grew lax, and by the time workmen had arrived people had elbowed their way close upon the remaining six men standing in line waiting for the repairs on the machine that was to make corpses of them.

This was repeated so often and was disobeyed so often that at last very little attention was paid to it. Chateaubrun presently found himself in the first line of spectators. Then, instead of being in the line next the guillotine, he found himself in the second. In the pushing that continued he was wedged back into the third line and at last was at the back of the crowd that was there to see his head cut off.

There was something radically wrong with the guillotine. The man fixing it hammered and pulled and pushed and screwed and unscrewed. Meanwhile the day was ended, and it was growing dark. Chateaubrun, considering the sight of his execution not worth so long a wait, quietly walked away.

The Place de la Concorde is at the beginning of the Champs Elysees. Chateaubrun, every moment expecting to be missed, concealing as well as he could his tied hands, his heart beating wildly, passed into the Champs Elysees eager to run, but forcing himself to walk leisurely. There he made his way onward in the shadow of the trees. Finally, when he had gone far enough from the scene of his intended execution, meeting a man coming toward him, he said:

"M'sieur, a friend of mine just now, who is a great wag, tied my hands behind my back and ran away with my hat. Kindly unloosen me."

"Certainly, m'sieur; it will give me great pleasure to do so."

Thanking the man who had relieved him of the last mark of being an intended guillotine victim, Chateaubrun went into a side street and was lost. The guillotine was fixed, but there were twenty instead of twenty-one persons executed.

No word of Chateaubrun's escape reached his wife during the day of execution nor the next nor the next. Indeed, it is questionable if his absence from the number of condemned was noticed by the authorities. Mme. Chateaubrun was in the condition of one stunned. Boyer called to see her and found her heartbroken. She told him she wished to die. He begged her to live for his sake, confessing the love he had long felt for her. She was too paralyzed mentally and physically to even consider what he said. Not till some time afterward did she realize that he might have had her husband put out of his way.

But within a short time a woman stopped at Mme. Chateaubrun's home and told her that her husband was alive in the Netherlands and desired her to come to him. He had not dared write her, fearing to implicate her as a correspondent with an emigre. Without waiting even to announce her happiness to Boyer she set out for the place of her husband's exile, and in a few days he who was supposed to have gone to his long home and the wife who had mourned him were clasped in each other's arms.

Chateaubrun never had any evidence that his old friend had betrayed him except that his wife told him that Boyer had declared his love for her. He believed then that Boyer had caused his downfall. But he never met Boyer again. Subsequent changes placed the Jacobin in another faction, and Boyer met his death by the guillotine he had intended for Chateaubrun.

One day an old man entered the building where records pertaining to the revolution were kept. He showed an order to the keeper to permit him to examine certain volumes containing the names of informers during the revolution. A volume was laid on a table before him. Turning to the letter "C," he found Chateaubrun. In a column opposite the name was Boyer. The old man was Chateaubrun.

Counting Seconds.

An easy method of counting seconds that is sufficiently accurate for photographic purposes is to repeat a phrase that it takes one second to pronounce. The majority of people will require one second of time to pronounce the words one hundred and one as rapidly as clear enunciation will permit. The last word of the second should always indicate the number of seconds that have been counted. Six seconds, for instance, should be counted one hundred and one, one hundred and two, one hundred and three, one hundred and four, one hundred and five, one hundred and six. Many who use this method can count from thirty to sixty seconds without varying more than one or two seconds from the time recorded by a watch.

"IT'S A FINE THING" SAYS WM. CAIRNS

"Tanlac Certainly Changed Things Around For Me" Declares Farmer

"Well, I have tried Tanlac, and I just want to tell everybody it's a fine thing," said William Cairns while in Parke & Parke drug store, Hamilton, recently. Mr. Cairns is engaged in farming at Waterdown, R. R. No. 1, where he has lived all his life and is highly respected by all who know him.

"I have been in a bad fix for three years," continued Mr. Cairns, "and had become so run down and played out that I never felt like work. My head ached nearly all the time, and I could hardly sleep. Some nights I would stay awake nearly all night, and feel so tired and stiff in the mornings I could hardly get out of bed. I always had a mean taste in my mouth, my tongue felt thick, was covered with a foul coating, and I suffered with gas on my stomach something awful at times. Every two or three hours after eating I would have a vomiting spell, and got so dizzy I could hardly stand up. At times I was so dizzy and my head hurt so bad I would stagger and hardly knew where I was going. I just seemed to be dazed and things looked faded and misty to me. I had no energy at all, and for two years, that is until I got Tanlac, I haven't felt like doing one thing.

"But I just want to say, this Tanlac certainly has changed things about for me. I had taken so much medicine, with no results, that I was just about ready to give up, but now life and work is a pleasure. I bought five bottles of Tanlac, have already taken three of them, and it has helped me more than I believed it would. That mean taste is gone, my tongue has cleared off, and I hardly have a headache. Tanlac just seemed to soothe and settle my stomach, and I haven't had a vomiting spell since I began taking it. I enjoy all my meals now, I sleep good every night, and get up in the mornings ready for a big breakfast and go to work with a vim. I certainly can recommend Tanlac for the good it has done me, and I'm glad to make this statement for what it may be worth to others who are suffering as I did."

Medical Boards Do Not Finish Their Work This Week.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.— Replying to Mayor Martin's suggestion that on account of the large number of applicants for examination under the Military Service Act, the time for such examinations be extended, Premier Borden has replied as follows: "You do not seem to have grasped the meaning of the law in regard to examinations. Medical examinations may take place after Nov. 10, but young men must report for service or make demand for exemption not later than that date."

Surging against the doors of the Craig street drill hall until they broke them in, a crowd of military service eligibles, impatient at the long wait for medical examination, swarmed into the building only to be charged and swept back to the street by soldiers.

Consider The Food Shortage Problem In A Broad Way

Mrs. Jean Muldrew Reviews Work of the Food Controller and Urges Women to Do Their Utmost to Relieve the Situation.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—An address by Mrs. Jean Muldrew, Director of Domestic Economy in the office of the Food Controller, was a feature of this morning's session of the fourth annual convention of Women's Institutes of Eastern Ontario. She reviewed the work of the Food Controller and appealed to the women to consider the world food shortage in a broad way and to do their utmost, individually and collectively, to relieve the situation and to ensure the heroic women of France against terrible suffering which must result if the necessary food is not forthcoming.

Mrs. Muldrew spoke of the Food Controller's regulation restricting the use of beef and bacon in public eating places, and stated that reports from only 25 of the larger hotels and restaurants showed a saving during the first month of no less than 100 tons of beef and 33 tons of bacon, which were thus made available for export to the Allied armies. The beef thus saved in one month would feed ten army divisions for one day on the generous ration of one pound; the bacon would furnish rations for more than half of the Canadian Army for one day.

Machinery Lacking.

She continued: "The Food Controller has been criticised because the regulations in the case of public eating places were not applied to private houses as well. We had no machinery for enforcing this law on private individuals. To attempt to enforce it would have necessitated the institution of a system of espionage which would be detestable to the Canadian people. Great Britain, the United States and Canada have adopted essentially similar methods, and have asked the people to ration themselves voluntarily, knowing well that if they cannot appeal to the honour and to the loyalty of the citizens, the case is lost from the beginning.

"We cannot get away from this one fact that we must stand by the forces in Canada that are trying to secure food with which to carry on the war. Recently some one said, in speaking of the criticism against the Food Controller, 'Every knock is a boost.' Yes, every knock for your Food Controller is a boost for the Kaiser.

"Let us consider a few of the other steps taken by the Food Controller. It was stated that the millers were exacting enormous profits. The matter was investigated, and a maximum profit of 25c on the milling of sufficient wheat to make a barrel of flour of 196 pounds was fixed by the Food Controller, allowing no profits whatever on the brand and shorts.

"Wholesale fruit dealers throughout Canada are being required to register with the Food Controller, and their profit will not be permitted to exceed a reasonable amount.

Oleomargarine.

"The demand for cheaper fats has led the Food Controller to investigate the subject of oleomargarine, with the result that the ban on this food has been removed. As the butter required for export is many times greater than Canada can at present supply, the sale of oleomargarine will not affect the butter market. But it will have this effect, that it will enable people who cannot afford butter at the present price to have sufficient fat to nourish the growing children; and in this way the regulation will be a boon to Canada in war time.

"At the request of a great number of consumers the Food Controller secured the passage of an Order-in-Council requiring that cereals be sold in bulk or in large original packages of at least twenty pounds each. The sale in smaller packages may be licensed by the Food Controller if he is satisfied that such action would be in the interest of the public. This does not mean that you must buy twenty pounds of cereal, but it does mean that cereals will be placed on the market with less cost to the consumer.

The Fish Supply.

"The Food Controller has been able to assist materially in arranging for a steady supply of fish. There has been an unfortunate misunderstanding in this connection. The Food Controller is not in the fish business, and what he did undertake was to facilitate the transportation of fish in refrigerator cars. By using the best shipping agent that he could find, he has been able to see that those cars made a continuous journey from Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, to their destination in the shortest possible time. Every reliable dealer, who is ready to pay cash for his fish, can obtain shipments of fish either from the Ontario Government, or by purchasing through agencies which handle the fish from the Atlantic. The Food Controller has also helped to secure for dealers fish cases by which this sea food can be marketed in better condition.

"It seems but a small thing that each woman can do towards saving wheat flour, beef, and bacon that are needed for export, yet multiplied by 1,600,000 Canadian homes, the amount is enormous. We cannot save the situation by saying that we do not believe there is a shortage or by criticising or finding fault with what is done.

"What we need is to get a better grasp of the facts pertaining to the task before the Food Controller, and to have a better knowledge of what he has done and has still to do towards maintaining the food supply at the front and stabilising markets at home. Mrs. Hanna has kept before him the great primary objects of seeing that the fighting men are fed and making certain that the Allied cause will not be endangered by a shortage of essential food supplies. The women of Canada are called upon to join a great Food Conservation Army that will have as its aims the providing of food for the fighting men and for the Allies, and the formation of habits of thrift that may stand in good stead when the war is over.

"Many incorrect statements are made in reference to the work of the Food Controller regarding prices. His work is compared with that of United States Food Administration. Mr. Hoover has made the statement repeatedly that he had no power to fix prices. He knows that to do so would be fatal to increased production, and that only a greatly increased production on the North American continent can save the situation in Europe.

"There is no one here who would not give all honour to the French women who have so nobly endured suffering, privation, unaccustomed toil, the loss of their goods, and the desecration of their homes, and yet we know that unless the Canadian and American women come to their rescue in the matter of saving the food necessary to export to France, thousands of these women must suffer hunger this winter. We can no longer think in a narrow provincial way. We are citizens of the world, and must take upon us the responsibilities of such. The war today is to be won by food, and in the last analysis only the women can save the situation."

Advent Of Maximalists Can Only Be Momentary Success

Russian Ambassador to Paris Says Russia as a Whole is About to Rally Around a National Government---Korniloff To Be Tried by the Military Revolutionary Tribunal---Successful Air Raids Made by British Flyers.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, November 9.—"Those who thought the Russian revolution had been finished made a mistake," said M. Maklakof, the Russian Ambassador, in an interview which appears in the Petit Parisien. "Alas now the blood of our people will flow again in the streets of Petrograd. But, however sad may be the advent to power of the Maximalists, it can be only a momentary success. In my opinion it is the supreme effort of the Maximalists. This desperate attempt, this daring stroke, can be only the signal for their downfall, and the organization of revolution in a national and patriotic sense, which is bound to assure victory against the enemies within and without Russia as a whole is about to rally around the national government and form for it a rampart of flesh andblood. A radical surgeon operation was perhaps necessary after the misunderstanding caused by General Korniloff's move in order to assure the salvation of immortal Russia."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, November 9.—The Military Revolutionary Committee has decided to bring General Korniloff, leader of the recent revolt, and his supporters, to Petrograd and imprison them in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. They will be brought to trial before the military revolutionary tribunal.

Lieut.-Gen. L. G. Korniloff was commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, when early last September several detachments of troops under his command marched in on Petrograd. The movement collapsed on September 13, and General Korniloff surrendered. A board of army officers inquired into the revolt, but General Korniloff has never been brought to trial.

HAS SOLDIERS WITH HIM.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, November 9.—That Kerensky has part of his army with him, this was reported at a meeting of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Congress last night, when it was announced that the deposed Premier had met six thousand soldiers returning to Petrograd from the front at a point 23 miles from Petrograd, and induced them to turn back with him towards Moscow.

ENGINEERED BY GERMANY.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, November 9.—That the Russian coup d'etat was engineered and subsidized by Germany for the purpose of eliminating Russia from among her enemies, is the virtual unanimous opinion expressed in newspaper editorial comment. A despondent view of the outlook is taken by some commentators, while others claim that the triumph of the Maximalists is probably a passing phase and refuse to believe that they represent Russia, or that Russia will agree to a separate peace.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Thursday—The War Office to-night issued the following statement on aerial operations: During Wednesday night more than three tons of bombs were dropped on enemy aerdrones at Gentrode and St. Denis Westrem, and on airdromes in the valley of the River Lye. Railway communications were also bombed and satisfactory results were observed. An enemy observation balloon on the ground was destroyed by one of our low-flying machines. One of our airplaines failed to return.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, November 9.—British War Office official to-day says: We made a successful raid last night to the eastward of Hargicourt. There was nothing of special interest to report.

Russian Army In North Joins Maximalists

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Nov. 9. — A telegram reaching Amsterdam from a German source says the Russian army on the northern front has joined the Maximalists and is marching on Petrograd.

Turks Are In Retreat

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Turkish enemy in Palestine is retreating towards the north. British airplanes are following up the retiring Turks and bombing them. Forty Turkish guns were captured, says the British official statement, announcing the Ottoman retreat. British and French naval forces are co-operating against the Turkish communications along the Mediterranean coast.

PASSCHENDAELE MUST BE RETAKEN SAYS HINDENBURG

However Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria's Forces Have Not Yet Recovered From the Blow They Received From the Canadians

LATTER ARE READY

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 9.— Crown Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, to-day had not yet recovered from the tremendous midriff punch just administered by the British troops in the capture of Passchendaele. There have been no counter attacks to date. Apparently Tuesday's blow left the enemy too groggy to try a "come back" immediately. From documents on officers captured early to-day, however, it is learned that Hindenburg has issued an order that he must have Passchendaele back. Compliance with the counter attack orders was expected. Meantime the Canadians are confidently sojourning in the village, with everything in readiness to roll back the Germans.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

"Reports for service or claims for exemption must be handed in not later than to-morrow. Class One men who fail to comply with this regulation will be treated as deserters after to-morrow."

STIMULATED BY ARRIVAL OF ALLIES

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The arrival of British and French troops, gay, confident and sure of themselves, had a tremendously stimulating effect on the Italian fighters, according to a despatch to-day from Reuter's correspondent at General Cadorna's Headquarters.

More Recruits For the Revolt

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Naval and military delegates at all points on the Baltic coasts have adhered to the new revolt.

AIDED BY THE GERMANS

London Opinion is That the Bolsheviki Coup in Russia Was Engineered From Berlin—Country Faces Winter of Horror

LENINE IN CONTROL

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Russia is back again where she was last March.

Bolsheviki fanatics, the extreme Radicals, who burn at once to make the world a brotherhood, who are set against all wars, who believe in uttermost democracy, to-day seemed to control all of Petrograd, the capital. Premier Kerensky and what remains of the machinery of the provisional Government, apparently still has support of the remainder of Russia.

The situation was regarded here as precisely parallel to the first few days following the revolution by which the Czar was upset. Then it was Ivoff, Miliukoff and other Liberals who first seized the outward symbols of the Government in Petrograd, while the old regime still clung to power in the other parts of Russia.

The danger, as London saw it to-day, was that Lenine, Trotsky and his fellow fanatics of the Bolsheviki, would be able to extend their control beyond Petrograd and sfaw Russia's great peasant population, ignorant of the Utopian idealism of the Bolsheviki, to their side.

KERENSKY ESCAPES.

Kerensky was reported to have escaped the rebels in Petrograd. He was reported seen en route to Moscow. It was believed here that he would name that city the capital and there endeavour to consolidate all Russia against the usurping group at Petrograd.

The Bolsheviki - controlled cable agency announced that Foreign Minister Tereschenko, Minister of Commerce Konovaloff, Minister of Public Relief Kiskin, Minister of Justice Maliantovitch, and Minister of the Interior Nikitin, had all been arrested by the new revolutionary governing council at Petrograd. Other provisional government officials were detained.

Nicholai Lenine, the Radical fanatic whose energies have always been regarded here as directed from Berlin, is firmly seated in power at Petrograd by the new revolution. Leon Trotsky, his co-partner in the coup, by which the Bolsheviki overthrew the control in the capital, has likewise come under previous suspicion as dominated by the Germans. Because of this the fear was felt that in pursuance of their crazy scheme of restoring peace to the world, or possibly, in pursuance of plans of the German officials who hold Lenine, Trotsky and others in their power, the Bolsheviki would open the way to Petrograd to a German fleet and German reinforcements to their forces. Heretofore the Bolsheviki have shown strength only in the larger cities like Petrograd and Moscow; the sentiment elsewhere throughout Russia for this faction has been negligible so far.

AIDED BY GERMANY.

In London it was regarded as practically certain that Trotsky and Lenine engineered their coup with Germany's direct aid. Civil war is certain in Russia, but whether the war would be confined to Petrograd, or would rend the whole nation, could not be predicted. In the meantime winter is fast coming to close its icy grip over the nation. With the government utterly disorganized, Petrograd cut off from the rest of the nation, the whole population aligned into two groups and no organization for the handling of food or of supplies and industry paralyzed, the country faces a winter of horror. It was the belief that the Bolsheviki revolt would develop some Liberal, holding Kerensky's views, but with a rough handedness which Kerensky has lacked, who would practically assume a dictatorship in Russia, that furnished the only optimistic note here to-day.

LINEN SHOWER

A very enjoyable time was spent on Thursday evening, Nov. 8, at the home of Mrs. R. E. Wegg, when her sister, Mrs. Wm. Lockie, (nee Pearl Anderson), received a very happy surprise when her girl friends of the Auburn finishing room department gave her a linen shower. The evening was spent in music and dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Lockie showed their appreciation by extending their thanks. After dainty refreshments were served the young people expressed themselves as having spent a very enjoyable time.

TROTSKY SHOULD HAVE BEEN HELD BY THE AUTHORITIES

Was Arrested at Halifax But Was Allowed to Go Home to Russia to Assist in Newest Revolution —Kerensky May Be Able to Carry On

CIVIL WAR UNLIKELY

(By Wm. G. Shepherd, U. P. Staff Correspondent, Who Arrived To-day From Petrograd.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—If Kerensky succeeds in getting away from Petrograd and establishing a new government at Moscow, I firmly believe he'll be able to carry enough of the army with him to keep up a semblance of war, and that is the best we can ask of Russia at this time.

There will be no civil war in Russia, aside perhaps from some street fighting in Petrograd.

There are two kinds of soldiers in Russia, those who want to fight and those who don't, and it is just as hard to get the latter to fight the former as it is to get them to fight the Germans.

MOBILIZED TOO MANY.

The Czar mobilized too many men. He put twenty million men in uniform. The great problem facing Kerensky in October was how to get some of these men back to their homes. Every time there is a change in the Socialistic government in Petrograd, the geographical area over which the incoming government has control is reduced, until now the new alleged government, which has replaced Kerensky, is governning only Petrograd alone. In Russia there are vast forces at work, quietly and often in an underground way. But they are bringing Russia together. As far as the

IT'S ON EVERYBODY'S TONGUE

Most conversations have a little bit at least about the coal situation and the amount each of the speakers has been able to secure for himself. Other topics are the high price of clothing or boots, and when the subject of boots comes up, it often leads to the mention of the now popular Neolin soles, combined with rubber heels. As this combination comes into further use its popularity grows, and to meet the increasing demand the Peterborough Shoe Store has secured several extra nice lines of both ladies' and men's boots, with the best grade of Neolin soles, and also rubber heels. To induce a trial of the new styles, Mr. Erster has marked these lines at prices from $1 to $3 lower than their regular selling prices for Saturday shoppers, and this big saving should pack the store all day to-morrow. Get the right place for the right prices. Peterborough Shoe Store, 291 George street, New Lundy Block.

Local Tribunals Had Another Quie Session This Morning With Only Three Cases Heard—Two Applications Refused.

740 CLAIMS SO FAR

Exemptions granted (All Category E Men.)	3
Exemptions refused	2
Decisions reserved	3

The above figures summarize the results of the sittings of the two local exemption tribunals up to noon today. It is apparent that the Class One men in Peterborough have preferred the post office method of registering their claim to exemption and the privilege of making an oral claim during the last three days of this week is not being taken advantage of by the men affected. The real work of the tribunals will not commence until Monday, when the first cases assigned to the tribunals by the Registrar will be considered.

Eight applications have been heard by the two tribunals and so far no one has been granted exemption on any other ground than physical unfitness. The three men so far exempted had been placed in E category by the Medical Board and they have been granted exemption until such class has been called for service. Two of the others had their claims flatly refused, while in the remaining three cases, two of the applicants had not been examined and were ordered to go before the Medical Board and judgment was reserved in the case of the third man until his nationality has been determined.

Up to noon to-day 740 claims for exemption had been registered at the local post office, while 45 men had reported for service, a considerable increase in the latter class.

Class One men are again reminded that they must register by to-morrow night. For their accommodation, Postmaster Edgar has arranged to have the post office open to-night and to-morrow night.

At the City Hall.

Only two applications for exemption were received this morning by the tribunals sitting in the Council chamber. They were both presented by men in Category "E" on the ground of infirmity, and exemptions were granted until this class may be required.

Charles Viener of Jackson Lane, said he was born in Canada, of Russian parentage. He had been working with the Shroeder Lumber Company and had come three hundred miles to register. The Medical Board placed him in Category "E."

Vernon Kerr, Elm street, enlisted with the 93rd Battalion, but was discharged at Kingston on account of a disability that rendered him unfit for service. He is also an "E" man and was exempted until his class is required.

Session Extremely Quiet.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Aylmer had an extremely quiet, almost dull morning. During the first three quarters of an hour the Chamber was as silent as a vacant church. It was the calm that precedes the storm, for the number of exemptions listed for this tribunal, the hearing of which will begin next week, is now over 235. But it should only be a passing storm at that, for if twenty-five cases are to be heard each day,

TAILORING EXTRAORDINARY

The awful ravages of war and the long duration of the same has upset the woolen industry to such extent that even the keenest buyers find themselves, as it were, up against the Straits of Gibraltar, which tradition says is impregnable, so that those who buy Peterborough's leading paper and take not, of any editorial which might be in it, and especially the one they are reading now will certainly benefit materially if they take advantage of the Globe Tailoring Co. (the well-known Specialty Tailor, corner of Brock street). A special offer in Suits and Overcoats, to your individual measure, for only $14.00. This company is well-known in Peterborough and district, and the value and reasonable prices of their goods is just as well-known, so they expect a rush for bargains on Saturday, Nov. 10th. Only one Suit or Overcoat to each customer, remember. Opportunity only knocks at your door once, so be there to open it. — Globe Tailoring Co. (of Toronto), 439 George Street, Peterborough.

WAR VETERANS' WANTS.

When the war veterans speak they should at least be heard respectfully; for the best and most we can do for the returned soldier, especially if he has been done up a bit in doing his bit, should be done, and in the best way. And more attention is due them when they plead, not for themselves individually, but for the families and dependents of soldiers who have done or are cheerfully doing a strenuous duty under ghastly conditions of danger and discomfort. The civilian—the man who "has not been there"—may not appreciate the merits of the demands of the veterans, but being seasoned soldiers they are not likely to give false alarms while on sentry-go or call out the guard on a scare. At any rate, officialdom, which is hard to impress, should give sympathetic, interested and intelligent consideration, to the requests of the veterans.

Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of Immigration in the Union Government, is taking mighty long chances of becoming a prophet, by forecasting sectional results in this confused, complicated, convoluted election contest.

RUMOURS AND FACTS.

It is reported that the aspirants for the Liberal nomination in Ottawa have retired in favor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier who, the Ottawa Journal-Press says, has accepted the proposal to be a candidate. The same authority says that in view of Sir Wilfrid's acceptance, Mr. Fripp, the Conservative candidate, will retire and allow Sir Robert Borden to become the Union Government candidate in Ottawa. In this event there will be a battle royal between the two chiefs. Sir Wilfrid carried Ottawa in the election of 1908.

But this may be only one of the rumours that spring up at election time, like mushrooms in the season. It is assumed that Sir Robert Borden will have the consistency to get the nomination of a union convention, and thus fulfil the conditions he has imposed for acceptable union candidates—they must not be the nominees of party conventions. There will then have to be a new deal in Ottawa. Mr. Fripp, who proposes to retire in Sir Robert's favour, is the nominee of a Conservative Association, though for the purposes of his nomination it changed its name from the Conservative Association to "The Win-the-War Association." But such subterfuge will deceive nobody; and if Sir Robert is the honourable man we hold him to be, he will not fall in with such a trick—to win a party advantage under the thin disguise of electing or running a party nominee as a union candidate.

The Union Government is supposed to supersede partizan government, and to be free from the expedients and trickery and double dealing which are so naturally associated with party government, that to remove the evils of partizan government we have to replace it with a non-partizan government composed of members of both parties, brought together in organization to do a specific work, which experience proved could not be done, or was not done anyway, by a party government.

A NATURE POET PASSED.

Thousands of the readers of The Globe, will read with great regret of the death of Mr. S. T. Wood, for a quarter of a century an editorial writer on that widely read journal. He was a specialist in the treatment of economic subjects, but his great literary distinction was won as a writer on natural history subjects, and his articles, generally appearing in Saturday's Globe, were looked forward to with a pleasurable anticipation, that was never disappointed in the reading. He was an authority on all forms of Canadian animal life. Of even the tiniest and obscurest forms he made a prose poem, as marked by its graceful literary form as by the knowledge and love of nature it revealed. He had a keen eye for the heart of things and the pen of a ready writer in painting what he saw. Such a large-loving man was of necessity a lovable man, as those who knew him knew, and as those who only met him in his writings will know by feeling. The dwellers in swamp and field, forest and stream, lost their most loving, and one of their keenest and most capable biographers when the gravely genial and gifted "Sam Wood" passed to the higher life.

Here is a chance for some corporation Ajax to defy the lightning. Sir Henry Drayton—the man at the switch—has been made controller of electricity—its production and distribution.

GETTING TOGETHER.

It is announced that Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Solicitor-General in the Union Government, is to address a meeting at Norwood in the interests of Mr. J. E. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., the Conservative candidate. Here we have conditions contrary to the letter and spirit of Sir Robert Borden's declared policy that no candidate who is the nominee of a partizan association can be accepted as a candidate of the Union Government. Yet here we have the Union Government represented by one of its members, not only practically recognising a party candidate, but giving practical help to secure his return. Hon. Mr. Guthrie is to address the meeting as a representative and member of the Government. He certainly does not appear in a professional capacity working for a fee.

It is understood that the Union Government was organised to eliminate party spirit and the partisan spirit, with its inevitable evil of the patronage system, and to represent the united spirit of Canadians in a hearty, patriotic, non-partisan effort to provide conditions and measures that would best help the work of doing the national duty in respect of winning this war. If partisanship is to be permitted to control the representative support of the Union Government in a new Parliament, we see the inevitable, the predominance of party and the side-tracking of patriotism as a motive element in national war administration.

In both West and East Peterborough the obstacle to getting the parties to work together has been the attitude of party candidates, who stick to the party nominations and prevent any approach to common party action in the selection of Union candidates.

In South Lanark, contrary to intimations that appeared in the press, the parties have got together; delegates to a win-the-war convention will be selected from both parties in each polling sub-division. The Conservative executive have taken the responsibility of calling this convention, bbut it ie stated that the "convention will be neither Conservative nor Liberal, but a pure win-the-war movement." The officers and executives of existing municipal organisations and members of Parliament will have no standing in the convention as such, and only those duly chosen as delegates will be recognised.

This procedure, if honestly implemented, should secure a proper Union candidate.

In this riding, though the party nominee unwarrantably claims the endorsation of the executive of the association, he persists in defying Sir Robert Borden's requirement and holds on to the party nomination, defeating the idea of arriving at any patriotic rapprochement such as is evident in South Lanark.

"A dog in the manger" is not very elegant, as it is an apt illustration of some things.

NINE O'CLOCK MONDAY

Monday morning at 9 o'clock all the bells and whistles in this city are expected to herald the opening of Canada's Victory Loan.

The clamour is to signify that all the people in this part of Canada, in company with all other Canadians, — are taking up joyfully, optimistically and with determination, the task of making this loan a success.

There are sure to be some among us who will sit back and say: "Oh, a hundred and fifty million dollar loan is out of my class — over my head, how can I help?"

Don't be one of these people. Don't hang back. Don't imagine YOUR contribution too small to help Canada. Five dollars down will, we are told, buy a Victory Bond.

Be ready for this campaign! Watch the Government's advertising from now on — and make ready to render your share of this patriotic yet profitable service to your country.

Trotsky Should Have Been Held

Bolsheviki are concerned, we may as well look the facts squarely in the face.

The average Russian soldier who does not want to fight is a Bolsheviki, not because of theories of Socialism, but because the Bolsheviki are against the war.

If this Bolsheviki happens to be a peasant, then he is a double Bolsheviki and he not only is unwilling to fight, but unwilling to remain at the front. He wants to return home and get his piece of land.

Behind Lenine and Trotsky there are undoubtedly hundreds of thousands of Russian soldiers who will welcome any talk of peace.

PETROGRAD LIKELY TO FALL.

If Lenine and Trotsky make a separate peace, it will be a separate peace for only a portion of the Russian army which has been poisoned by Lenine doctrines. Petrograd is very likely to fall anyhow. The Germans will probably get Helsingfors within a short time, and then they will cut the Finnish railway, which connects Russia with Sweden, but even if we have to say good-bye to Petrograd, this does not mean that Russia is gone.

The thing that impresses me most on my arrival here, and particularly in view of the latest news from Russia, is that we of America will have to carry the load. It will fall more and more heavily on us. And I am astonished, after having been in all the warring countries of Europe, to see the freedom with which the German aliens and sympathizers in the United States move about in perfect liberty. It was the Germans who poisoned and paralyzed Russia. The greatest piece of diplomacy in the war was achieved by the German who first worked out the scheme of permitting Lenine to pass through Germany into Russia.

SHOULD HAVE HELD TROTSKY.

I was on the steamer Christianaford, en route from America to Russia, early last spring when the Canadian authorities forcibly removed Leon Trotsky from our midst. This was at Halifax. If he had been held indefinitely, history might have been different in Russia. So also with Lenine. Both Trotsk and Lenine have been in New York. They have friends and sympathizers here yet, men who believe as they wo about the war, and men who if given opportunity, will try to do they do about the war, and men who that they are doing in Russia.

Only Exemptions Granted, etc.

the Board will probably complete its work within fifteen days, and a month is allowed for the hearing of all the exemptions throughout the country. There have been 740 exemption claims filed at the Post Office here up to noon today, but many of these will be dealt with by the country tribunals around Peterborough, thus lessening the work before the two local boards.

At the Court House.

Charles Douglas Palmer, who yesterday appeared before Tribunal Number 275, presided over by His Honour Judge Huycke and Police Magistrate Dumble, has been refused exemption. Palmer applied for exemption on physical grounds and was ordered to again appeal before the Medical Board. The examining doctors reaffirmed their original decision, and when Palmer again came before the Tribunal his application for exemption was refused, and he automatically passes into the military service.

Palmer stated that he would try and get into the Cobourg Heavy Battery.

Mrs. Howley, Rogers street, appeared before the Board this morning and announced her intention of applying for exemption on behalf of her son, John James Howley, whom she claims as her only support. Mrs. Howley is a widow. Judge Huycke advised Mrs. Howley that her son would have to appear before the tribunal on November 17th, when the claim would be heard. Howley is a brakesman on the C.P.R.

SCENE — Alderman Snobbin's Office.

CHARACTERS—Ald. Snobbins Sir J. Flathell, Mr. Director Grasp.

Curtain rises, showing Ald. Snobbins seated at desk and admiring his intellectual brow in a small pocket mirror.

A knock is heard on door, and in those dulcet tones he uses for addressing poor women, he says "Come in."

Enter Sir J. F.: "Good morning! Mr. Snobby, I believe—"

Ald. S.: "Snobbin, sir, is my name."

Sir J. F.: "My mistake, Mr. Snobbin. I am Sir Joseph Flathell."

Ald. S. (jumping up and bowing): "Delighted to meet you, Sir Joseph. It gives me immense pleasure to meet such a great benefactor of the wasteful poor. But for your heroic efforts at putting prohibitive prices on bacon, there is no knowing how many would have died from overfeeding."

Sir J. F.: "Well, now, it's very nice to find someone who appreciates my efforts, and that reminds me of my business. I called to congratulate you on the successful way in which you have made a 'Fish Monopoly' here. That was a great piece of work you and your committee put through, in confining the sale to three dealers."

Ald. S.: "Well, yes, if I do say it myself, I think I managed that fine. Mayor Love-us and Ald. Make-'em-Tired were inclined to kick, but we managed nicely to slip under their guard. Of course (giving a wink) a nice little bit of fresh fish as a surprise present is acceptable."

Sir J. F.: "It certainly is. But now, what I want to know is, how you managed to get by that feller Paskins."

Ald. S.: "Oh! That's easy. We've got the Government supply, so—" (A crash is heard on the door, and Director Grasp staggers into the room.)

Sir J. F. (starting up): "Goodness gracious, what's the matter Why, it's Mr. Grasp."

Mr. D. G.: "A drink, or I faint."

Ald. S. (bending in cupboard under desk, brings out flat bottle, marked "Spirits of Ammonia"): "Here, take a finger of this! Stop! I said a finger, not a whole arm. Now, what's the noise about."

Mr. D. G.: "Haven't you heard? Then, read this." (Hands over newspaper.)

Ald. S. and Sir J. F. read together: "A. W. Paskins Co., Cash Grocers, cor. Hunter and Aylmer. 'Phone 317.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON SUBJECT OF "ZIONISM"

Rev. A. B. Bennett, M.A., Literary Editor of Toronto Hebrew Journal, is Visiting Peterborough Hebrews.

THE VICTORY LOAN

Rev. A. B. Bennett, M.A., of Toronto, is in the city visiting the local Jewish community.

On Thursday evening Mr. Bennett delivered an address before a well-attended meeting of Peterborough Jews on the subject "Zionism." In the course of his lecture Mr. Bennett pointed out that assurance has practically been given by the Allied powers to the leaders of the Zionist movement that in the event of an Allied victory Palestine would be restored to the Jews. The Hon. Arthur Balfour, on the occasion of his visit to Canada, in conference with Mr. Clarence I. de Sola, the President of the Canadian Federation of Zionists, has virtually promised the support of the British Government to the plan of rehabilitating Palestine as a home for the Jews. Similar intimations have been received from the British Government by Dr. Weisman, the noted chemist, and president of the English Federation of Zionists, whose discoveries and inventions have been of inestimable value to the British War Department. The American, French and Italian governments are also known to be viewing the plan of giving Palestine to the Jews with great favour.

An announcement was made before the meeting of the pending Victory Loan campaign. Mr. Louis Sukloff gave particulars of the loan, and urged the Jews of Peterborough to subscribe freely to it.

The Rev. Mr. Bennett is a graduate of Queen's University, where he took the degree of M. A., in 1914, winning the gold medal in philosophy, under the noted Canadian philosopher, Prof. John Watson. He studied for the Jewish rabbinate, and has been ordained by Chief Rabbi Jacob Gordon of Toronto, and Hirsch Cohen of Montreal. He is widely known as a writer on topics of religion and Jewish, as well as general literature and philosophy, having been at one time editor of the Montreal "Jewish Times," and being now the literary editor of the "Toronto Hebrew Journal," a Jewish daily published in Toronto.

Carpenters Held Enjoyable Smoker In The Labour Hall

Last night's smoker at the Labour Hall brought out a big crowd of the Carpenters of the city, who thoroughly enjoyed an entertaining programme. The standing room only sign might have been hung out, so large was the attendance. Friends of the Union had helped provide smokes for the occasion, and the weed was was wooed in all its forms from cigars to the common clay pipe. Mr. J. M. Gerard, as chairman, shut the door on dull pauses, contributed a comic song that drew an encore and was largely responsible for the success of this first social gathering of the season.

Mr. Frank Pratt sang in old time form, "Out of the Deep," and "Goodwin Sands," both numbers making a fine impression.

Mr. Frank Whitehouse delighted the audience with his splendid rendition of the expressive violin solo, "The Caliph of Bagdad," by Boeldieu, and responded with an imitation of the bagpipes.

Mr. Frank Clark's "Watermelon Vine" vocal solo, with banjo accompaniment, won an encore, and Mr. J. John recited very effectively one of Service's new war poems entitled "The Man From Athabasca." Other pleasing numbers were a step dance by Mr. Dave Quinlan, a recitation by Mr. Bartholmew, and piano and violin duets by Mrs. Fenwick and Mr. Tucker. Mrs. Fenwick played the accompaniments throughout the programme in a highly satisfactory manner. At the close of the evening the Carpenters sang in a rousing chorus a series of patriotic songs, concluding with the National Anthem. Their singing was a revelation in spite of the fact that it was an impromptu effort, particularly of "Tipperary" and the other songs everybody knew.

Mr. Richard Hennessy, of Ottawa, addressed the meeting on the subject of "Unionism," and Mr. T. H. Lane, business agent for the Carpenters, added a little helpful advice on the advantages of co-operation. It was desirable, he said, that every carpenter in the city should belong to the Union and it was hoped that a closer and stronger sentiment would be fostered and maintained by social gatherings. Mr. Lane acknowledged the kindness of friends of the Union who had contributed to the success of the smoker.

"THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER"

"The Last Rose of Summer," that beautiful song by Thomas Moore, first won fame when sung by Adelina Patti many years ago. It always has had, and probably always will have, a strong appeal to everyone. It has now been reproduced on Victrola Record 74536 by Galli-Curci, and can be heard any time at the Victrola Parlours of Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., B. H. Big Reception For Laurier

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC CITY, Nov. 9.—It is expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will to-night be given another tremendous reception, when he appears at Martineau rink meeting. This building holds seven thousand people and overflow meetings will be necessary. Mayor Lavigneur will preside, and speeches supporting Laurier and his policies will be given by Sir Lomer Gouin and other prominent personages. Nomination papers for Quebec north will be presented to Sir Wilfrid when he rises to speak. This morning the Liberal leader held a conference with his candidates in all ridings within a hundred miles radius.

THE WEATHER

As the progress of the seasons one year usually follows the course of those preceding, it may be noted that on Nov. 4th and 5th of last year, the ground was white with snow for the first time. On the 12th another snowfall occurred, and on the 15th sufficient snow fell to provide sleighing for a few days. The snowploughs were brought out for the first time last fall on the 16th. Real winter weather, however, did not come until Dec. 13th, when we had our first zero. From that date until the end of the month there were 11 days on which the thermometer ranged near the zero mark, or below it. Good sleighing began on Dec. 22nd, and continued uninterruptedly until the middle of March.—W. P.

Hunter Killed At Maple Lake

The first hunting accident of the season in this county took place in the vicinity of Maple Lake (Haliburton), when a man by the name of Charles Wasnidge, from Grimsby, Ont., was accidentally shot behind the shoulder by his companion, a cousin, by the name of W. F. Wasnidge, of Dundas, Ont.

Few particulars are to hand, but it would appear that the two had been shooting ducks. Mr. W. F. Wasnidge was reloading his gun, had pulled the trigger half way up, when it slipped through his wet gloves, discharging its contents in the body of his cousin.

The accident happened about seven o'clock in the evening, the unfortunate man dying four hours later.

The remains were taken to Gelert Station and conveyed through Lindsay yesterday morning to Grimsby.

AUSTRALIAN SOLDIER SENDS HIS THANKS TO BUSINESS GIRLS

"Haven't Seen a Better Parcel" He Writes and Also Pays a Warm Tribute to the Work of Nursing Sister B. M. Mowry of Peterboro'

"DESERVES THE BEST"

The following letter was received by the secretary of the Business Girls' Club in acknowledgment of one of the property bags sent to one of the Canadian hospitals in France:

No. 1 Australian General Hospital,
France, 10/10/17.

Dear Girls,—To-day's mail brought me, amongst others, a parcel and a letter from Nursing Sister B. M. Mowry of your town. Sister Mowry is sure fine, and when she returns home, give her just your best, she deserves it. Last February I was a patient in No. 7 Canadian General Hospital under her care, and I, (and so was every body else) was treated "white" by her, and I remain ever grateful to her for many little acts of kindness and consideration shown me whilst an inmate there.

The parcel you will guess came from you thoughtful people and my it was "tres bon." I haven't seen a better, nothing useless, just everything that one, on this job could find use, or a "home for" (the chocolate and chewing gum I refer to here) and no "dead sea fruit" (useless stuff.)

Though I received your parcel I'm not really deserving of it, as I am now in a base job unfit for further service in the line. I finished up last May, and as a result of that "scrap" am now unfit for further service in the trenches and am transferred to the above hospital unit on the clerical staff, which, believe me, I appreciate far more than the trenches. I went in with the first Australian contingent on 25th April, 1915, at Gallipoli, and was blown up by a shell on the 28th, 3 days later, and as a result spent five and a half months on my back. I returned to Australia (I forgot to say before I am an Australian), was discharged and later re-enlisted, and returned to England, and France twelve months ago last month, but the intense cold played up with my back and have more than once wished I'd had a longer think over things, bewrites to thank you, is it?)—enough writes to thank you, is it?—enough about myself. I've made all this noise trying to thank you girls for your sacrifices you've made to send such grand parcels to the boys out here, and I want to let you all know, though you may not hear from all who are fortunate to receive them, that they are mighty welcome, and it brings joy to us to know that out here, in this awful hell, (and the trenches are hell) the home folks, don't forget us though we are away, and we do appreciate very much all you do for us to make our load lighter.

You call yourselves the "Business Girls' Club" and from that I take you are all business girls, well it's a business man (boy if you like it better) who thanks you. I am a commercial traveller, in civilian life (perhaps that accounts for my long windedness, in saying nothing, and forgetting the real object of my writing.) I won't bore you further, but will conclude by wishing you all the possible joys this coming Christmas and New Year, and by that time, I hope all those near and dear to you over here, will be returned to you, as well as when they left and that this war will then only be a "nightmare" of the past.

Good-bye to you all, and my poor, but sincere thanks to you. I remain,

Your Australian "Cousin."

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE PARTY A SUCCESS

The third progressive euchre held by the Immaculate Conception church was most successful in every way. A new feature was having the winning lady and gentleman go in opposite directions. In that way a continual change was made at each game. This feature will be carried out at the next euchre.

The prize winners were Miss Mary Driscoll and Mr. Wm. McCauliffe.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT SPRINGVILLE

Last Sunday anniversary services were held in Springville Presbyterian Church. Rev. Dr. Lee, of Millbrook, preached at both services. Large congregations were present both morning and evening, and special music was furnished by the choir, which was very ably assisted by Miss Golly, of Barrie. The managers of the church asked for a subscription of two hundred dollars, but like the Canadian war loans, this amount was oversubscribed by thirty dollars.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The week of November 11th is the World's Week of Prayer in the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations throughout the world. In eighteen different languages a constant stream of intercessory prayer and praise rises to the throne of God, and the answer comes back in the language, understood of all mankind, the universal language of love.

The prayers of a small group of women and girls led to the foundation of the Young Women's Christian Association, which now numbers 670,000 members, and this week, the Associations in every continent are linked together by a girdle of prayer.

The elasticity of the Association, and its adaptability to all nationalities is one of the signs that God has inspired all its developments. The needs of each nationality differ on the intellectual, physical and social sides of a girl's nature, while the spiritual needs are all the same. Chinese girls West African, Hungarian, French, American, have each their needs, problems, difficulties, but all are entering life's battle, and many of them, were it not for the Association, would get disheartened in the fight and would drift on the losing side.

A pamphlet from the World's Young Women's Christian Association, in London, England, publishes requests from them in prayer and praise during this week; praise for specific blessings that have come to their association, prayer for the advance of their work, and the further opening up of opportunities, praise for the workers who are already in the field, and prayer that more workers of the righ kind may go forth, and that all lines of the work may be in harmony with the will of God.

In China there are 56 Associations with an approximate membership of 3,862, and forty new foreign secretaries are needed for pioneer and extension work.

In India there are 166 centres, with a membership of 94,000. Forty-two secretaries from Great Britain and America are engaged in that country, in addition to many workers belonging to European and Anglo-India communities.

In Japan there are 23 Associations and a membership of 2,280. And in South, East and West Africa, in Egypt, in South America and in the West Indies, there are many Associations and thousands of girls and young women members and all of these members in all these countries are bringing their Association before the Throne of Grace.

The Association in Canada has for its field both the cities and colleges of Canada, and about 19,000 members, among students, business girls, workers in factories and domestic help. In the United States the total membership numbers 362,191. These countries give praise for a year of real advance, for enlarged opportunities for reaching the girls and women in factories and munition plants.

Will you join with us in asking a blessing upon the world-wide work of the Young Woomen's Christian Association—upon the endeavours of the local Association, and also the missionary work in foreign lands?

On Sunday afternoon at 4:15 there will be a short service of prayer and praise in the Green Room, at the Young Women's Christian Association—the opening service of the World's Week of Prayer, and all young women and girls, whether they are members of the Association or not, are cordially invited to come.

On Monday afternoon, also, there will be a similar meeting from four to five o'clock, for members of the Board and committees, and all who are interested in the work of the Association.

NEGRO MELODY

"Deep River" is an extremely beautiful version of an old Negro Spiritual. It is one of a group of Negro melodies harmonised by Coleridge-Taylor, the celebrated Anglo-African composer. Frances Alda sings it on Victrola Record 64687 with a depth of feeling that cannot fail to awaken a response in the heart of the listener. For sale by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., B. H. The Funeral Of Pte. M. Woodbeck

Apsley Member of the 98rd Battalion Died in Halifax While on His Way Home

The funeral of Pte. Melford Woodbeck took place on Friday, November 2nd, from his home in Lasswade to Grace Church, and from there to the Cemetery, Rev. Mr. Carr officiating.

Pte. Woodbeck enlisted at Apsley in December, 1915, and trained with the 9th Platoon. He went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, was wounded at Vimy Ridge, returned to England, where he remained many months. When it was thought he would live till he reached home, he sailed for Canada, and reached Halifax about two weeks ago in a very serious condition, and was admitted to a hospital, where he died. His body reached home at 3 o'clock a.m. on Nov. 2nd. He belonged to the Orange Lodge at Apsley, which was represented at the funeral.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his crippled mother, his father and two sisters, namely, Sabra at home, and Mrs. Andrews, of Glenalda.

Suggestion That Band Instruments Be Given To G.W.V.A.

The 93rd Battalion band instruments are being kept for the present in what might be called an antechamber to a lavatory at the City Hall. These temporary quarters have at least the requisite qualification of medium temperature. The delicate reeds of the clarionets and other fragile parts will not be impaired by the cold of the garret where they were formerly stored.

Yesterday Mr. F. W. Miller completed his grooming of the bass horns, slide trombones, and the rest of the twenty-eight instruments that were the pride of the old 93rd. A valve on one of the mammoth horns defied every effort to pull it out, but an application of hot water finally loosened it.

Mr. Miller, as an experienced musician and bandmaster, suggested that the instruments should be in use. The valves of the brass and reeds of the wood require careful and constant attention, otherwise the former will corrode and the reeds split.

Hence, it has been suggested that perhaps the Great War Veterans' Association might be made custodians of the instruments or be presented with them with the prospect of a Veterans' Band. Certainly they deserve a better fate than to be hidden away in a lavatory, gradually deteriorating through disuse.

VICTORY LOAN FOR PETERBORO' WILL BE ANNOUNCED ON SAT.

Peterborough's allottment of the Canadian Victory Loan will be announced to-morrow. The local organization is complete and ready for the first drive at zero hour on Monday morning. Last night the local executive and leaders met the divisional organizer, Mr. W. L. McKinnon of Toronto, at luncheon at the Empress Hotel. Messrs. Wesley Sherin and Thomas Braden of Lakefield, Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan, Robert Duff of Smith, Alex. Leason of Belmont and Methuen, T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, were present. Mr. W. H. Bradburn presided, and Mr. McKinnon and Mr. R. L. Warren, the local manager, reviewed the plans and generally imparted a feeling of confidence and responsibility that should ensure a local success for the loan.

Mr. Warren is in Havelock and Norwood to-day. Parents, school teachers and children are reminded of the prizes that are offered in the schools for the best essays on the subject "Canadian Victory Bonds" under the topics of their advantage to (1) The Buyer, (2) Canada, (3) The Allies.

It is expected that this contest will attract a great deal of attention. Silver and bronze medals are offered for the three best papers in each schools, and bonds for the three best compositions from the entire range of the provincial schools.

CLAIMED EXEMPTION FOR ONLY RELATIVE

In connection with the appeal of Mrs. John Jinks for the exemption of her son, yesterday, before the city hall tribunal, she stated to-day that her husband would have appeared but for the fact that he had to work. Mr. Benj. Jinks was discharged from the 93rd Battalion in England, and while at home was unable to work for a long time. Even now, it is stated, he has not fully recovered from the effects of his illness. His brother, Pte. John Jinks, was killed in action at Vimy Ridge on April 9th. He was blown to pieces by a German shell. Orville is his only son and his last male relative, and on that account, together with his own disability, the exemption claim was carried to the tribunal.

W. Dalliday appeared before Tribunal No. 275 this afternoon and applied for an exemption. Dalliday is a returned soldier, and is now employed in the Customs House. A formal exemption was not granted, but Dalliday's case was treated as an exception in accordance with the Act.

Soldiers' Chorus On St. John's Chimes At Noon Hour To-day

Mr. R. J. Devey's daily programme of patriotic and martial music played on St. John's chimes, reveals his extensive repertory of appropriate selections. The variety of his music is in itself a pleasing feature, and the ringing of the chimes appeals to the citizens in their homeward rush at noon. To-day Mr. Devey played the Soldiers' Chorus from Faust and "Heart of Oak." While the swinging music of the operatic chorus is familiar to most people, the words are not as generally known. They are as follows:

"Glory and love to the men of old,
Their sons may copy their virtues bold;
Courage in heart and sword in hand,
Ready to fight, ready to die, for Fatherland."

WILL LECTURE ON SERBIA

Miss Helen Losanitch to Speak in Aid of the Serbian Relief Fund

Miss Helen Losanitch will give a lecture in the Collegiate Assembly Hall on Wednesday evening next in aid of the Serbian Relief Fund.

Miss Losanitch is the daughter of Prof. Siam Losanitch, of Belgrade University, former Minister to London, Paris, and other capitals, and at present head of the Serbian Government Committee for reconstruction and relief of prisoners, with headquarters in Paris. All the members of her family are either in the Serbian Army or Government.

Miss Losanitch came to the States in January, 1915, and since that time has divided her time between Canada, the United States and Europe. The American Committee consider that two-thirds of the money which they have received is the direct result of her lectures. She is extremely popular there, with all the workers as well as with the public. Her most noticeable characteristics are untiring energy and perseverance in her work, and her sincerity and modesty. She has proved most popular on this tour of Canada, the secretary of the Manitoba Branch writing: "I cannot tell you how charmed we all were with Miss Losanitch and her splendid lectures. The people were most touched with her graphic description of Serbia, and she has greatly stimulated the interest in our work here. We were so glad to be able to arrange these extra meetings for her; she captivates the hearts of all who have the pleasure of meeting her."

Everyone has written in the same strain. She certainly has a most attractive personality, and tells her story in such a simple way as to appeal to the most stony-hearted.

Her slides show the retreat, which was made by her own father and mother, the hospital where she worked as a volunteer nurse, and the refugee camps in Corsica and France, which she has recently visited, and to which the British Serbian Relief gives so much support.

MR. BURNHAM'S PROPOSITION.

Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I don't mind— rather enjoy—Mr. Burnham's desperate attempts to force himself as "Union candidate" without being nominated. He should stick to the truth; and, even to help his case, should not make statements that the facts do not bear out. In his letter to the Review, and repeated in the Examiner, Mr. Burnham says:

"Since then Union Government was formed by the Prime Minister, and immediately upon its formation I submitted my support of it to the Prime Minister and was thanked by him. I also communicated with the Executive Committee of the Conservative Association of West Peterborough, and my action was approved by it. The committee also pledged its support of the Union Government and was prepared to do same for the same price.

As far as middlemen are concerned, we always got our supply direct from the fishermen and our offer proves we are sincere in at least trying to get a share of the patronage.

Thanking you for your space I remain,

Sincerely,
J. STEINBERG.
466 George Street.

Peterborough, Nov. 9th, 1917.

Mr. Editor.—I am just an ordinary working man, one of those exploited by sharks of all descriptions, and at election times by politicians. When I want a job, I am asked what I can do, and when given a trial, if not suitable, or fail to fill the position in any way, am discharged, and another man gets the job. I would apply the same conditions on the probable candidates for election.

Mr. Burnham has been tried. What has he done? Can he point to anything he has done for Peterborough? If so I would like to know what it is. He seems to me to have been guilty of "masterly inactivity." Mr. Worth tried to give him a boost in his letter, and when he mentions his connection with the glorious 93rd, he raises a very serious question. I would like to know if there were not at least half a dozen men in the 93rd older than Mr. Burnham? I have an idea that it was a recruiting scheme, and that Mr. Burnham went to the trenches as a Canadian M.P., and the statement Mr. Burnham made, that he was willing to go in any capacity, seems to me to be all "bunkum." He looks big enough, strong enough, and I was thinking he might be in the first draft, but now that he is married, and too old, I suppose there is no chance of his going any more. I think if he really meant it, that he could use his influence to squeeze in somewhere without the spotlight on him.

Mr. Hall is another prospective candidate, and again the question: What has he done for Peterborough? He is accused by some of driving industries away from Peterborough. Mention has been made of the old Cordage Works. Now is his chance to tell what he has done. He is on trial. What has he to say in his own defence?

Mr. Gordon has also been mentioned as a probable candidate, and again the question: What has he done for Peterborough? We all know his work on the City Council, his work on the Education Board, when he practically "stood alone." He seems to have the courage of his convictions, strong enough to stand on both feet, and, I believe, is not connected with either the Conservative or Liberal parties. He has proved his interest in the people, doing many kindly actions, which I could mention, when there was no thought of an election. He has proved himself on the City Council, as a man who can do things, so why not give him a chance to do greater things. He seems to me to be the right sort of Union candidate.

Yours truly,
SIMON PURE.

I am near enough to the inside to know something of what is going on, and I can assert, as a matter of belief and fact, that Mr. Burnham's statements, cited above, are, to speak mildly, shy of the facts. There has been no meeting of the executive since the Union Government was formed and no legitimate official communication of Mr. Burnham with it. The executive could not, therefore, as it has not, have "pledged its support of my candidature."

Whatever encouragement or countenance some members of the executive personally and unofficially may have given Mr. Burnham, as a matter of fact he has never been endorsed as a Union candidate or as any other candidate since the Union Government was formed. I will draw no inferences, but content myself with stating the facts so that the public may know the truth, or at least what isn't the truth.—Yours truly,

Near the Inside.

BRITISH FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Owing to the City Council refusing my request in regards to selling Government fish in Peterborough, an explanation is due to those who supported me in my request.

I was the first in this city to cooperate with the Hon. Mr. Hanna, Food Controller, to sell fish in Peterborough at any price he would allow, and he referred me to the Minister of Fisheries in Ontario, and was in turn notified to take the matter up with the Municipal Council of Peterborough.

I forwarded my request to the city, briefly stating facts regarding correspondence and my facilities for the handling of the fish.

I also attached a petition of about 500 names, embracing the largest hotels, hospitals, homes, etc., and a large number of housekeepers supporting me in my request, which should have entitled me to some consideration at the hands of the City Council.

Yet, notwithstanding this and the fact that I am the only licensed fish dealer in Peterborough for fish only, and handle more than 2,000 lbs. weekly, the committee who were appointed by the City Council did not even give a chance to co-operate, such as was given others.

In my offer I stated I was prepared to do my share for the benefit of the public and to cause less inconvenience by delivering the fish, which would be a great benefit to the housekeepers, for whereas she now has to leave whatever work she is doing and run down town to go to a store, where I offered to deliver it right to her door,

WEST ENDS WIN TWO FROM C. G. E.

Last night the West Ends and the C. G. E. met in a five-pin league fixture, the West Ends winning two out of three games. Williams, for the West Ends, was high man for the night with a total of 545, and high single of 237 in the third game. OBITUARY

THOMAS MONCRIEF.

Mrs. Edward Finnie, Barnard Avenue, has received word of the death in Shelbourne, Ont., of her brother, Mr. Thomas Moncrief, a former resident of this district. Mr. Moncrief, whose death occurred on Wednesday, has been a resident of Shelbourne for a long period, going to that town after leaving Emily Township, where he had formerly resided. He is survived by his wife and two children, and three sisters and three brothers. The sisters are Mrs. Ed. Finnie, Peterborough, Mrs. Wm. Morrison, South Monaghan, and Mrs. Walsh, Crystal City, Man., while the brothers are William and John, of Bailieboro, and George, of Fowler's Corners.

The funeral took place this afternoon at Shelbourne.

THE LATE MRS. R. A. DOUGLAS.

Ellen, Henry, beloved wife of Robert A. Douglas, died in Lindsay, Nov. 7th, of concussion of the brain, the result of a fall received two weeks ago. She was of Scottish birth, being the daughter of the late James and Helen Patterson Henry of Banffshire, Scotland. Subsequently, Mr. Henry moved his family to Canada, living first in the County of Ontario and later moving to Victoria, near Lindsay, where the subject of this sketch was married to Robert Douglas," and has since lived most of her married life in Lindsay. Her husband and one son are left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and devoted mother.

She was an Anglican in religion, but being of a quiet, retiring disposition took not an active part in church work. Besides the husband and son she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Maunder and Mrs. McLean of Toronto, and two brothers, Alexander, of Cameron, and William, of Peterborough.

The funeral will leave her late residence, Albert street north, on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and proceed to Riverside cemetery. Service at the house at 2 o'clock.—Lindsay Post.

GEORGE RICHARD PEARSE.

The death occurred in Kingston Hospital on Friday evening last of George Richard Pearse, who for the past 26 years, has been a resident of Campbellford. The deceased had been in failing health for over a year and owing to the weakened condition of his health he was unable to recover from a slight stroke which he suffered on Thursday.

Mr. Pearse was born in Belleville in 1845, being a son of the late Richard Pearse. He spent his boyhood days in that city, moving later to Trenton and Keene. Mr. Pearse was married in the latter place in 1884 to Miss Annie Buchanan, who is left to cherish the fond memory of a loving husband. He is also survived by three sons, Capt. R. H. Pearse in England, J. Leonard of Kingston, and Robert N. of town, and one daughter, Miss Florence of Lowell, Mass. A sister, Mrs. Wm. Gallon, of Apsley, also survives.

The funeral took place from the family residence, Booth street, on Monday afternoon to Mount Pleasant cemetery. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's church, assisted by Rev. G. A. Brown, a former pastor.—Campbellford News.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SITUATION IS GRAVE

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 10. — The Russian situation, in view of the revolutionary uprising of the Maximalists in Petrograd, is grave, but it is not hopeless.

This is the view of official Washington based upon unofficial reports of the overthrow of the provisional government of the new republic.

The State Department is without official advices from the American Ambassador at Petrograd, David R. Francis, concerning the most recent revolution. In the absence of information of this character State Department officials declined to speculate upon the possibilities of the situation.

Petrograd Not All Russia.

The fact was emphasized, however, that Petrograd, the gathering place of the most ardent of the radicals ever since the overthrow of the old regime, is not all Russia. The same view was taken by the officials of the Russian embassy. The contention is made that it is unfair to judge the temper of the entire country by the utterances and actions of the radical theorists who for the moment have been able to upset the temporary government and set themselves up as the arbiters of Russia's policy.

To what extent the triumphant Maximalists represent the sentiment of the people of Russia is not definitely known. It is assumed that the conservative forces of the republic will now assert themselves and that the issue, which long has remained uncertain, within a short time will be decided.

In the meantime the revolutionary government, if it may be called such, will not have the recognition of the United States. The credit that has been extended by this government will be withheld. The stream of supplies that has flowed from this country will be stopped until a stable and responsible authority is established to account for them.

To the State Department officials the political upheaval has not been altogether unexpected. Although apparently there has been no intimation that the Maximalists were preparing to overturn the provisional government, the uncertainties of the political situation were such that an upheaval of one kind or another seemed probable. With previous conditions in mind it has not been difficult for American officials to reconcile themselves to the present revolutionary outbreak in the conviction that a period of calm will follow and the future of the Russian Republic will become more clearly defined.

Secretary Lansing, in the absence of official advices, declined to comment upon the situation except to call attention to the fact that Petrograd is the gathering place for radical political agitators.

Coup d'Etat Not Permanent.

At the same time it was indicated that the revolutionists apparently control all the lines of communication from the Russian capital, and it is assumed that the despatches concerning the uprising and their assumption of governmental authority are designed to present their successes in the most favourable light. It is not taken for granted that even though the Maximalists have apparently taken hold of the government so far as it is concentrated in Petrograd their coup d'etat constitutes a permanent achievement for them.

Officials of the Russian embassy did not attempt to minimize the gravity of the situation, but they explained that, as the unofficial advices indicate, the revolution is a local affair. The edicts issued by the radical leaders are taken to represent only the views of the Bolsheviki in Petrograd, whom they dominate. The National Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates has not yet been held, and it has been the local councils outside of Petrograd that have heretofore generally sustained the provisional government.

In the case of Russia the United States in making loans has exercised greater precaution than in the case of the other allied Powers. Credits up to $325,000,000 have been extended, but only $180,900,000 has been paid out. Each draft has been first approved by the Treasury Department. Great Britain and France have been permitted to draw upon their credits as they chose.

No official statement was forthcoming concerning the policy that will be adopted by this government in view of the upheaval in Petrograd, but it is virtually certain that no further aid will be extended at least until a responsible government has been re-established.

Gen. Cadorna Retired From Army Command

Gan. Diaz is Made Commander-in-Chief of Italian Army, With Badoglio and Grandino in Second and Third Positions

WILL SERVE ON COMMITTEE

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, November 10.—General Cadorna, who has been in supreme command of the Italian army since the beginning of the war, has been given a place on the new allied war committee.

New heads of the Italian army have been named. General Diaz has been appointed first in command, with General Badoglio second, and General Grandino third.

General Foch, chief of staff of the French War Ministry, and General Wilson, sub-chief of the British general staff, will serve on the inter-allied committee with General Cadorna.

General Diaz is rated as one of the ablest Italian military leaders. He has rendered distinguished service in the present campaign. He is from Southern Italy. General Badoglia is a northerner. In the war, he has been in command of a brigade of Bersaglieri, whose heroic deeds have done much to decrease the gravity of the disaster.

Among military officers the decision of the allies to create a permanent military committee has caused great satisfaction. It is accepted as evidence that the allies have awakened to the necessity for the closest union of the whole length of the western front for the political and military conduct of the war.

RAISE THE WINDOW.

The death rate in city or country rises or falls with the average window sash. When window is closed tight the death rate sinks to its low level. As the chilly autumn nights come and the opening of the window grows smaller, the undertaking business picks up.

Death certificates never mention "closed windows" as the cause of death. It is "tuberculosis," "pneumonia," "lagrippe" that gets the blame. But the real culprit often is the closed window. The germs seldom have a chance when the window is open and the dungs inhale plenty of fresh air.

Workers are rarely discharged because they insist on keeping the window closed, but the boss finds the employee dull-headed, half-hearted, and inefficient and looks for someone to do the work better.

Good ventilation of the sleeping room is the most important of all. It can be secured without much loss of heat and without drafts—though even drafts are infinitely better than a closed window.

The open window pays in health.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—"I will continue to believe Russia will abide by her honourable pledges, until I am convinced to the contray," declared Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, in his weekly interview with the United Press this afternoon. The statement was in answer to a question as to the possibility of Russia making a separate peace.

"Conversations with the American mission," Lord Robert continued, "have been stimulating."

CATTLE MARKET

There are still large numbers of cattle of the rough common quality being shipped to market before winter sets in. Of the week's receipts, the choicer quality well fed butcher steers and heifers have not been at all numerous, in comparison with the far larger proportion of the commoner stuff. The big buyers for the packing houses have been pretty well "fed up" with the "rubbish," as they call it, and though good prices were well maintained on the early and mid-week markets, the closing markets for the week revealed the fact that the packers had decided to make a change. The result was a sudden let-up in the demand for canners, cutters, and common cows, and a consequent sharp decline of from 25c to 40c on these particular grades. For the rest of the market prices have held steady to firm all through the week at the early advance of 20c to 25c over the previous week for the good to choice grades of butcher steers and heifers. Choice quality fat cows also held steady at the recent prevailing high prices.

Among the feeders and stocker cattle the appearance on the market early in the week of the Rogers and Halligan firm looking for their usual quota of about 2,000 head of cattle for winter stabling, gave an impetus to prices for the best feeders. Choice quality feeding steers sold up to $9.60 to $10 for anything extra. Good feeders around 850 to 900 lbs. held steady to firm at from $8.25 to $9.

Sheep and lambs have held generally firm through the week, weakening slightly towards the end.

The hog situation has presented the usual puzzle to decide just how the market was going. The week closed steady at $17, fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

By FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

"By Heaven, the palaver!" he roared. "A hundred pieces of eight! The fellow means to buy her, that's plain."

"Trouble afoot," muttered Long Rodgers and loosened his cutlass in its hanger.

The two upon the block stood for a moment spell bound. At the first sound of Barton's voice, Ramona had raised her haggard face and her eyes met his. She gave a gasp of anguish and all the courage that had up to now supported her passed away. That he should see her thus, a cringing and beaten thing, exposed to the jeers and laughter of the crowd, sold as an animal might have been sold, was more than she could endure. She sank to her knees and covering her face with her hands, broke into sobs.

Portugueses Joe was no less astonished at Barton's unexpected appearance. For a moment he could not speak so great was his surprise. It is indeed was a contingency he had not counted upon. Lawless as was the town, sales made in the market were universally respected. The very life of the place, the continuance of the buccaneers in their grade, depended upon the sale of their captured goods to those who were willing and able to buy. Stores of silks and satins, of jewels and plate, were of little use to them, unless they could be first converted into cash for with money alone could food and drink and all the creature comforts for which they lived be bought. Hence there was an unwritten law, adhered to with the utmost strictness, that sales of goods made in the open market could not be violated by either the purchaser or the seller. A man who bid, was bound to pay the price he named, the one who sold to deliver the goods so purchased without haggling or delay. The Portugee found the situation by no means to his liking.

The thought of delivering Ramona over to Barton, however, was insupportable. Instead of securing the revenge he had planned, he would be leaving the girl in certain happiness. He glanced about, and found but Tench, Long Rodgers, Graves and half a dozen of his friends from the other ships upon whose assistance he could depend. The greater part of the buccaneers had already sought the taverns. Had he but time he might assemble half a hundred supporters, but it was necessary for him to act at once.

Still another feature of the situation troubled him. With the exception of Tench and his companions, no one knew of his private quarrel with the young Puritan. The men from New England were very highly regarded in the town. Not only were they subjects of the same king to whom the buccaneers owed allegiance, but they were more than usually welcome in Port Royal, both because of the store of provisions they brought with them, and because of the excellent prices they paid for the rum and other commodities they carried away. He observed at once that the crowd was not in any way opposed to the newcomers; instead, it exhibited only amusement, that a cold and austere Puritan should elect to buy himself a woman. It seemed incredible. The sympathies of the onlookers was decidedly with Barton and his friends.

The Portugee realized at once the disadvantage at which he was placed, but he did not perceive that Barton was accompanied by close to a score of his fellow-countrymen. This arose from the fact that the sailors, acting under instructions from Captain Willoughby, did not advance into the plaza in a body but straggled in in groups of two or three as though they were but spectators joining the crowd. Their costumes, identical with that of the other English seamen of the day, told the Portugee nothing.

Barton advanced without hesitation to the block and for a moment he and the Portugee stood facing each other. Tench and his companions moved in the same direction. A chorus of remarks came from the crowd.

"A hundred pieces of eight!" gasped Master Van der Hyde, retreating to the door of the tavern. "She's not worth the half of it." In truth Ramona, of little value in a menial capacity, owing to her lack of strength, appealed but slightly more from other standpoints, because of the evil reputation the Portugee had given her, and because of her wretched and woebegone appearance. Women were plentiful enough in the town. No man desired one who would be likely to run him through with a knife. Smiles were cheaper, a gay companion more to one's liking.

At last the Portugee found his voice.

"Well, Master Praise-be-to-God," he cried, "and what's your business?"

"I bid a hundred pieces of eight for the woman," replied Barton steadily. "Does any man here bid more?" He faced the assembled crowd with calm defiance.

Barton threw a handful of gold upon the block.

"There's your price," he cried, "half a score of doubloons, and my sword back of it. Who bids against me?" Again he scanned the faces of the crowd.

No one spoke. It was evident, from Barton's manner, as well as from that of the Portugee, that more lay back of this affair than was apparent. Stragglers on the outskirts of the crowd began to close in. Barton's men drew towards their captain, their hands upon their cutlasses.

"By our Lady!" the Portugee roared. 'You'll not have her." The next instant he had thrown down his whip and, jumping from the block, faced Barton, his hand on the hilt of his rapier. The two men regarded each other keenly, Portuguese Joe, red with anger, Barton, pale but determined.

The throng about them broke into excited exclamations.

"A fair bid!" cried one. "A fight—a fight!" another urged. "Let the lad have her," roared a sturdy English sailor. "Psalm-singing rogues!" muttered a Frenchman, jostling his way to the front. The greater part of the crowd seemed anxious to see the matter decided by a trial of arms. They were eager for some diversion, and this promised to while away the dullness of the hour. There was a surging forward of all present, but on that side of the market place that lay next to the harbour only the compact body of New Englanders, headed by Willoughby and Cotton, was to be seen.

Even now the Portugee had not realized the disadvantages of his position, but Tench was quicker of eye.

"Hold on Portugee!" he cried, approaching his companion and taking him by the arm. "The bid's fair. Let the fellow have her."

"Let me alone!" the Portugee retorted.

Long Rodgers also joined the little party.

"Let him have her," he urged. "A good riddance, say I." They held their companion by the arm, restraining him.

Barton whipped out his sword. The sight of Ramona, weeping on the block, rendered him furious.

"I've paid in gold," he cried. "If you want pay in blood as well, come on."

"Softly, lad," Willoughby cautioned, touching his arm.

The Portugee broke away from Long Rodgers and Tench.

"He'll not have her, the English dog!" he roared. There was a shout from the crowd as Barton's cutlass rang against the thinner blade of his opponent's rapier.

There was an expectant silence. The two men fought desperately to gain an advantage. The Portugee was cunning in fence but the strength of his opponent was against him. Back and forth they sprang, their swords striking fire as they clashed against each other. Barton was weak from his recent wound, but the sight of Ramona in her wretchedness, nerved him to supreme effort. Scarcely had the two made a dozen passes, when the Portugee's sword was torn from his grasp and went whirling through the air in the direction of the block. An instant later it clattered upon the ground, and a great shout went up from the assembled throng, through which could be heard words of encouragement for one or other of the combatants. Barton might have run his opponent through, but he withheld his arm. In an instant the Portugee had recovered his weapon.

"Caramba!" he cried. "Come on."

The contest was short. Barton, wild with rage, swept the light rapier aside and made a mighty lunge. His cutlass struck the Portugee full upon the breast and drove through his velvet coat until its point protruded a full six inches beyond the other's shoulder blade. When he withdrew it, the Portugee gasped hoarsely, spun about twice, and fell headlong upon his face.

Tench and his companions sprang forward at once but they realized the odds were against them. Facing them were a score of rugged New Englanders, sword in hand. They drew back, hesitating.

OH, SUCH A HEADACHE!

Every now and again don't you get one of those fearful headaches that drive you to do anything to get relief? Remember, though, its a mistake to just "smother" the pain without removing the cause. Nearly all headaches have their beginning in the stomach, liver or bowels, and the best remedy is Chamberlain's Tablets, which tone the liver, sweetens the stomach and cleanse the bowels. This not only cures the headache but prevents its return.

Inheritance Tax Argument

Inheritance taxes are very heavy. Unlike Fire hazard they are not merely possible, they are absolutely certain.

They deplete your estate at once, and to your heirs represent a specific and definite loss of money.

In New York a $250,000 estate would pay a combined Federal and State tax of about $22,000. It left to a friend or distant relative, about $22,000. The John Jacob Astor estate paid $3,150,000. J. P. Morgan has insured his life for $2,500,000 to cover a similar loss.

Thus the estate is provided promptly with the ready cash to pay this tax and other expenses without the need of hurriedly disposing of securities or other assets, perhaps at a loss, to meet such needs. The logic of the situation urges immediate action. Premium rates, however low, advance with age and so does the possibility of entering the physically impaired group and losing the opportunity to secure this protection.

Knowing that this loss is actually coming, it is simply a matter of ordinary business prudence to guard against it. The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada offer you a plan to do so at very low cost.

THE CUMBERER.

Beside a garden's sheltering wall,
Where never chilly frost wind blew,
Spreading luxuriant, rank and tall,
In sunny spot, the fig tree grew.
Profuse in foliage, green and fair,
Proud her succulent branches shoot,
Yet unprolific, never bare
A harvest store of ripened fruit.

The husbandman, with anxious eye
Beheld the cumberer of the soil,
Flaunting her barren boughs on high
That scant repaid his constant toil;
And with a seeming cruel blow
Of keen, relentless pruning blade,
He cut the sapping tendrils low—
The useless branches prostrate laid.

Thus shorn, the tree in sadness mourned
Her beauteous limbs, so rudely cleft,
Until at length the truth she learned,
Her useless boughs alone were reft.
And lacking them she stronger grew
Than erst in selfish ease of yore;
Henceforth to destined Nature true,
An ample fruitage ever bore.

So when earth's pleasures, toils or cares
Down drafting to our spirit cleaves,
And life no worthier fruitage bears
Than vain display of worldly leaves,
Comes then the Husbandman Divine,
And sunders soon the clinging ties
That heavy round our hearts entwine
Till in the dust each, withered, lies.

Youth's fairest prospects swift decay
And fade as vapour clouds of morn
Before the noonday's melting ray,
The fondest hopes of bliss, earth born,
That the untrammelled soul may rise
Above the fleeting joys of earth
To, faithful, seek beyond the skies,
The treasures of eternal worth.

Let An Expert Deal With Corns

Ask who makes it before you use a method for ending corns.

Harsh methods are not sanctioned now. Mussy methods are unnecessary. Soreness never need occur.

Blue-jay was invented by a chemist of high repute. It is made by a concern of world-wide fame as a maker of surgical dressings. Its action is gentle and results are sure. It acts on the corn alone, not on the healthy tissue.

Apply it as you wrap a cut finger. That ends all pain, all discomfort. In two days the corn disappears. Sometimes an old, tough corn needs a second application. But no corn can resist this method. It is sure to go.

Millions of people know this. At the first sign of a corn they apply a Blue-jay. Corn pains never bother them.

You will always do likewise, when you see the results. One trial will convince you. It means so much, and costs so little, that we urge you to make it now.

Deal with one corn tonight.

How Blue-jay Acts

A is a thin, soft pad which stops the pain by relieving the pressure.

B is the B&B wax which gently undermines the corn. Usually it takes only 48 hours to end the corn completely.

C is rubber adhesive which sticks without wetting. It wraps around the toe and makes the plaster snug and comfortable.

Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. After that, one doesn't feel the corn. The action is gentle, and applied to the corn alone. So the corn disappears without soreness.

The Charm of Good Taste Is Always Simplicity

The Wool Trimmings Make Their Debut

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—There is a kind of breathless interest, here in New York, over the battle of the bustle and the straight silhouette. To-day, one is sure that the long skirt and tunic, in other words the straight silhouette, is triumphant; to-morrow, there may be seen so many charming examples of the bustle frock, both on the street and on the stage, that one thinks it surely will be accepted. However, at the present moment, the one-piece dress and the frock with the long tunic seem to be the favourites.

On the stage, to be sure, the bustle is most attractive. There is something very graceful about the fall of soft materials in pleats or drapery, whether it be at the side or in the back. Sashes, too, are used to obtain this effect, thus slightly breaking the straight line. The materials are usually velvet or duvetyne, in any of the soft shades of the present season.

Simplicity Plus Charm.

The slogan of "American Fashions" has brought out some wonderfully interesting things. Indeed, there is no reason why the American designers should not be the best judges of the styles most becoming and appropriate to the American woman. The slightly fitted waist, not unlike the first form of the basque, has a piquant charm when combined with the tunic that is longer in the front than the back, and the ankle-length skirt. It is truly the costume of the lady, and the illustration here shows some of the newest features of this style. The points of the waist are weighted with balls and chains in the form of amber beads. The beads are used instead of a tie, too, coming from under the collar. The velvet of the dress falls in charming folds, and the pointed collar and deep cuffs are of heavy satin. Needless to add that this is a costume for those occasions when one wishes to be particularly well-dressed, without having that "dressed-up" feeling.

And Now Wool Trimmings.

From Paris, uncensored, comes the report of something new in the trimming line! The vogue for knitting and crocheting has revived so much interest in that interesting art that a new fad has sprung up. Wool trimmings are used on everything, from the simple serge dress to the more elaborate afternoon costume. There are bands for hats, belts, sailor collars and cuffs, all in shades soft or brilliant, as the occasion demands. These trimmings are even, in some cases, supplanting the use of fur on suits and coats. Shawl collars, made of angora or brushed wool, are considered very modish. Ball trimmings, crocheted in bright colours, and round flat flowers of wool embroidery, can be used both for hats and dresses. Just think how smart you can be, with very little effort on your part, if you can knit or crochet and can spare the time from the dull-grey and olive-drab sweaters you are turning out by the wholesale for the sailor and soldier boys! The work goes quickly and is pleasant, besides being so very effective.

Fix the rest of the pastry on top of the pudding, cover with greased paper, steam for three or four hours.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

FALLING HAIR.—This is a condition never intended by Father Nature but is entirely due to neglect and want of proper attention and method, in taking care of this beautiful appendage of the head. A gardener carefully looks after his flowers and shrubs, otherwise his plants would be a failure. Therefore, why should not you do the same with your own body.

The chief cause of loss of hair is due to imperfect circulation, and another is the use of hard and tight fitting hat bands, which by compression impedes the regular and necessary flow of blood through the arteries and veins. Still another cause for this undue loss of hair is an unclean condition of the scalp. By this I do not mean that the head is left seemingly dirty and neglected, but by the presence of almost invisible particles of dry powdery scales, which in many cases cover the whole scalp. This is the main and chief cause of loss of hair, and every effort should be used to remedy this condition. These scales contain destructive elements which are always a source of great harm. They are technically called "Sahorrhea Bacteria." Terms which are not thoroughly understood by the general reader are not so good, however, as common names so we will call it "Dandruff."

The best method for prevention of baldness is first to use a pine oil and potash soap as described in the Home Health Club books, in washing, and this must be carefully applied both to the hair and scalp. First wet the hair with warm water, gently rub on the soap and then use the tips of the fingers vigorously all over the scalp. After thoroughly rinsing, dry thoroughly and then apply a good stimulating hair tonic of any standard make. Some hair is naturally very oily, and in that case should be dressed in dry condition, but when the hair seems dry and harsh you should apply a small quantity of fine olive oil.

Never brush the hair violently, but use a soft brush with a general sweeping movement. You will notice the clean condition of both hair and scalp with the pleasant sensation of life and activity over the entire head, indicative of health and an ample reward for your labour.

If you follow this simple treatment you need have no fear of dandruff nor falling hair, and you can retain this beautiful ornament of Nature even to an advanced age.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 6039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with four cents postage.

Dear Doctor: Have you any medicine that will help bed wetting for a boy ten, and a girl, nine years old. They are in pretty good health, but as soon as the boy gets a cold he gets swelled under the eyes about as far down as the nose. They have both been troubled this way ever since they were small babies.

Mrs. N. C. A.

(Answer)—In addition to the remedy I have had sent you for bed wetting, I would suggest that you should not allow your children any liquids after 5 p.m., and all children under ten years of age should be put to bed by 7 o'clock, then if you go to bed at perhaps sometime between 9 and 10 o'clock, you should take them up, then again the first thing in the morning and you will soon have established a habit that will overcome the difficulty. In some cases this is one of the most stubborn ailments that children are afflicted with, although of course, it is not of a dangerous nature. In that case of your child that shows a symptom of swelling under the eyes whenever he takes cold, I think it would be wise for you to send a four-ounce sample of the first urine passed in the morning for analysis, and we can then see if there is any connection between the kidneys or bladder and the swelling.

Dear Doctor: I have had a great deal of trouble with my right foot for over a year. A wheel fell on the ankle then. I consulted the doctor at once but he said it was not from that accident but that I had broken arches, so I used arch supporters and was all right for three months. Then I went to a specialist and he told me that I had never had broken arches, but that I had swollen veins. He said I should use rubber stockings and bathe feet often in warm and cold water. This I have done all the time and still the foot is no much better. It is very stiff and swollen on the inside and around the heel. It aches at night. I have a large family and a lot to do, so it is very hard for me. I weigh 150 pounds and am 5 feet 4 inches tall, age 49 years. Have always been strong and well. Have six healthy children, youngest is 13 years old. Lately I have not been able to bathe foot more than once daily because I get palpitation of the heart and I have to lie down a while. My stomach is in good condition and it is seldom I have a headache. I wish I could get cured so that I could go out more, because I used to walk several miles a day in the fresh air. You probably know what is the matter with my foot.

Mrs. H.

(Answer)—Your letter is carefully read. It seems to me that you have been subjected to considerable guess work, and that the wisest thing for you to do is to find out just what the condition of your foot and ankle is, and in order to do this all that is necessary is for you to go to a thoroughly skilled X-ray specialist and have him take 2 or photographs of your foot. Then he can easily study them and find out just what the trouble is. If you have broken down arches, it will readily show in the picture. If your ankle has been injured that will also easily show. Then you should go to a skilful osteopath and have him treat your foot and I think it will get entirely well.

Life is Scarcely Worth While When the Liver Goes Wrong

IT may be putting it too strongly to say that "everything depends on the liver." And yet this is not far astray when you consider what a host of human ills have their beginning in a sluggish, torpid condition of this filtering organ.

You arise in the morning with the tongue coated, a bitter taste in the mouth, and the head aching. You find that you have dizzy spells and are bilious, with looseness and constipation of the bowels alternating.

Your appetite becomes fickle and what you do eat does not digest properly, and you suffer accordingly. Gases from the fermenting food crowd about the heart, and cause smothering feelings and blinding spells.

As the biliousness hangs on the complexion becomes sallow and muddy, and dark rings form around the eyes. The whole system is poisoned, the kidneys are overworked in an effort to cleanse the blood, and when they fail such ailments as rheumatism, dropsical swellings and Bright's disease have their beginning.

To prevent this chain of troubles it is necessary to keep the liver active by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The phenomenal success of this medicine is due to the unique combined action which it exerts on the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The liver is aroused, the kidneys are invigorated, the bowels are regulated, and the whole filtering and excretory system is thoroughly cleansed. Pains and aches disappear with the poisons. Digestion improves, and you soon find yourself feeling fine. This letter from Rev. George Alton will interest you.

Clergyman Had Bilious Attacks for Four Years Now Entirely Cured

Rev. George Alton, Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I had been suffering from bilious attacks for four years. I was very weak, had headaches, and my stomach was so bad that I could hardly eat anything without being troubled by it. I had tried many cures, herbs, pills and salts, and was under the doctor's care for some time, but instead of getting better I seemed to get weaker. I was unable to follow my appointments on Sabbath, and had to secure help. I used to take dizzy spells and could not walk across the floor straight. I had almost given up all hope, and my wife said that if I did not get better we would have to quit the work of the ministry. However, in looking over The British Whig, the well-known Kingston paper, I saw Dr. Chase's advertisements in it, and read how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had helped others who were troubled as I was. I resolved to give these Pills a trial, and I must say that in a short time I obtained relief. I continued taking them for some time, and now I am able to resume my work again. From the benefit I have obtained from these pills, I would recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

Rev. C. Cunningham, 124 First avenue, Toronto: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Rev. George Alton of Gananoque, and believe his statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct."

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH BRONCHITIS

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup GAVE INSTANT RELIEF

Bronchitis is a disease which is very prevalent during the late winter and early spring, when there are sudden atmospheric changes. It is a condition of inflammation of the bronchial tubes which produces mucous or phlegm. This irritates the throat and causes you to cough in order to get rid of it. The cough may be tight or loose according as to whether this mucous is sticky and hard to remove or soft and easily expelled.

Bronchitis is not really dangerous, but the complications which are liable to follow makes it necessary to get rid of it at the first sign. This you can do by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for over 25 years.

John D. McFarlane, Jr., S. W. Margaree, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. It is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of, and I now take care that I always have a bottle of it on hand."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Two Out of Three Plays Always Fail.

In an article called "Acting—A Part Time Job" in the American Magazine Walter Prichard Eaton says:

"Suppose we say that a play is rehearsed on an average of three weeks. (Some few are, unfortunately for art, rehearsed less, some a good bit more.) Now, bear in mind the fact, which is pretty well established by figures, that at present two out of every three theatrical productions in America fail. That means the ordinary actor or actress, out of three attempts to land a salary paying job, works at least nine weeks on half pay or less. When you further deduct the usual summer vacation time of, say, six weeks and add a week, at the least, hunting each new job, you reach the rather astonishing conclusion that the average actor may very conceivably lose nine weeks out of the fifty-two entire and nine more weeks in large part. In other words, he is only a part time worker. His 'munificent' salary doesn't look so munificent when figured on this basis."

Voracity of Pike.

While two Edinburgh anglers were fishing from a boat on Loch Ard, Aberfoyle, they were attracted by splashing on the surface of the water close to a clump of reeds near the shore. Approaching the spot, they found that two pike—the individual weights, ascertained later, were two and two and one quarter pounds—were locked together, the smaller of the two in an attempt to swallow the larger, having succeeded in enveloping in its jaws almost the whole head of the other. On the fish being taken into the boat with a landing net considerable difficulty was found in separating them, the teeth of the one being firmly fixed in the skull and gills of the larger fish. While the voraciousness of this fish is well known, it must remain a mystery whether the incident described arose from cannibalism or was the outcome of a fight.—R. M. W. in Edinburgh Scotsman.

HEROIC JOKES

(By LIEUT. C. VINCE)

Even after two years of war the British soldier remains very baffling to all but his own countrymen. Those very tales that we tell of him with most pride, and in particular those tales of Cockney humour, that perpetual elfish humour which makes fun of war, which is always ready to be reminded by it of something commonplace are those tales which other peoples find most baffling.

A foreigner from a neutral country told me that he could not understand battalions kicking footballs as they went forward to the attack, still less could he understand our admiration for it, or the ceremony with which one of those footballs had been preserved. He was not a stupid man. He knew a little of England, but he could not get it out of his head that the incident had something to do with an ill-timed and insane reverence for the game of football. He could not see that, in fact, it had nothing to do with football at all, but was the very key to everything that he could not understand about the English character in war. But if the neutral was content, a year ago, to set aside as inexplicable such acts as these, he has since the first of July come to realize that there is something behind them which is worth understanding, some genuine and spiritual thing, if only he could come at what it is.

The French character in war could never be misunderstood like the English, just because of that touch of Cyrans which it has in its great moments, that magnificence, that consciousness of its great moments. All the world understands and loves the beau geste in war, and there are many in our own records of this war. All the world is thrilled by the story of the piper who mounted on the trench parapet to play his pipes to his shaken company. That is your beau geste, heroic, extravagant, understood by all the world. But all the world does not see the beau geste in kicking a football.

It is this elfish humour, the deliberate delight, as the foreigner takes it to be, of what he could consider the opposite of the beau geste, which puzzles him. He does not understand the excellence, the pure Cockney humour of the soldier who, as his platoon pushes up through the communication trench just before an attack called out 'This way to the early door.' It is easy to miss what is admirable in that and in a hundred stories like it. The jokes of the billet and the camp are easy to understand. The Grande Armee itself had its jokes round the bivouac fires. It is these jokes at the very moments of crisis that are baffling. They delight us even more than the beaux gestes of war. But on others the reminiscence of a theatre crush as one goes up to the attack, the kicking off a football across 'No Man's Land' under machine gun fire, the calling of a battle a 'show' has the same shocking effect as irreverence in church. It argues an insensibility.

That is why to the German mind the British soldier appears as either much less or much more than a man; when what it does mean is simply that he has succeeeded in remaining a man, something which the Germans conspicuously showed in their first triumph and are beginning now to show in their defeats, that they cannot remain. That is the key to these inexplicable stories of the British soldier and the inexplicable value that we set on them. Each one of them delights us because it is so much evidence of that which is his great moral strength in the shock of war, his obstinate determination through its horrors, its fears, its excitement and even its glories, to remain himself, to be what he was in the streets of his own town.

And so he sings the same songs, he makes the same jokes, and he kicks the same football as in his own town; and he does these things in the very heat of war. He delights in them though to others they seem unworthy of war, because he delights in being always himself. In war to insist on that and to succeed is in itself heroic, and that poor joke of the early door, which every Cockney has made whenever he has been in a crowd, becomes in the circumstances of the trench an heroic joke.

There is a soldier in a certain line regiment, long since invalided home, who, in the earlier days of the war, was known in his company for always having some piece of extravagance, some drollery ready for those times of strain, that sudden infection of nervousness which will run suddenly along a trench. He could always catch the attention of his comrades for that moment which was enough to ease the stretched nerves. His platoon commander said of him afterwards that he had appealed to him many times, at such crises for a joke and always found him ready. Those jokes were beaux gestes, though they will never find a place among tales of the heroic, and were only understood by those who laughed at them.

It has been said by both sides, and said truly, that this war is a war of nerves. We have seen in a hundred captured German letters how men write when they have lost the power to raise their heads under the weight of circumstances. And we see in a hundred stories of our own troops how men with a joke can drive the power of circumstances away. In a war that is a war of nerves those men will endure who have the secret of remaining steadfastly themselves through all circumstances. That is why the story of the early door is heroic, why that piece of pathos is worth a dozen beau gestes. The German would have said of that man that he had not the soul of a soldier, that war could not inspire him. We know that it means that he could go into battle with the same even nerves and cheerful heart that he went into a theatre, and men who can go into battle so will endure.

It is a bad business for Germany that she has no real mellow sense of humour left. Kultur has withered it out of existence. One of the Allies greatest assets is that the British and the French sense of humour is even keener, truer, stronger, more mellow to-day than it was in 1914.

Cough Nearly Gone in 24 Hours

Anyone who tries this pleasant tasting home-made cough syrup, will quickly understand why it is used in more homes in the United States and Canada than any other cough remedy. The way it takes hold of an obstinate cough, giving immediate relief, will make you regret that you never tried it before. It is a truly dependable cough remedy that should be kept handy in every home, to use at the first sign of a cough during the night or day time.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 55 cents and you have 16 ounces of the most effective remedy you ever used.

The quick, lasting relief you get from this excellent cough syrup will really surprise you. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Unpatriotic.

We take this little sentence from Pierre de Coulevain's "The Heart of Love:" "What constitutes the worth of a country is the worth of each member of it."

That is a great truth. In the light of it only a worthy citizen is a patriot. The questions are: Who is the worthy citizen? What are his qualities? What sort of a life does he lead? When these questions are pressed with respect to very many people it will be found that there are many persons who are real enemies of the country rather than its patriots. Every grafter, every demagogue, every spoils politician, every drunkard, every gambler, every profane swearer, every liar, backbiter and every man who beats and curses his wife is an enemy of the country, and as long as they last the republic will be an experiment and a problem. One must be a worthy man to be a friend of his country.

Aviation Tests.

Could you learn to aviate? Try the following tests, which were given to a number of would be government aviators who were examined recently in the government school of aviation:

Balance thirty seconds on either foot with your eyes closed.

Walk backward and forward thirty paces with your eyes closed and see how far you have strayed from a straight line.

Sit on a revolving chair and twirl yourself around a half dozen times; then, without opening your eyes, name the direction you are facing.

Put cold water in your ears; then replace it by warm water. If the effect is the same in both cases your ears are normal as far as susceptibility to altitude is concerned.

7,406,544 FOOD PLEDGES.

One Family Out of Every Three Supporting Conservation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—One family out of every three in the United States has pledged support to the Food Administration's plan for voluntary food conservation. Reports tonight at headquarters show that the total enrollment for the country is 77,7406,544, but returns are coming in and officials expect that the 10,000,000 mark will be reached.

Although Alaska was not included in the food pledge campaign on account of its isolation, it has taken a part with 656 families enrolled. The campaign is being continued.

New York City has passed its goal of 500,000, and the committee there announces that it is going after 1,000,000 signatures. Its total at headquarters here to-night was 513,472.

Oklahoma has joined Louisiana, Alabama, and Vermont in the group of States that have passed their goal. California still leads the States, with New Jersey second, and Michigan third.

More than 90 per cent. of the country's better class hotels have signed pledges and the others are coming into line. Although the movement for a meatless Tuesday and a wheatless Wednesday was not started until late in September, it has been generally accepted by public eating houses everywhere.

FOUGHT THE DRAFT

The Scene in New York City During the Riots of 1863.

A BRIEF REIGN OF TERROR.

For Five Days the Mobs Opposed to Conscription Raged Through the Streets, and More Than a Thousand Persons Were Killed or Wounded.

During the draft riots in the war days of 1863 New York city was in the grip of a reign of terror and bloodshed for nearly a week. Conscription was begun on the morning of Tuesday, July 13, in a four story brick building at Third avenue and Forty-sixth street, under the supervision of Provost Marshal Jenkins. Assistance and protection had been promised, but no one came to help him and his little force. Drafting commenced at 9 o'clock, and a big crowd stood outside. A stone was hurled through a window at 10:30 o'clock, and soon many more were battering against the walls. Terrorized, the police and draft officers fled to the street, where many of them were roughly handled.

The rioters rushed into the draft office and threw the enrollment books out of the windows to the crowd, which tore the records to shreds. The draft wheel, chairs and tables were smashed, piled in the middle of the room, and a match was applied. This building was one of the many burned, the aggregate loss by incendiary fires being estimated at $2,000,000.

For negroes in the city it was a day of doom, the mob looking upon them as one of the chief causes of the draft. Many of them were killed and wounded, some being shot, others beaten to death and still others hanged to trees and lampposts. The Colored Orphan asylum was burned. Near Fulton market boys killed three negroes and left their bodies on the pier near Fulton ferry entrance.

So suddenly did the shock come that the police and limited force of militia in town could not resist it. There was a hurried conference between Major General Wool, ex-Governor Morgan, General Anthon and Brigadier General Harvey Brown; but, owing to the absence of Governor Horatio Seymour, whose opinion was wanted, martial law was not declared. Brigadier General Brown, however, took command of the troops in the city and summoned from nearby points all available soldiers. Mayor George Opdyke issued an anti-riot proclamation.

During the afternoon a mob swept along Fifth avenue, destroying property. They were ready to burn Mayor Opdyke's home, but Judge Barnard saved it by telling the crowd the only way to resist the draft was by bringing it before the court. He promised he would issue a writ of habeas corpus for any drafted man for whom application should be made. In all the mobs were many infuriated women, whose actions were often worse than those of the men.

Horace Greeley, who was a particular object of aversion to the rioters, started, as usual, from his home in Nineteenth street to go on a Fourth avenue car to the Tribune office. Friends told him of his danger, and he spent the day in Windust's restaurant, at Park row and Ann street, and went home at night in a closed carriage while mobs were demanding his blood.

Governor Seymour issued a proclamation the next day calling on all citizens to stand by the constituted authorities and assist in maintaining order. Rioting, however, continued throughout the day and night, the police, soldiers and mobs having many fatal encounters.

On the third day the rioting continued, and many of the mob and the city's defenders were killed or wounded. The federal authorities postponed the draft, but trouble did not cease at once, as many of the rioters thought the action was a governmental trick to gain time. The fourth day brought further disorders in New York and Brooklyn. Archbishop Hughes addressed a crowd in front of his home, urging them to keep the peace. His plea had a soothing effect.

On the fifth day fighting ceased and order was partly restored. A heavy storm also dampened the ardor of the tired rioters. General James B. Fry, provost marshal general of the United States, issued an order that drafting would be resumed. Brigadier General E. R. S. Canby assumed command of the Federal troops in the city, relieving General Brown. A roundup of ringleaders among the rioters followed, and many were arrested. By July 30 order was completely restored.

More than 1,000 persons were killed or wounded during the rioting, among them Colonel O'Brien of the Eleventh New York volunteers, then in the city on recruiting duty. He ventured out in uniform after having conspicuously opposed the mob. He was seized, beaten, dragged through the streets and finally flung into his own back yard, where he died.

SIXTY years successfully building good vehicles should be a broad preparation for the motor car field.

Especially when those vehicles have been so well known that their name is a household word in practically every home in Canada.

Gray has been building good vehicles since 1855.

Thirty years building vehicles should teach something of transportation equipment—when those thirty years have been years of continued growth and success.

Dort has been successfully building vehicles since 1885.

Place one of these institutions in Chatham, Ontario, with a man at its head who builded successfully because he builded well—at reasonable prices. Give him a keen interest in the motor car industry plus the patience to wait till he knew he could make a good car at a nominal price. There you have Robert Gray and the Wm. Gray Sons Company.

Duplicate this situation in Flint, Michigan, with J. D. Dort and the Durant-Dort Carriage Company.

Then bring these two men and these two institutions together. Unite them in a common effort to build a motor car success.

It is not surprising that the entire output of 1916 Gray-Dorts was sold in three days.

It was a foregone conclusion that such institutions would build a car that would win unstinted praise from owners.

Praise freely given to the extent of over-selling a doubled output for 1917.

Praise that may over-sell the again doubled output for 1918.

FORCE BELGIAN GIRLS TO WORK UNDER FIRE

SCORN FOR IRON CROSSES

Cook, Carpenter, Clerk and Gardener Received Decoration, Though None was Fighter.

BRITISH FRONT IN BELGIUM, Nov. 7.—Belgian women and girls are being compelled to build concrete dugouts under artillery fire. The statement that this form of slavery has actually been practiced is recorded in the diary of a German soldier who was recently captured. He belonged to a landwehr division and was personally in charge of a large number of these unfortunate Belgians who were daily herded together and taken to a zone near the German lines to perform manual labour of the hardest kind, in constant danger of death.

"I am going to give another instance of the inefficiency of the German authorities. Since the eighteenth instant fifty women and young girls have been working in concrete dugouts at Leke. As Leke is the zone of fire and was shelled no later than yesterday, this is another case in which we cannot understand the action of the authorities. If this isn't taken by way of reprisal, then it is a shameful deed on the part of Germany, which cannot be surpassed even in imagination. The civilian population of Leke was evacuated three or four weeks ago, and now women and children are compelled to work at the concrete dugouts of the village.

"It is a shame that such steps should have been taken, whether there is reason for it or not. I am sure of the facts which I state, for it is my duty to take a gang of forty-seven women to Leke every morning and bring them back in the evening."

An illustration of the German disregard for the laws of war and humanity can be found in an incident which occurred the other night near Houthulst forest. The British heard cries of "stretcher-bearers" from No Man's Land. It naturally was assumed that a wounded man was calling for help, and Red Cross bearers rushed out through the darkness to render assistance. They were shot down by German snipers, who used this ruse to entice theme into the open.

There have been many other cases recently in which German snipers have shot down Red Cross workers deliberately, despite the fact that German Red Cross workers have been permitted go work unmolested.

There have been many humorous touches, even in the war. In the diary of a German prisoner the following notes have been found:

"At fixed periods quantities of iron crosses are distributed to the troops. It matters little whether they are deserved or not—they must be distributed. To get one, all that is necessary is that the Sergeant-Major should be well disposed. It is unnecessary to deserve it; it is enough if one is present at the distribution.

"To-day thirteen iron crosses were distributed to company on the occasion of the first anniversary of the formation of the division, and I should like simply to write down to whom they were distributed: First, the battalion cook; second, the battalion carpenter, who makes cases for the officers, which they send home filled; third, company clerk, who since he has been with the regiment has never set foot in a trench; fourth, company gardener, who has succeeded in growing some fine lettuces. Men who have been in the trenches for more than a year without missing a day are sent away empty-handed."

Too much cannot be said in favour of the person who hasn't much to say.

SUNDAY SERMON

For Those Who Do Not Go to Church

Genesis, 24th chapter, 58th verse,—And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

The making up of the marriage between Isaac and Rebekah is related very particularly, even to minute circumstances, while other things of great moment and mystery (as the history of Melchizedek) are related in a few words. Thus God conceals that which is curious from the wise and prudent and reveals to babes his truth. Matt 11, 52. Thus also are we directed to take notice of God's providence in the common occurrences of human life, and in them also to exercise prudence and other graces. Laban went to invite and conduct Abraham's servants in but not till he saw the ear ring and bracelet upon his sister's hands. We know so much of Laban's character by the following story as to think that he would not have been so free of his entertainments if he had not hoped to be well paid for it. However, the invitation was kind. They saw he was rich, and therefore pronounced him blessed of the Lord; or perhaps they heard from Rebekah of the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth; they concluded him a good man, and therefore blessed of the Lord.

Those who are blessed of God should be welcome to us; it is good to own and love those whom God loves. Observe how intent the servant was upon his business. Though he was come off a journey, and come to a good house, he would not eat till he had told his errand. This doing of our work and the fulfilling of our trusts, either for God or man, should be preferred by us before our necessary food. It was our Saviour's meat and drink. John 4:34.

Abraham's servant approved himself in this both a prudent man and a man of integrity; faithful to his master, by whom he had been trusted, and just to those with whom he now treated. He tells them the charge that his master had given him, to bring a wife for his son from among his kindred, with the reason of it. He related to them the wonderful concurrence of Providence to countenance and further the proposal, plainly showing the hand of God in it. Those events go us seem the effect of choice, but are "appointed out" of God. The persuasion of this prevents not, but rather encourages, the use of all proper means. At the same time it confines us to the use of those means, and delivers the mind from useless anxiety, about the consequences. God's way is always the right way. Psalm 107:7. And those are well lead whom he leads. They freely and cheerfully close with the proposal, upon a very good principle—the thing proceedeth from the Lord. Providence smiles upon it, and we have nothing to say against it. A marriage is likely to be happy when it proceeds from the Lord. Abraham's servant makes a thankful acknowledgment of the good success he had met with; he was a humble man, and humble men are not ashamed to own their situation in life, though it be that of a servant. How sweet would be all our temporal concerns if intermixed with godliness! Abraham's servant presses for a dismission though he and his company were very welcome. He knew his master would expect him home with some impatience. He had business to do at home which wanted him; therefore as one that preferred his work before his pleasure he was for hastening home; lingering on the way in no wise becomes a faithful servant.

Rebekah's relations from natural affection and according to the usual expression of kindness, solicit for her stay, sometime among them. They could not think of parting with her on a sudden, especially as he was about to remove so far off and it was not likely that they would ever see one another again. It is an instance of the vanity of this world that there is nothing in it so agreeable but it has its alloy. To Rebekah herself they appealed as it was fit they should do. As children ought not to marry without their parents' consent, so parents ought not to cause their children to marry against their own will. Rebekah not only consented to go but to go immediately. The excellence of Rebekah's character satisfies us there was nothing in her answer inconsistent with pure delicacy though not agreeable to the modern European standard of refinement which frequently is inconsistent with sincerity. We may hope that the observations that she had made gave her such an idea of the prevalence of religion and godliness in the family she was to go to as made her willing to forget her own people and her father's house.

Her friends dismiss her with suitable attendants. They sent her away with hearty good wishes; they blessed Rebekah. When our relatives are entering into a new condition we ought to by prayer to recommend them to the blessing and favor of God. Perhaps Abraham's servant had told them of the promise God had lately made to his master, which it is likely that Abraham acquainted his household with, to which promise they had an eye in this blessing. Be thou the mother of that Seed. When matters are begun and continued and completed in the exercise of faith, and with the prayer of all parties concerned, then the blessing of God may be expected, and the comfort of one relation will compensate for the loss of another.

Isaac was well employed when he met Rebekah. He went out to meditate in the fields at the eventide. It would seem that he went out to take the advantage of a silent evening for meditation and prayer; those divine exercises by which we converse with God and our own hearts; saintly souls love retirement, and to be often left alone, walking alone, but with God; like Enoch, walking with him. While we have a God, a Christ, and a heaven to acquaint ourselves with, we need not want language to clothe our thoughts, but like the disciples of old on that Sabbath afternoon walking to Emmaus, our hearts will burn within us while he talks to us by the way. Our walks in the fields are truly pleasant when in them we apply ourselves to meditation and prayer. We there have a free and open prospect of the heavens above us, the earth beneath us, and the riches of both, by the view of which we should be led to love and adore the Maker of all.

Rebekah when she met Isaac, understanding who he was, lighted off her camel and took a veil and covered herself, in token of humility, modesty and subjection. Having seen Providence going before her, she accommodated herself with cheerfulness to her new relation. Isaac was a very affectionate son; it was about three years since his mother died, and yet he was not till now comforted. Yet see what an affectionate husband he was to his wife!

The transaction recorded in this chapter may well remind us of Christ and his church. We know who is the Bridegroom who is in perfect harmony with his Father, having offered himself as a sacrifice for sin, espouses his church unto himself. This he does by the ministrations of his servants, the preachers of the gospel, who by his commission go to find those who are afar off. His glory, his excellency, his unsearchable richness, all things that the father hath are his—his loving kindness and their own experiences of his grace; they represent to sinners to induce them to come to him. By these representations, the drawings of the spirit, and some foretastes of his goodness, they are prevailed upon to consent to their own happiness. Being thus united to him they bring forth fruit unto God; and at length he will wash away every spot and blemish, and present them faultless before his presence with exceeding glory and joy.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland,

Get Behind the Wheel of a Ford and Drive

TRY it just once! Ask your friend to let you "pilot" his car on an open stretch. You'll like it, and will be surprised how easily the Ford is handled and driven.

If you have never felt the thrill of driving your own car, there is something good in store for you. It is vastly different from just riding—being a passenger. And especially so if you drive a Ford.

Young boys, girls, women and even grandfathers—thousands of them—are driving Ford cars and enjoying it. A Ford stops and starts in traffic with exceptional ease and smoothness, while on country roads and hills its strength and power show to advantage.

Buy a Ford and you will want to be behind "the wheel" constantly.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Battle Within a Battle

By M. QUAD

Copyright, ... by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Our battery had been doing splendid service. From our position on the right we could see the shells drop into the woods and break up the formation of the Confederate cavalry every time they left cover.

We knew where they were. Jeb Stuart's old troopers were there; Wade Hampton's dragoons were there—Imboden, Rosser, Mosby—every Confederate cavalry command we had fought in Virginia was making ready in the shelter of the woods to charge on our left flank.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!"

The gunners knew what was at stake. The orders were to die at the guns if the position could not be held. For half an hour their bursting shells kept the front clear, and we of the cavalry cheered them.

Out from the cover of the forest at half a dozen places gallop the gray troopers by hundreds. They wheel to the right and left, form in two lines, take their distance, close up with a trembling motion, and now there will be a grand charge. The shells burst in front of them, among them, but discipline is stronger than the fear of death.

Less than 300 of us—all cavalry—to support the battery. If that mob of gray riders ever reaches the foot of the slope we shall be picked up and sent whirling like dry leaves in a hurricane. The fire of the six guns becomes more rapid. It is truly terrible, but in their haste the gunners do less execution.

Just 278 of us by actual count as we dress in two ranks. What are we going to do?

"Draw sabers! Forward! Trot! Gallop! Charge!"

They are driving us down at that body of men—ten times our number—to break and check the charge. If we can stop them for ten minutes the battery will be saved by the infantry. We oblique to the left as we go to close up. We are a living wedge, driving down to enter a living mass and split it in twain.

The wedge enters. The wedge drives ahead over fallen horses and dismounted men, yelling, slashing, cutting, keeping their pace. A trooper slashes at me, a horse goes down in front of mine. I feel myself falling with my horse, and then I am out of the fight for a moment.

The darkness which enshrouded things passes away after a bit, and I and my horse lying across my feet with the saddle flap so holding him that his dead body must be lifted up to get me out.

The charge of the gray troopers was broken. That wedge drove right through the mass and turned to attack them in the rear. Swirling about in circles like the vulture of war, the mass of men edges away until the field about me is clear of all but the dead and wounded. I've got a saber cut on the shoulder and can feel the warm blood bathing my arm, but I know I could walk away if I could get my feet clear. I am working to extricate them when I hear hoofbeats behind me. The next moment a riderless horse dashes up and comes to a halt. He has not been hit, but he has left his rider dead back there in the stubble, a Federal captain.

The horse stands pawing and snorting when out from the whirl of death, half a mile away, breaks a chestnut charger and comes galloping down upon us. There is blood on the saddle flaps—drops of blood on his shiny flanks. It is not his blood, but that of the Confederate man who rode him, and who has been cut down by a stroke of the saber.

It is gray versus chestnut—Federal versus Confederate. The newcomer is still a hundred feet away, when the gray horse rushes at him with ears laid back and mouth open, and as I watch them I forget that shells are screaming, bullets whistling and the saber doing bloody work within sound of my voice. As the two horses come together they rear up, neigh defiance at each other and a fight begins—a battle within a battle. Each seems embued with a deadly hatred for the other, and to be determined to destroy his antagonist.

Of a sudden I realize that they are close upon me. In their mad fury they see neither dead nor wounded—hear not the shout and shot of battle.

The gray kicks a dead man aside as he backs up for a fresh effort; the chestnut tramples the life out of a wounded man as he dances about. They will be over me if I do not stop them. The heels of the gray are throwing dirt into my face as I unsling my carbine and rest it across my dead horse for a shot. I fire at the gray, as he is the nearer and the greater menace, but the bullet misses the target. At that moment they begin to work to the left, and in the next they are past me, leaping over dead horses and trampling on dead men as they scream and bite and kick.

Above the roar of battle I hear a rifle shell coming. It gives out a growling, complaining sound which no man ever hears without a chill. The sound grows louder—nearer—crash! The horses were fifty feet away, and it must have struck one of them. There was a cloud of smoke, a whizzing of ragged fragments, and when I could see again both horses were down—torn and mangled and almost blotted off the face of the earth by the awful force of the explosion.

British Army Has Become The Finest in the World, Declares Famous Expert

IT is perhaps an appropriate time to call attention to the fact that at the present time the main work is being done by the British. In the Marne operation and in the first campaign of the war the British share was small, useful as it was, and magnificent as was the British stand at Ypres. A year later the new British army just coming on was still incapable of mighty effort, and the French, first in the offensive in Champagne and then in the desperate defensive at Verdun, were compelled to carry on, only in part aided by the British.

At the Somme the proportions began to change, but even at the Somme it was the French that made the first considerable gain, and all through this battle the French part was material while the defense of Verdun had still to be maintained. But with the Battle of Arras in April of this year, the British practically tok over the main task of the western offensive. The British task was materially increased when the French attack at the Aisne failed to make decisive progress and incurred enormous casualties.

To-day the British are doing the main job on the West. It is no reproach upon the French that this is so, as the French have certainly done their share and more than their share. Yet it is only just to the British to recognize that they are making the big sacrifice now after delays that were long, but were inevitable, given British unpreparedness, and are becoming more comprehensible to the American people now that they are struggling with the problem that confronted Britain three years ago. The British have arrived and it is the British armies that are delivering the heavy blows.

The measure of the British effort is not the respective fronts held by British and French armies, but the amount of action on the two fronts. Already we have seen this year three considerable British attacks—the Arras battle, which was the most successful in artillery captured in the history of the war, the retaking of the Messines Ridge, and now the new offensive in the Ypres sector. With these three, one should perhaps class the Hill 70 exploit of the Canadians, which was brilliant and of permanent value.

If anyone ever doubted that the British would arrive, these doubts have been answered. Britain is now paying the price that France paid over two bloody years. Her artillery has seized and maintained the mastery over the German. Slowly, steadily, surely the British are breaking down the material and the moral resources of Germany. Because the Russians collapsed the chance of a decision this year has been banished, but the British strategy is that of wearing down, and there are unmistakable signs that the Germans are beginning to weaken, although their resistance must still command admiration.

The new British campaign seems certain to be one of the great campaigns of the war. It already shows greater power than that of the Somme, and it is not marred by the blunders of that former battle. The Somme "show," as the British call it, was the training school of the new British army. It was expensive, it was bloody, it was protracted, but the results were visible at the end; they were discoverable in the Beaumont Hamel victory last autumn and in the Arras offensive this year. Today the British army is unmistakably the finest army in the world. All the other nations suffer from the loss of the younger and physically fitter men. The British have still a considerable share of their youth left and the flower of the manhood of Great Britain and the Colonies is now suffering and achieving as did the flower of the French at the Marne and at Verdun.

To-day the British have taken over the main task from the French; they have also had to assume much of the Russian work. They justly expect a measure of relief next year, when American troops are available in considerable numbers for the final campaign. Then France, too, will be able to spend reserves; a new class will have come on the field. But until America arrives the British task will be of great importance to the Allied cause. Meantime the character of this task is not to be mistaken. The British are not seeking this year the decision which Russian failure has postponed. They are simply striving to continue the pressure and the pounding, to permit no moment of relaxation and recuperation to the Germans until Russia recovers, which is a hope, and until America arrives, which is a reasonable expectation.—Frank H. Simonds in the American Review of Reviews.

CANADIAN POTASH.

When the war broke out, the fertilizer supply, especially that of potash, was badly disrupted. Until then, Germany had been the principal source of supply. Attention was immediately directed to several possible materials from which potash might be obtained. Among these was kelp, a water plant growing in great profusion along the sea coast. Especially is this the case on the British Columbia coast, where owing to the many indentations, the kelp beds are of large area.

After careful investigation a plant for making potash from kelp has been installed at Pacific, on Moresby Island, one of the Queen Charlotte group. It will have a capacity of one thousand tons of wet kelp daily, and will get its supply from Cumshewa Inlet. The kelp is reaped by knives suspended below scows which cut the standing growth as they pass over the beds. The kelp then rises to the surface where it is gathered up.

The company, in addition, proposes to extract oils from non-edible fish and to make fertilizer from the fish refuse.—Conservation.

DEEP BREATHING.

Physicians agree that massaging the abdominal organs is at best a delicate procedure, requiring the skill of a professional in order to prevent more harm than good being done. And yet abdominal massage is recommended as a help or cure for various ills, especially for constipation. A method which is so gentle that no baneful effects could possibly result employs systematic deep breathing as the agent.

The diaphragm and the muscles of the abdomen share in the work of respiration, and at the same time press rhythmically upon the intestines. In order to increase the pressure so that massaging of the intestines results, it is only necessary to breathe more deeply than is customary and to keep it up rhythmically. The patient should lie face downward across the bed, taking from five to seven deep breaths a minute.

A pillow under the abdomen serves to press the organs in so that the force of the breathing is felt more by the inclosed organs than by the stretching outer skin.

EVERYDAY READING

A revival—what is it? Can we have it in the religious organizations under the present existing conditions? Have we had a revival in Peterboro in the last twenty years? These are questions that demand our serious consideration. Some three years or so ago, the present officer of the Salvation Army here, asked me publicly in a meeting in their hall, how long is it since we had a revival in Peterboro? I made answer, about ten years. I might also say that not for ten times ten years shall we have a revival in the Salvation Army, or other organizations as long as the present existing conditions that prevail in the Salvation Army and other organizations continue. I am quite aware to talk thus is like rubbing a pussycat's fur the wrong way. Perhaps the story of the negro preacher will apply here. It seems the negro preacher was in charge of a membership of negroes, who were addicted to stealing, and doing other bad things, and yet were quite religious, taking their part in the meetings. The preacher was asked, did he not know of the wrong doing of his members, and if so, why did he not tell them of their sin. He made answer, Oh! that would not do, for it would throw a coldness over the meeting.

A friend of mine who was in a meeting in the S. A., was telling them what Mr. Goforth had said here in Peterboro in regard to a revival in a station in China, which came about by the preacher who had committed a grievous crime and covered it up confessing his sin and getting right with God. The relating of Mr. Goforth's remarks caused a commotion in the ranks, and some one cried out, "Put him out!"

Mr. Goforth, who is connected with the Presbyterian organization, while touring through Canada, met with his ministerial brethren at their regular Synod or Conference; and as he was speaking in connection with the work of God, some of his ministerial brethren cried out "Rats!" "If he is right, we are all wrong!" "Send him back to China!"

Mr. Goforth told them if they paid more attention to the Holy Spirit and the Bible, and paid less heed to German fables, God would be more pleased. Peterboro has many privileges and advantages and seems strangely to be used as a blockade to leaders, who will not do their part in pulling down the strongholds of intrenched wrong. I have seen leaders in different religious systems come to Peterboro, apparently full of fire and integrity for God and righteousness; but, alas, before long the fire had died out, and the lack of the genuine with other dire results followed. The saddest part of it is, not only the leader but the flock over whom he has charge, suffer spiritually and otherwise.

The old saying, "Like priest, like people," is still true; and it comes to pass as in the days of Jeremiah, "The prophets prophecy falsely and the people love to have it so." I am convinced men can live out the Christ-life for five, ten or fifteen or more years, in obedience, with no condemnation, and at the end of that period of time, God, the Holy Spirit, gives to them more light, points out a new pathway for them to take, and says, "This is the way, walk in it." This definite directing or instructing from the human standpoint, may seem unreasonable and hard. Nevertheless, it is God's way, and that way we must take or die spiritually. This explains why religious leaders, who are all on fire when coming to Peterboro, are now as they are.

While these remarks may seem rather personal, they contain a truth principle, and will be gladly received by those who are walking in obedience, and be a loving reproof for those who are walking in disobedience. "Blessed are they who love Thy law, nothing shall offend them."

That it is impossible to have a real revival in the organaaiiittnosot theo revivl in the organizations as they exist to-day, to me is quite evident. A departed friend of mine, who was a member of the S. A., said to me, "If God would give a revival in the Salvation Army at Peterboro it would be furthering the interests of the enemy—of course, what he meant was a real revival was impossible.

What is a revival? It is an awakening of men to their spiritual concerns; a revival is a return to righteousness and Spirit-led life. Can we have a revival? We most certainly can. In order to have it we must fulfil the conditions. God says: "Return unto me and I will return unto you." "Bring in all the tithes, and I will rebuke the devourer." "The love of money is the root of all evil." "If a man gain the whole world and forfeit his life, what shall he be profited?" Jesus said to the young man, who appeared to be seeking eternal life, in that he asked Jesus, what should he do to inherit eternal life? "Sell that which thou hast and give to the poor and come and follow me." He was like our spiritual leaders of to-day, not willing to take such an apparently unreasonable course. The young man went away sorrowful, and it is a fact disobedience brings sorrow. We see some in the pathway of disobedience who seem to try and make us think they are happy; but it is not so. It reminds me of a story my little sister was reading, when we were children together. It was about a little girl called Bessie Glover who had done wrong, and Bessie Glover said that she did not care; but Bessie Glover did care, for although she laughed, romped and skipped Bessie Glover did care for she felt a painful choking in her throat.

Poor, backslidden disobedient ones are crying out secretly in the depths of their hearts, gone are the joys of salvation. What shall we gain by taking our own way and walking in disobedience? The answer to the question is a sad one. Coming back to the subject on hand. What are the conditions to be fulfilled in order to have a revival? I answer, Take God's way; diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God. Return to Him. Every one to his knees for himself. I am not in the habit of attending meetings, but would gladly attend meetings for prayer, and everyone praying for himself. Would God hear? Certainly. God would hear, and you would soon hear the sounds of approaching (spiritual) rain coming to cause life to spring up. With love and good will, I am, VICTOR.

INVASION OF ENGLAND IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, LORD FRENCH WARNS

FIELD MARSHAL DECLARES PEOPLE MUST BE READY FOR ANY EVENTUALITY.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Field Marshal Lord French, commander of the home forces, in a speech yesterday declared that Great Britain must be prepared for any and every eventuality.

"For all we know," he said, "the next surprise may be an invasion of this country. Be ready, then, for anything."

Major General Sir C. F. N. Macready, Adjutant General of the army, in a statement, asserted that Great Britain still needs men. He could not give exact figures, but declared: "Every man that can be spared from the industries is needed—badly needed. Every woman that comes forward helps her country by releasing a man. We appeal to them to answer the call."

George H. Roberts, Minister of Labour, also made a statement, in which he declared that the war will be won by the Allies, whatever setbacks the Allies may suffer.

"We will go on until victory is attained," he said. "The enemy must be made to acknowledge his guilt and shame. His crimes are crimes against civilization. We cannot have an inconclusive peace."

An Irishman employed in a large factory had taken a day off without permission and seemed likely to lose his job in consequences. When asked by his foreman the next day why he had not turned up the day before, he replied:

I was so ill, sir, that I could not come to work to save my life.

How was it then, Pat, that I saw you pass the factory on your bicycle during the morning? asked the foreman.

Pat was slightly taken aback, then regaining his presence of mind, he replied:

Sure, sir, that must have been when I was going for the doctor.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

ANOTHER BIG BRITISH ADVANCE

ITALIANS RETIRE BEHIND PIAVE RIVER

Italians' Retirement To The Piave Practically Accomplished

Withdrawal Successfully Carried Out--Wide Section of Country is Evacuated and a Million Homeless People Have Reached Rome---Many Cities and Villages Are Given Over to the Enemy.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(By John Hearley.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ROME, November 10.—Italy's retirement to behind the Piave River defense line had been practically accomplished to-day. Reports dwelt on the success of the withdrawal and of the splendid defense position in which Italian lines were now drawn to receive and sustain the shock of the Austrian-German invasion.

The magnitude of the task of withdrawal to behind the Piave River line was made apparent with the arrival of countless refugees from that territory. It was estimated that there are now a million homeless people in Rome, many in dire need.

Military exigencies dictated the complete civil as well as military evacuation of all territory between the Livenza and Piave rivers. Such large villages and cities as Belluno, Vittoria, Conegliaro, Rarenone, Sacile and Ordergo were completely stripped of their inhabitants. The enemy will find them literally shells.

Collections in Rome for civilian relief to-day reached 78 million lire (about $15,000,000). Much more is needed. Cardinal Lafontaine, patriarche of Venice, to-day appealed to the populace of that city to "remain calm and pray to God to preserve them and their homes.". Despatches from Venice to-day said extraordinary precautions had been adopted to save precious art works there.

BERLIN, November 10.—The Austro-German forces which are invading Northern Italy, have reached the Piave River. Asigo has been captured.

ROME, November 10.—The enemy has been checked in the Odro Valley, the War Office announces. A hostile thrust at Brocon in the Tesino Basin, also has been checked. Rrom Susagana to the sea the Italian rearguard disengaging themselves from the enemy, crossed the Piave River, blowing up the bridges.

LONDON, November 10.—The British made an attack this morning on the Flanders front near Passchendaele. The announcement follows: "At sunrise this morning our troops attacked Germon positions northwest and north of Passchendaele. The first reports indicate that good progress was made. The weather is stormy with heavy rain and high winds."

Lenine Heads the New Russian Cabinet

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, November 10.—The All-Russian Congress of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates is reported unofficially to have named a cabinet composed of Bolsheviki and then adjourned. The cabinet is headed by Nikolai Lenine as Premier, and Leon Trotzky holds the post of Foreign Minister. The cabinet will serve until the constituent assembly approves it or selects a new one.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, November 10.—In stormy weather at dawn this morning Field Marshal Haig again set his great attacking war machine in motion for a drive north and northwest of Passchendaele. "Good progress" in the new attack was reported in the British Commander-in-Chief's report.

Political Crisis in Germany Over

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, via London, November 10.—Dr. Karl Melfferich, the Vice-Chancellor, has capitulated, and political peace once more has been restored. The cabinet containing Count Von Hertling as Chancellor, Friedrich Von Payer as Vice-Chancellor, and Herr Friedberg as Vice-President of the Prussian Ministry, means virtually a Coalition-Liberal government. The Clerical National Liberal and Progressive parties are represented actively in the cabinet. The Liberals are now getting ready to combat the reactionaries in their efforts to obstruct the enactment of the Prussian electoral reform bill.

General Haig Drives a Wedge Nearly a Mile Further Into the German Positions Outside of Passchendaele in Successful Advance

OBJECTIVES GAINED

(By William Philip Simms).

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 10.—British troops drove their wedge nearly a mile further into German positions out of Passchendaele to-day. As this despatch is filed, Haig's victorious troops were reported to have achieved all their objectives. A dozen strongly fortified farms have been overrun by the British attacking waves. Vigorous fighting was reported all along the line of advance.

The pressure of Haig's push today is shoving the Bavarians gradually off all of the ridges. They were resisting violently but unsuccessfully.

OBJECTIVES GAINED.

BRITISH FRONT IN BELGIUM, Nov. 10.—(By Associated Press). — The British troops which attacked this morning in Passchendaele are reported at an early hour to-day to have battled their way forward as much as eight hundred yards at some points.

The British passed many strongly fortified farms north and north-west of Goeberg. At this point they were fighting nearly half a mile from their jumping-off place. The line was pushed northward along Passchendaele Ridge, almost to a point at which the highest crest starts sloping downward. To-day's operations were carried out on a 2,500 yards front for limited objectives, which had been virtually all gained by 10 o'clock..

PETERBOROUGH BOY IS GRANTED EXEMPTION BY TORONTO BOARD

Roland H. Blanchard Son of the Late Capt. Wm. H. Blanchard Has Two Brothers at Front and Family is Commended by the Tribunal

"NO SLACKERS THERE"

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Roland Harold Blanchard, 126 Margueretta street, until recently of Peterborough, aged 21, a shell inspector, was the first new application for exemption this afternoon. He is a son of the late Captain William H. Blanchard, of Peterborough, Imperial Army Veterinary Corps, who died in October at the Base Hospital from throat and lung trouble. He has two brothers at the front now, who enlisted at Peterborough, Pte. Bruce R. Blanchard, 21st Battalion, who won the Military Medal at the battle of St. Eloi April 21, 1916, and Gunner George W. Blanchard, 33rd Battery. The latter is only 19 years of age.

"My brother George and I tossed up at the time he enlisted to see who would go and who would stay at home and look after mother, and he won," remarked young Blanchard. "My only remaining brother has taken holy orders."

"This family has certainly done its share," said Canon Dixon, one of the tribunal.

"No slackers there," remarked Mr. O'Rourke, the military representative. "If all families did as well we would not need conscription."

The claim was granted.

Immense Crowds Attend Big Sale

Turnbull Co's Executors' Sale is Big Success

The saying, "Everybody's Going to the Big Store," never proved itself so true as yesterday, the first day of the Turnbull Co.'s Executors' Sale. From the time their doors opened until they closed at six o'clock, the store was continually crowded, thousands taking advantage of the remarkable reductions to buy their entire winter supply of merchandise.

The cause of this monster sale and the peculiar conditions which have contributed to it have been explained in the large announcements issued by the firm.

With a practical eye to business and a sagacious watchfulness of the markets of the world during the shortage in merchandise due to war conditions, enormous purchases had been made. Much of this merchandise was delayed in transit, and other goods had to be ordered to keep stocks up to the demands of this big store. Now that these delayed goods are arriving, and many boxes have not even been opened, an over-accumulation of goods has been the result.

The management have as a consequence determined to put on this big sacrifice sale for the express purpose of reducing stocks by at least $50,000, and an energetic campaign has been inaugurated to sell this amount before the New Year.

A most successful start was given the sale on the opening day, and the management is sanguine that, with reductions made to regular goods, equivalent to between 20 and 40 per cent., they will be enabled to accomplish their object.

RESOLUTION FOR UNION GOVERNMENT HERE SUBMITTED AT MEETING OF LIBERALS

Premier Will Endorse Candidate Selected At Union Convention

If Fusion Meeting is Held Here Candidate Selected Will Be the Government Candidate Sir Robert Borden Wires --Assertions of Burnham Faction Swept Away by Premier's Telegram.

"If a Union Convention under joint auspices of those supporting the Union Government is held, the candidate selected at the Convention will be recognized as the Government candidate. R. L. BORDEN."

The telegram above received this morning from the Prime Minister of Canada will do much to clear the political air in Peterborough and leaves the way open for a joint effort to secure a Union candidate. It sweeps away the complacent assertions that have been emenating from the faction supporting Capt. J. H. Burnham that he was the recognized Union candidate in this riding, and makes the securing of a candidate representative of all elements supporting Union a possibility.

For some time a number of prominent citizens of both shades of politics have been endeavouring to get together in the interests of Union, and if possible to avert an election in this riding. Communicating with the Prime Minister they have received the reply printed at the head of this article.

It is likely that a Union meeting will be called for next week to see if a Union candidate cannot be agreed upon.

About Three Hundred Electors, Most of Them From the City, Present at West Peterboro' Liberals' Convention This Afternoon--Win-the-War Sentiment the Dominant Note.

MR. R. R. HALL NOMINATED FIRST

This afternoon's convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough in Victoria Hall, called for the purpose of eliciting the wishes and demands of the electors in the present flux of federal politics, drew an attendance of approximately three hundred, mostly from the city.

The usual plan of calling delegates from sections of the riding was suspended to-day, due to the short notice of the election and other exigent conditions.

In opening the convention Mr. J. J. Hartley, president of the Liberal Association, resented the imputation that the Liberals had been less loyal and had provided fewer recruits than the Conservatives. He believed that if the facts could be learned, it might be found that the Liberal party was even the more largely represented in Canada's forces overseas.

The meeting, he stated, was called for the purpose of considering the advisability of nominating a candidate in the approaching elections on 17th December. The intervening time would be very short and immediate action was necessary. It was desired that this riding should be represented in the House by a member who would assist in the promotion of Canada's efforts to win the war. The Liberals of this riding desired an active participation in the country's affairs, and it was for the meeting to decide how they would be represented.

Mr. Basil D. Hall was appointed secretary of the convention.

Mr. Andrew McFarlane opened a short speech by expressing his satisfaction that the Liberals of West Peterborough had taken this decision of nominating a candidate who was for winning the war. He proposed Mr. R. R. Hall as a "Win-the-War" Liberal, asserting that the late Government had been grossly extravagant, and permitted corruption which it was now trying to cover by a talk of Union.

Mr. Joseph Wearing.

Stating that he had always been a Liberal and desired to explain his present position, Mr. Joseph Wearing said the Military Service Bill was before the people and thousands of Liberals and Conservatives fully realized that the most urgent duty before Canada is to supply reinforcements for the men at the front.

True the United States was preparing to send to Europe hundreds of thousands of men, but this did not relieve the people of this country of their duty. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier were elected it would mean a long postponement of the present plans for helping the men at the front. With one brother under the sod of France and another overseas, Mr. Wearing declared he could not do otherwise

LONDON'S GREAT WAR VETERANS AFTER CONSERVATIVE MACHINE

G. W. V. A. Will Leave No Stone Unturned in Their Fight to Aid Lieut.-Coles as the Man Who Put the Tory Tank Out of Action

HOT POLITICAL BATTLE

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 10.—The Great War Veterans will leave no stone unturned to wreck the Conservative machine in London. The soldiers are furious at the treatment they have received, and insult was added to injury, they say, last night when an attempt was made to buy off their candidate, Lieut.-Colonel Coles, by an offer of a Senatorship.

In order that their comrades in the trenches may know just how they are being used by the Conservatives, the War Veterans to-day sent two thousand papers overseas. The fight between the soldiers and the Conservative machine is the bitterest waged here in many years, and is most unexpected.

A week ago the Conservative machine had plums all cut and dried for J. Percy Moore, K.C., to contest the election. Mr. Moore, as president of the Association, has had the say in everything for some time, and has wanted to be London's member. His feelings at being turned down, outvoted and having to give way to a Liberal, Major Cronyn, who is running as a Unionist, are anything but pleasant.

VETERANS CARRY ON.

The Great War Veterans are holding another big meeting to-night to appoint committees to carry on. They hail Lieut.-Colonel Coles as the man who put the Tory tank out of action as that machine had never been wrecked before. Lieut.-Colonel Coles stated emphatically to-day that he is in the fight to stay, that he doesn't want any plums at Ottawa in the shape of a Senatorship, and that he will try and get a square deal for

802 CLAIMS FOR EXEMPTION

That Was the Total at 11 o'clock To-day—Tribunals Have Another Easy Session But Will Be Busy on Monday

52 READY TO SERVE

There was no increase in the attendance at the local Tribunal this morning, only one case being heard at each of the local Boards. Monday, however, will see the Tribunals working at full pressure, as twenty-five cases have been assigned to each by the Registrar.

Judge Huycke received a ruling to-day that no transference of cases from the Tribunals to which they were assigned to another Tribunal would be allowed.

Up to 11 o'clock this morning 802 men had filed claims for exemption at the Peterborough post office.

To-day is the last chance to register and the post office will be open until 10 o'clock to-night.

Reports for service are on the increase—52 had waived claims for exemption up to 11 o'clock.

Joseph Boucher, who pronounced his name with a French accent, applied to the City Hall Military Tribunal for exemption this morning o the ground of infirmity. The Medical Board had placed him in Category A2, but he claimed that they had not discovered his "bum knee." He admitted that he had not called the attention of the doctors to this alleged disability, but nevertheless he was sure it would render

A NEW FORM OF HELP.

This war has been an eye-opener to Canada in many ways, especially in revealing the value of her natural resources and a keener sense of the spirit of her people. Though we had had evidence of the courage and fighting qualities of our soldiers, their most partial admirers would not have thought three years ago that Canadian soldiers would have compiled the brilliant fighting record they have done. No one would have thought it possible that Canada could have made the splendid contribution she has made in all ways to war work; nor thought it possible that Canada could have raised 500 millions of war loans, which she will have done when, as she will do in the next fortnight, she adds the 150 millions of the Victory Loan to the 350 millions of loans already subscribed.

We have furnished munitions to the amount of about 900 millions; we have supplied immense quantities of food stuffs.

We have other resources that will form an important element in building up the aerial navies of Britain and her allies, another evidence of the vital importance of Canada's resources in winning the war. It has been discovered that British Columbia silver, or Sitka spruce, is invaluably useful in the building of aeroplanes. British Columbia has immense stands of this timber, and the Imperial Munitions Board has taken steps to secure an adequate supply of this vitally important material, whose "find" has greater importance in view of the fact that it is the evident aim of the Allies to maintain and increase their superiority in the air as one of the best means of military success. It is gratifying, therefore, that Canada is in a position to help by supplying a very essential material of aeroplane manufacture.

Another revelation which this incident affords, is that Canada has another asset, that has been of great help in this conjuncture. A great many persons may regard the Conservation Commission as a body of scientific faddists, obsessed with the importance which the unthinking fail to recognize, of preserving our forest wealth and tree growth.

But these faddists do a great deal of practical and useful work. For the past four years the Conservation Commission has been conducting a survey of the forest resources of British Columbia, so that when the Imperial Munitions Board found itself in immediate need of large quantities of airplane spruce, the Conservation Commission was able to lay before the Board complete and specific information as to the location and ownership ow all the large bodies of airplane spruce in British Columbia. All the Board had to do was to come in to relations with the owners, acquire the material and begin operations, thus saving much valuable time.

Is patriotism or party or personal pig-headness to decide or prevent the selection of a Union government candidate?

THE CHIEF ASSET.

The Board of Education, in taking a new interest in improvement of school conditions, should not lessen its interest in maintaining and improving sanitary and health conditions; and it will be acting in conformity with the lessons of experience in England, if it places chief importance upon school health. Sir George Newman, chief medical officer of the Board of Education in England, in his annual report places emphasis on the fact that the school should be a medium for not only training the mind, but a medium for providing a healthy mind in a healthy body.

We don't need, however, to cross three thousand miles of ocean to secure illustrations of the justification of the feeling of concern over the many physical defects of young men in connection with military examinations.

There is no need for figures to show that we Canadians need not feel any too great pride in the physical soundness of our young men who undergo examination for military service. Taking the results of the examinations under the voluntary system and under conscription, the proportion of men rejected as physically unfit, ranges, according to localities and conditions, from twenty-five to fifty per cent.

This does not seem to indicate that our schools, in which children first come under state purview and control, are not as successful in providing the sound body as they are the sound mind.

Sir George Newman comes to the conclusion that there are six hundred thousand children in England that should not be confined in close rooms with others, and has found that the most important single factor for better physical soundness in children is open air school life.

There seems to be much in this conclusion. We all know that open air life healthens and hardens the soldier; and, as a last resort, when close, unventilated homes and schools have done their work, medical science plants the victims of tuberculosis in the open-air, and no matter how stern the temperature.

Is it not better to forestall all this by taking means to teach health as well as history, and sanitation as well as syntax in our schools?

"Good morning, how are you?" is a salutation that, even if unconsciously used, expresses the supreme importance of health as a human asset. If the health is right, the annoyances of lesser things do not much count.

The special treatment of mental defectives, important and imperative as it is, might ultimately find a good deal of the evil removed if timely conditions of healthy environment, not forgetting the best and the cheapest, fresh air, were provided.

The Food Controller and the profiteer should renew the fight over the high price of potatoes.

THE VICTORY LOAN.

"Buy, buy more, buy still more Victory Bonds," is the appeal that comes from the boardings as we pass through the streets. Canada's new loan of 150 millions that is to be launched next Monday, November 12th, should, for several reasons, be readily subscribed.

First, because the people have the ability in the form of cash and savings, mouldering in the banks at 3 per cent. We have millions on deposit in the banks, taking the people collectively, and never in our life as a country, was employment so plentiful or so well rewarded in the form of wages.

Canadians have already in three previous popular loans invested 350 millions in war-winning and saving ourselves. We are fighting to keep our country free and with conditions that will permit prosperous working out of our destiny. In subscribing to the victory loan we are doing so ultimately for ourselves; we are becoming our own creditors.

Then the Victory Loan is to prepare the means of victory, a victory that will not all be won by the unaided valour of Canadians in the trenches and battle lines.

We need more men; but apart from sentiment, that is not our greatest need. No matter how many men; no matter how brave and resourceful they may be; their courage and enterprise, to count continuously and be the highest, must be made effective by adequate munitions and plentiful food. Perhaps food is the greatest need of ourselves and our allies. Money represents munitions and food supply, therefore money as the first equivalent of all fighting force, is a prime need.

It is hoped that the people will see the Victory Loan in this light. It differs from most other services in this war, because it has not the element of sacrifice involved as in nearly all, if not all, other forms of service. If we give to the Red Cross or the Patriotic Fund, once the money is paid there is, no direct material profit. In buying Victory Bonds when we make payments they begin to give returns the moment they are made.

Besides, in addition to the interest returns, there are others. The amount of the loan is for war purposes, and will all be spent in Canada and will come back in various forms to our farmers, our mechanics, our manufacturers, and our merchants, and through them to everybody else.

The rate of interest is good—5 1-2 per cent. The bonds, according to the wish of the investor, mature in five, ten or twenty years. The bonds are exempt from federal taxation. The investment is therefore pure profit, plus the satisfaction of helping the winning of the war. There is no cost of management, no trouble collecting returns. It's all plain sailing, all profit and profitable patriotic service.

And there is no worry about the safety of the investment. We have the whole vast Dominion of Canada, the taxing power of the government, the resources of our soil, our mines, and all the moral and material backing a nation constitutes.

Let no one think that he is exempt because his subscription may be small. The moral force of a national war loan consists in its expression of the national will, the national determination behind it. Every dollar contributed by the humblest citizen is an assurance to the enemy that in this war of resources, the vast resources of the Empire and its dependencies are available as a fighting force.

The real reserves of Canadian soldiers are not just back of the battle lines or in training camps. They are in the spirit of the humdrum people at home and the spirit and fact of productive enterprise and service they represent.

The people should welcome the Victory Loan next Monday with open hearts and open purses.

There are five main reasons why everybody should have an investment interest in the Victory Loan—

It is a form of patriotism that pays good interest.

It will all be spent in Canada and will come back to us in other ways than in the form of interest coupons.

The security is absolutely "gilt-edged."

It will help win the war—and gain the victory.

One hundred per cent. profit on bacon should be a sharp stimulus to increased hog production.

Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—How long are the two political parties in Peterborough going to stay at each other's throats? Is there no spark of pure unadulterated patriotism left in the leaders of the parties that they cannot for once bury the hatchet and come together in the face of the greatest struggle which Canada and the Empire have ever had?

The Toronto News of the 7th, speaking of constituencies such as this, says:

"Despite the appeals of Sir Robert Borden for harmony in the ranks of the Unionists in selecting candidates so that there will be but one candidate in each riding, there are still many constituencies in Ontario where the Liberal and Conservative Unionists are as far apart as ever."

Six weeks next Monday will be polling day. There is yet time for Peterborough to show that it is loyal to the cause and willing to sacrifice its petty family scrape. Can the leaders of the parties here rise to the occasion or must they for all time be branded as traitors to Canada and the Empire?—Yours in hope,

Country First.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent signing himself "Simon Pure" seems anxious to know what Capt. Burnham has done in the past. I can enlighten him on a few things that he would have noticed himself if he had not been in a Rip Van Winkle sleep this last two or three years.

He secured before the war a new government building for Peterborough, which was to have been erected at a cost of $200,000. In fact the contract was let when the war broke out, and put a stop to expenditures of such a nature. We have now a government wharf at Little Lake that we did not have before Capt. Burnham's tenure of office. Then, again, when several others tried and failed, they turned to Capt. Burnham, and he secured the rifle ranges for them.

These are just a few of a financial nature, but they involve the expenditure of a greater sum of money than has been secured by any other representative for West Peterborough.

In regard to other matters, no one can forget the able manner in which he got the Trent Valley Canal scandal cleared up.

If it had not been for the war interfering with so many things, we should have had old-age pensions by now. This was introduced into the House by Capt. Burnham.

Hoping "Simon Pure" now feels a little less ignorant on the subject, —I remain, yours truly, him unfit for service. He arrived in Peterborough about six weeks ago from Edmonton, which, he said, was the best town on earth. He is a carpenter by trade, is unmarried, and has no fixed home. He appeared to be about thirty years of age.

J. W. Worth.

Mr. Boucher said he was otherwise in good condition, but was afraid that his "bum knee" would go back on him. Finally he was asked if he would not reconsider his claim and report for service. Without hesitation, he remarked that he "sure would," and left the room ostensibly to report at the post office.

Tribunal No. 275 heard one case this morning. The applicant was Mrs. Redmond, 268 McDonnel Street, who sought exemption on behalf of her nephew, William Hattrick, a law student at Osgoode Hall. The Tribunal could not determine whether Hattrick would apply for exemption in Peterborough or in Toronto, where he now resides. For this reason no action was taken. The point involved was a loan to Hattrick to enable him to complete his studies.

MISSIONARY SUNDAY AT TRINITY CHURCH

To-morrow will be Missionary Sunday in the Trinity Methodist Church. At the morning service Rev. J. H. Arnup, B.A., Secretary of the Foreign Missionary Department of the Methodist Church, will preach, while in the evening Mr. G. A. Weekes, of Lindsay, will give an address. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper and the reception of members will take place at the close of the morning service.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Mr. R. C. Read of the De Laval Co., will address a meeting for men at the Y.M.C.A. building on Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock, the subject being "Prayer." Every man and older boy is cordially invited to attend this service.

Monday evening at 6.15 a complimentary supper will be served to the Boys' Executive Committee. This committee is composed of three officers from each Bible class and each of the 24 captains of gymnasium teams. The purpose of the meeting is to get the Executive strongly behind the boys' membership campaign now on between the six classes, each class being sub-divided into four teams. The class that scores the largest number of points will receive a pennant and a supper. The team, no matter of what class it forms a part, which secures the most points, will be photographed as a group, and each member of the team will receive a copy of this photo.

The individual boy worker who secures five members or the equivalent of five members in fees, will receive his own membership free. The boy worker who brings in two members will receive a Y. M. C. A. badge. In this campaign old or new members count five points and each dollar counts one point. We hope that the boys will get busy and greatly boost the membership of the Boys' Department.

An effort is soon to be launched for senior members, and it is expected that a strong organization of men will have part in this proposed effort to increase the senior membership. Details will be announced very shortly. In the meantime the boys should get busy and gather up everything in sight, for the seniors are to be allowed to enroll junior as well as senior memberships; and it might be said that the boy members are also privileged to enroll seniors as well as boys.

The Association has never had a better programme to present to its members than has been outlined for the present season. So every man or boy who takes a membership in the Y.M.C.A. now is assured of more than his money's worth. It is thought too that the present offers the best opportunity for men desiring to engage in a good work for others to enroll themselves in the Y.M.C.A.

GERMANS ADMIT SUPERIORITY OF BRITISH IN WEST

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10.—Unwilling testimony of the irresistible might of the British offensive in Flanders is given by Lieutenant General Von Ardenne, the military critics of the Tageblatt, of Berlin, who sends from the Flanders front a graphic picture of the difficulties of the German defence. No way, he says, has been devised to prevent the "fire roller," as the Germans term the moving barrage, from making slow and steady gains. He reports the German losses as very heavy if an attempt is made to hold the front line trenches in force, while a thin line adds to the speed of the British advance.

"The sufferings of the defenders in the front line," General Von Ardenne writes, "composed of shell holes almost filled with water, are such that the men must be relieved every two days instead of every week or every ten days as last year. The infantry now spends two days on the firing line, two in support and two in reserve until relieved.

"The German artillery is so numerically inferior to the British that it is seldom relieved, and as it cannot dig in owing to the boggy terrain it must fire without cover. The conditions in the shell holes are such that men falling into the centre of them are lost unless assisted. Horses breaking in to the morass are shot because it is impossible to extricate them. German counter attacks can traverse the fire roller only by small detachments in single file. The loss is slight if the manoeuvre succeeds, otherwise!"

The Germans evidently are anxious concerning an advance from Dixmude where the road emerges from the inundated region. The Germans maintain a concentric artillery fire on the road, but Von Ardenne thinks that an attempt to advance is not improbable.

Astrakhan crowns are seen on French hats.

The High Cost of Food And Parcels For Soldiers

Since printing the list of Special Food Parcels, which the Canadian Field Comforts Commission has offered to send to the men at the Front, or in England, a cablegram has been received from Miss Plummer, Captain C.F.C.C., dated Nov. 6th, saying that "owing to increased cost of food, parcels can now only be sent out subject to charge according to prices, when order is received."

Council Will Appoint Coal Investigator When the Fuel Controller Provides Authority

At Present There is No Law for the Inspection of Private Homes as to the Quantity of Coal Held—Many Rumours of Hoarding Are Believed to Be Unfounded or Exaggerated.

ALD. DOBBIN'S VISIT

Not the least of the worries that beset Ald. Dobbin and his coal committee are the public's impatient criticisms of alleged conditions that are beyond the municipality's control. For instance there have been recent demands for action by a fuel inspector to investigate rumours and statements that some citizens have cellars heaped with coal sufficient for more than this winter's requirements while others, less fortunate, are besieging the dealers, including the city's depot, for merely temporary supplies.

Ald. Dobbin referred to these reports at last night's meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. In the first place, he said, the city has not the authority to appoint a fuel inspector; hence action must be withheld until the municipality is empowered to undertake it. Since the coal depot was established and even before that time, the Council has always been in advance of and has anticipated the public's needs and demands

It is inadvisable to publish all the details of the work the committee has been pursuing, but Ald. Dobbin stated that correspondence with the Fuel Controller has requested that the city be given clear and definite authority to appoint an inspector, among whose duties will be the inspection of the coal supplies in the private homes of this city. It was intimated in a general way that a new proclamation would sanction this appointment. It was expected that a notice to that effect would have been received before this week, but in the meantime the citizens must be content with existing conditions.

QUESTION OF QUANTITY.

That some of the rumours in circulation are unfounded is the opinion of those who are in closest touch with the situation. An example of this was afforded at last night's meeting, when Ald. Smith asked for information about a story with which workmen had upbraided him, as an Alderman, that the city had delivered a large supply of coal to a home in East City. The facts, as disclosed by the city's books, showed that this citizen had received no coal from the city, and therefore the rumour was utterly unfounded.

The letters from the Fuel Controller included a comparison of Peterborough's receipts of coal last year, and also up to October of this year. The latter amount has been questioned by the committee, and at Ald. Dobbin's request the coal dealers provided him with statements of their receipts for the same period. Their total receipts together with the city's purchases give a total considerably less than the Fuel Controller's estimate, and this attention to detail may result in securing more coal for the city than would have been possible if the official statement had gone unquestioned.

THE TRIP TO BUFFALO.

In these and in other respects the Committee is bending every effort to obtain coal for the citizens. Ald. Dobbin and Ald. Stratton were in Buffalo this week and visited twenty-eight companies without any appreciable success. Their negotiations will be maintained, and following last night's decision certain orders were wired this morning and other means will be employed to obtain supplies.

R. Hicks & Co. have offered to devote one day a week to the delivery of small orders of quarter-ton lots if the city will provide the trucks. Mayor Duffus offered three trucks last night and others are believed to be available. With this prospect it is expected that this innovation will secure a wider distribution and help to relieve the most urgent needs.

WILL TRY CANNEL COAL.

Ald. Dobbin brought back a suggestion from the W. B. Nicoll Co. of Buffalo, that cannel coal which is generally used for hearth fires, should be given a trial. It can be delivered to consumers here at $9.66 a ton, and the committee decided to order one car. Cannel coal leaves considerable soot in stoves and pipes, but it has its uses, gives a good heat and may be used even in ranges since it reduces to a fine ash.

The city has already delivered about 517 tons of coal at a total cost, including new bags, of $10.03 a ton. It was sold at $10 a ton. The city has not touched its capital of $30,000 yet, for the venture is paying its way.

SCRAMBLING FOR SUPPLIES.

In one coal company office in Buffalo, the Peterborough aldermen met the mayors of Ingersoll, Stratford, Kitchener, and Medina, N.Y., all on the same anxious errand. The manager received them in a body. They got a hearing, ad a soft answer, with an explicit summary of the conditions that prevail in the coal business from the mines all the way to the consumer.

Workmen of Foreign Birth Are Now Barred

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 10.—With the plan of precluding the possibility of labour agitators becoming a dangerous force in organized labour, and from starting agitations such as those fostered by the I.W.W., the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labour, in convention here, has adopted a resolution barring from the ranks of bona-fide labour, workmen of foreign birth or parentage, who are not American or Canadian citizens, or who have failed to declare their intention of becoming such.

A Great Furniture Sale in Town

The Home Furnishing Co. have announced an extraordinary furniture sale that should tempt housekeepers to do some furnishing to their homes for the winter. A perusal of the half page advertisement in to-day's Examiner will give interesting particulars of the special reductions made on parlour suites, buffets, dressers, diners, extension tables, rockers, beds, and bedding. Also, read the important lowering of the price of tapestry rugs, mattresses, springs and many other tempting bargains.

THE WEATHER

"Is this our Indian summer?" This question has been asked regarding the beautiful weather conditions prevailing to-day, and while a definite answer cannot be given, it may be said that the weather of to-day is at least a very good imitation of what Indian summer weather should be. Indian summer should consist of at least a week to ten days of warm, hazy weather during the first half of November, after the first fall of snow. Of late years it has been irregular in its appearance, or absent altogether, but when it is here, it is one of the most pleasant periods of the whole year. Temperature to-day, 54 degrees.—W. P.

Firemen's Overcoats Are Shabby After Six Years' Service

Chief Grange reported to the Fire, Water and Light Committee that the winter overcoats had been reissued to the men, but after six years' service they were shabby, and should be replaced. There were seventeen firemen to be equipped, and the Chief added that they should also get a new issue of rubber boots.

The cost of the coats is estimated at about $500, and the Chief reported Mr. George Ball's advice that at least the cloth should be purchased now, as it would undoubtedly be dearer and difficult to obtain a year hence.

Ald. Dobbin, Smith, Weir, Worth, and the Mayor were appointed a committee to consider this request and report back, and also authorized to arrange for the sale of old rubber boots, hose, coats, scrap brass, and copper wire that has accumulated at the Hall.

Will Repair Billiard Table.

Chief Grange stated that the billiard table at the Fire Hall needed a new top and cushions. The men could not use it in its present disrepair, but they desire to draw on their Benefit Fund for the needed improvements. This is one of the objects of the fund, and the Mayor, Ald. Dobbin, and Chief Grange were authorised to have the repairs made. It is estimated that the cost will be about $65.

The Chief was also instructed to purchase carrots, turnips, and other vegetables, which he stated were necessary in the horses' diet.

Mr. George Jamieson has resigned as engineer, and the Chief has arranged to fill the position, a successor having already been engaged.

Will Give A Report Of The Congress

$750,000 Is City's Allotment Of Canada's New Victory Loan

And $200,000 is Expected to Be Taken in Rural Part of the County —Campaign on Monday Opens at Nine O'clock, Announced by Bells and Whistles—A Bond For Everybody.

The City of Peterborough's allotment of the Victory Loan has been placed at $750,000, and of the rural section of the county $200,000, making a total of $950,000, or practically $1,000,000.

Around the headquarters of the local Loan committee on Hunter street it is confidently expected that this sum will be realized, and that Peterborough county will place itself in the front rank of Canadian municipalities in the generosity of their loan to the Government for war purposes. It need scarcely be stated again that the major part of the loan will be spent here for the manufacture and purchase of supplies needed at the front.

A Noisy Opening.

Mr. Warren has a "Noisy Committee" which is arranging for a grand fanfare of whistles and bells to herald Canada's Victory Loan at nine o'clock on Monday morning. At that hour the boom of a gun on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, will signal the opening of the campaign, and every community will catch its echo reverberating it cross Canada from sea to sea. Hence, it is hoped that there will be the fullest harmony from the bells and whistles of this city at the zero hour of the new loan.

Public Meeting.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn, chairman of the County committee, stated that a public meeting would be held in the Opera House on Thursday night next in behalf of the fund.. The speakers and other details will be announced later.

On Friday night there will be a big meeting in Havelock, and the other communities will have their particular meetings later. Everything is being done to make this loan as impressive and as urgent as possible, rather to arouse the people to a complete sense of their personal responsibility in applying for their share of the bonds.

A Bond for Everybody.

The smallest bond is for $50, which can be purchased on the following arrangement of payment—$5 on 1st December, $5 on 2nd January, $10 on 1st February, $10 on 1st March; $10 on 1st April, and $10 on 1st May. These bonds pay 5 1-2 per cent. interest, and the first dividend will be issued on 1st June. Hence without any financial strain or inconvenience, practically every citizen of Peterborough can take at least one $50 bond. It is particularly hoped that the number of subscribers will be large.

The Local Workers.

Of the $750,000 expected to be loaned by this city, $500,000 is the mark set for the local workers. The remaining $250,000 has been assigned to a special corps of expert financiers, who will make a special appeal to Peterborough's Morgans, Goulds, and Carnegies.

The citizens are requested to make their purchases of bonds through the team workers in order that they may get credit for the missionary work assigned to them.

The teams are as follow:

North Ward—T. W. Robinson, captain; Ross L. Dobbin, Geo. Ruth, W. R. Scadding.

South Ward—E. Walton, captain; Geo. A. Benor, Ward Patterson, W. Dean Tyrer.

Centre Ward—D. H. Moore, captain; H. Rush, G. O. Cameron, John R. Corkery.

Study and Exercise

Overstudy and lack of exercise make thin bloodless children. Study does not usually hurt a child at school unless the studies encroach on time that should be spent in out-of-doors exercise. But lack of exercise and overstudy is a combination that brings on St. Vitus Dance. If your boy or girl at school is thin and pale, listless and inattentive, has a fickle appetite, is unable to stand still or sit still, you must remember that health is much more important than education, and more time should be given to exercise and recreation.

See to it at once that the child does not overstudy, gets plenty of out-of-door exercise, sleeps ten out of every twenty-four hours, and takes a safe reliable tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until the colour returns to the cheeks and lips and the appetite becomes normal. For growing children who become pale and thin, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not only safe, but in most cases are the very best tonic that can be taken. These pills build up the blood, strengthen the nerves, and assist nature in keeping pace with rapid growth.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Buy Canadian Victory War Bonds

This City has to make a record if it is to hold up its end.

This City has to shove itself up above the cluster of cities that have set out to help the Government by lending to the Government the money to run the country.

If you have confidence in your country you will have confidence in its integrity, such confidence as any investor should have in the enterprise in which he puts his money.

To show your confidence right now, you will show it in the most practical way by BUYING VICTORY BONDS.

First, buy a VICTORY BOND because you will be patriotic. Practical patriotism counts in cash far better than in words. Stored in the savings banks of this city are thousands of dollars that will earn for the owner and for the country a higher rate of interest than ever before. Draw your money and buy Victory War Bonds.

Second, buy VICTORY BONDS because it is good business, and it is your duty to invest in your country's welfare. Share up the obligation. Do it now.

Third. Do it because your personal interest is served and the road made clear for the Government to carry on the operations imperative on account of the war. No country will lend Canada money, not that our national credit is not of the best, but that national borrowers are too many for the reserves of funds in sight.

Fourth, whatever way you look at it the investment directly benefits you. And benefits your country.

THE BOND SALE OPENS MONDAY, NOV. 12th. Call at the office on Hunter Street and buy. Talk it over with your wife and do your share. As much as you like, no amount too small.

TALKED AGAINST THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT GETS A YEAR IN JAIL

Romeo Brault, Employed by Ontario Civil Service Sentenced by Magistrate Denison—"Any Man Who Has Five Cents Worth of Brains Won't Enlist," Was One of His Statements.

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—If a young men, a French-Canadian by birth, a draughtsman by profession, an employee in the Ontario Civil Service—"holding down a Government appointment and drawing Government money," as Magistrate Denison puts it—sits smoking cigars with a couple of friends in his room some evening, and if the talk just naturally turns on conscription; and if the young Frenchman says he won't go overseas, and nobody can make him go, and that he will shoot the first man who comes for him—is he uttering patriotic sentiments likely to induce persons to observe the Military Service Act?

If he further says that any man who has five cents' worth of brains won't enlist, and that the fellows who stay at home are in a totally different, and inferentially, a far superior class to those who are toiling and dying in France and Flanders—is he uttering sentiments likely to encourage enlistment?

Gives Year to Offender.

Magistrate Denison thinks not. That is why, in the Police Court today, he sentenced Romeo Brault to a year in the Ontario Reformatory for contravening Sec. 16, Sub-Sec. 2, of the Conscription Act, despite the strenuous plea of prisoner's counsel, T. C. Robinette, and his declaration that this wasn't "British justice."

"I don't want to see such an exhibition made of this court as you are making this morning," said counsel. "Surely if there's a court where a man can expect British justice it's this one."

"He's not getting it," retorted counsel.

"Then you can take it to another court."

"There's none better."

"But there's a higher court," said his Worship, adding, after committing the accused to the Reformatory: "I don't suppose he will be there very long before someone lets him out. At any rate they will know what I think of such things."

Brault has been for some time employed at the Ontario Parliament Buildings. In a friendly and confidential manner he sat chatting one evening with two friends, a Mr. Coleman of 21 Grosvenor street and Mr. Nellis Crawford of 20 University avenue, in his quarters at 211 Jarvis street. It was their evidence as to what he said that convicted him. When he was arrested by Detective Maurer the officer found in his pocket a printed card containing, in French, the mottoes "Canadians, resist! When called at arms, don't move! Pass this card on to a friend!" etc. He said in his own defence that he had got the card at an anti-conscription meeting which he recently attended merely as a spectator in Montreal; his statements to his Toronto friends, he declared, were simply quotations of what the speakers had said at that meeting. Under oath in the witness box he declared himself a loyal Canadian, ready to go overseas at his country's call.

"Doesn't sound much like it," mused the magistrate.

Contend That Others Do It.

"What of it?" said Mr. Robinette, discounting with a sweep of his arms the alleged "unpatriotic" utterances and card. "It's surely no crime to oppose conscription. Go to any Liberal political meeting and you will hear hundreds doing the same thing. You know that La Patrie, La Presse, and other Quebec papers are publishing articles against conscription every day."

Not Endorsed By Executive

Mr. Burnham Finds Conservative Committee Did Not Meet to Endorse His Attitude

Following is a copy of a letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham to the Liberal Association of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I sent you recently a letter containing a proposition regarding the selection of a Unionist candidate, which I also published in the press. In that letter, I stated that my support of the Unionist Government had been endorsed by the Executive Committee of the Conservative Association, as also was my candidature in support of the Unionist Government. This information was given to me by Mr. Chas. S. McClelland, a member of the Executive, on my return from Ottawa, after a protracted absence, and it appeared to me so definite and likely that I made no further enquiries regarding it. It appears that I must have misunderstood Mr. McClelland, because the matter was not brought before the committee at all. I wish, therefore, to make this correction in my letter to you. It makes, of course, no material difference in the proposition submitted by me, nor does it in any way affect the fact that I am a duly authorized candidate in the field in support of the Union Government, but of course it is necessary for me to correct the mis-information which I conveyed to you.

Yours truly,
J. H. Burnham.

the men who were with him in Flanders. Each soldier to-day gave a day's pay to start a party fund. Sergt. Pocock says the Tories who staged the convention at which they aimed to double cross the soldiers killed themselves. "They say they want to win the war." He said, "But their whole plan is to kill the soldiers."

A MERRY BATTLE.

The Veterans are hostile also at the Associated Kin and E. C. H. Wright, its leader, who claims the credit for bringing out Major Cronyn. They claim the Associated Kin tried to keep them from the convention by arranging a soldiers' concert. No soldiers went. Taking it altogether, the merriest political battle that has ever been waged in London is on, and is growing hotter all the time. The soldiers' wives and sisters are entering into the fight just as keenly as the men, and will be organized for the battle on election day.

Face Paint Tabooed Remove Skin Instead

"A few years ago only one class of women painted their faces," says Dolly Madison. "It was a sign of social ostracism and was tabooed in refined circles. The custom has become so universal we must admit it is to be deplored and to be shelved as soon as possible."

How foolish to seek artificial "beauty" of this sort, obnoxious from artistic and moral standpoints, when it is so easy to obtain a truly natural complexion by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which may be had at any drug store in original one-ounce package. This mercolized wax is so effective and so harmless, no one need think of using anything else for the purpose. Applied like cold cream at night, and washed off in the morning, it at once begins to show its remarkable rejuvenating effects. It gently absorbs the lifeless surface skin in tiny particles, gradually showing the fresher, livelier, beautiful underskin. Naturally it takes with it all surface defects, like freckles, pimples, chaps, moth patches and liver spots.

Recent discovery of ether compound that dries up corns so they Lift Out

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are busy dispensing freezone, the recent discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

A quarter of an ounce costs very little at any pharmacy, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet on every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifs out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

AN EXPLANATION

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—At the last meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board a matter of a claim of short weight on a shipment of cheese from the Shearer Factory by Mr. Kerr, was reported to be refused payment by the directors and was referred to the Executive of the Board for settlement. At a directors' meeting, held for discussion on this claim, the directors pointed out that they did not refuse payment but had asked for a written statement of the claim.

The matter was a misunderstanding, and when clearly understood by the directors, was settled at once.

CLEANSE THE LARGE INTESTINE

Present War Cry of Advanced Physicians

Some of the leading surgeons of the world have gone so far recently as to remove part of the Large Intestine in cases so serious as that of Tuberculosis and restored the patient to perfect health by so doing.

The New York American has recently said:

"During Constipation the poisons in the Large Intestine often becomes so great as to form a serious menace to health as to form a serious menace to of the Intestine they enter the blood and consume the healthy blood cells, impoverishing the blood, and if this process is continued long enough an acute poisoning is produced."

It is impossible under our present day mode of living for the Intestine to rid itself of all waste, and it is easily proven that there is an accumulation, no matter how regular we are.

Drugs, if taken regularly, form a habit, but Internal Bathing by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade" cleanses the Lower Intestine its entire length with pure, warm water and makes it clean, sweet, and healthy.

At the same time it regulates the system and makes one feel that every function is working smoothly and naturally—and, indeed this is so.

This letter will convey a message of good cheer to many:

Dear Sir,—We heartily endorse the J. B. L. Cascade," as we find in our work that a loaded colon means a poisoned system, which, in turn, means ligamentous contraction of the spinal muscles, against which our work is directed.

MR. H. B. COWAN WAS ONE OF THE SPEAKERS

Peterboro' Man Attended Luncheon in Toronto on Thursday

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—For the purpose of bringing about a better understanding between the rural and urban population of Ontario, the United Farmers of Ontario yesterday were hosts at a luncheon at the Ontario Club, at which the guests were the editors of agricultural and city papers. The difficulties encountered by the farmers in connection with food production were presented to the gathering by H. B. Cowan, of Peterborough, W. C. Good, Brantford, E. C. Drury, Simcoe County, W. J. Stonehouse, president of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association, and J. J. Morrison.

In answer to the accusation that the newspapers have been giving undue promience to the hardships of the consumers, while failing to sufficiently defend the producers, several editors pointed out that the farmers' side has been given every consideration, and it is suggested that the papers are not read with sufficient care.

Food Controller Hanna declared that in asking the increased production he offered no remedy for the ills of the farmer, because there is no time to lose, as a result of most insistent demands for food from Italy and France.

"These people," he said, referring to the Allies, "are going to be fed and we are going to take our chances. The comforting feature of the situation is the fact that the United States has food to rush across for the time being."

Referring to the sugar shortage, he said every effort is being made to make the present supply last until January, when the new supply will be available. The increase in the price of milk, he explained, is the result of the great demand for condensed milk and milk powder in Europe, which has resulted in increased production in the United States.

Mr. Hanna closed with a warning against propagandists, who are responsible for adverse criticism of members of the Food Control Committee.

Mr. Stewart Lyon, returned war correspondent, spoke of the needs of the men in the trenches.

"The boys at the Front," he said, "are doing work that should induce the retired farmers to return to their farms and work 18 hours a day."

"What is the name of that handsome prisoner?" asked the impressionable young woman.

"No. 2206, miss," replied the guard.

ARE BACK FROM THE CONGRESS

Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney have just returned from the annual congress of the Salvation Army for Canada East. Advances have been made to every line of work in the past year, especially in the Young Peoples work of the Army.

The meetings consisted of a public reception on Friday night and Local Officers and Officers' Council on Saturday night, which taxed the capacity of the auditorium of the Temple on James and Albert street.

Then came the great services at the Massey Hall on Sunday, which more than takes the capacity of the build, ing, hundreds having been turned away.

The visible spiritual results of the morning and night meetings were 190 people at the mercy seat.

Monday night was a Young People's demonstration, and again hundreds of people were unable to gain admission. The Young People excelled themselves.

Commissioner Richards conducted special officers' counsels and the 500 officers received a great deal of inspiration and blessing and have returned to their work to spread it abroad and no doubt a great forward march will be the result.

No Prospect of An Early End of War

(By Webb Miller.)

LONDON, Nov. 10.—No hope or prospect of an early end of the war, as Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law summarized the whole world situation in his Guild Hall speech last night, was reached by the press and public to-day.

Public opinion was steadying after the double blow of the Italian catastrophe and the Russian internal dissention. There never was a moment when the adverse news from either ally affected the British determination to see it through to the very end, but it was disappointing.

Creation of an inter-allied council of generals and strategists for conduct of all operations on the western front, and the inclusion of Italy in this front, was regarded as certain to result very soon. Bonar Law's declaration that "in the future the line from the Channel to the Adriatic" would be considered "as one front," was regarded as forecasting this change, and the creation of a joint board of generals on the Italian front was held to be another development to this end.

Jews Are in Control At Petrograd

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—It was considered in diplomatic circles today that the provisional cabinet as announced by the Maximalist-Bolsheviki faction indicates control by the Jewish element. With the exception of Lenine all the ministers are said to be Jews. This is the first time that the Jews have assumed open control. It is apprehended here that their assumption of power will lead to a renewal of the old anti-semitic feeling which may end in civil war.

Famous Singer To Visit City

Madame Gardini to Give Concer Here

It will be welcome news to the music lovers of Peterborough that Madam Gardini, famous singer, is to visit this city towards the end of this month for one concert, in which she will be assisted by the eminent pianist, Mr. Frederick C. Frein. Arrangements are being made to-day for Madam Gardini's visit, and it is probable that the concert will be given in aid of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association. Further particulars will be given on Monday.

Another Landmark Of The County Has Passed Away

A landmark of Peterborough County has passed away in the person of Mr. John Breckenridge, J.P., of Westwood, whose death occurred early this morning. Few men in this district were better known or more highly respected than the deceased, who was held in the greatest esteem by the community. Mr. Breckenridge was in his eighty-ninth year.

He was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, and coming to Canada when only eighteen years of age, he had lived in this county ever since. He married Agnes Stevenson, also a native of Ayrshire, and from this union resulted a family of fifteen children, of which thirteen survive.

For over fifty years the deceased was clerk of the Township of Asphodel, resigning within the past year. He took a deep interest in educational and municipal affairs, and his advice and assistance in these, as well as to all other matters pertaining to the best interests of the community were highly valued.

Mr. Breckenridge was the grandfather of Signaller Max Breckenridge, who was killed in Flanders, and of Charles Breckenridge, recently invalided home from the Front badly injured. Other grandsons are on active service. Mrs. Breckenridge predeceased her husband some time ago.

The funeral will take place at 1.30 o'clock on Monday afternoon from the family residence at Westwood.

He enlisted in Medicine Hat with the 175th Battalion and has been in France since last New Year's Day. He is a brother of Mrs. J. O. Fife and Mrs. F. A. Kidd, of Peterborough.

Fuel Regulations Are Very Stringent Out On Monday

In an extra edition of the Canada Gazette, received to-day, the new fuel regulations issued by Fuel Controller Magrath are announced. Ald. Dobbin stated that they were exceedingly stringent, and gave the local committee all the power desired. A resume of the clauses will be published on Monday. One regulation requires that no coal shall be sold to persons who have more than a certain comparatively small quantity.

MONEY CRISIS IN AUSTRIA.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Swiss monetary experts, in despatches received here, call attention to the desperate financial situation in Austria.

Recently Dr. Weckerle, President of the Hungarian Cabinet, declared at a public sitting of Parliament that the circulation of notes of the Imperial Bank had reached 15,500,000,000 crowns in September, and was now probably 17,000,000,000. The metal reserve for this enormous circulation is only between 350,000,000 and 400,000,000.

The Swiss experts declare that Austria, consequently, is in a precarious financial position. The Austrian crown now is quoted at only 38 in foreign countries, and has depreciated still more in the interior of the empire. In this situation, the Swiss experts say Austria would not be long in suing for separate peace were she not dominatd by Germany.

MINISTER'S OFFICE

OTTAWA Aug. 24th, 1917.

I would be glad if every man and woman in Canada were to see these pictures — the most vividly interesting series that has yet come from the war zone. They cannot fail to be a source of inspiration to all who see them, illustrating as they do the unfailing cheerfulness, the indomitable spirit and the resourcefulness of our Canadian Soldiers in all the difficult and trying conditions of modern warfare.

MR. BERNSTEIN SEES RUSSIA DRIFTING INTO CIVIL WAR

Says Overthrow of Kerensky Would Be Greatest Calamity to Russia and Chaos and Anarchy Would Reign Supreme, But Believes Maximalists Will Be Defeated

A CLASH IN PROSPECT

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Germany has scored another victory in her purpose of crushing the Russian revolution, in the opinion of Herman Bernstein, if Lenine and Trotzky are now in power. He predicted, however, that their sway would be brief and that in a very short time they would be discredited among the masses of the new republic. Their ascendancy and downfall, he adds, will be accompanied by great violence and loss of life, but their view will not prevail.

"Theirs will be only a temporary victory," Mr. Bernstein said, "and perhaps they will not know real victory at all. Remember that the Maximalists have taken control of telegraph systems, and the only news we are getting in America is what they choose to give us. But at any rate, the reports indicate that the Russian capital is to have a repetition of the July counter revolutionary riots, organised by Lenine, Trotzky, and their followers.

"The announcement which comes from them that the Provisional Government is no longer in existence and that some of its members have been arrested is in all probability full of exaggerations. Nevertheless, it is quite clear that Russia is drifting to civil war. During the July riots the Maximalists endeavoured to seize the Government, under the pretext of handing it over to the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, but the President of the Council informed the wild-eyed mob that the Council was in session and its deliberation could not be forced or influenced by threats or bayonets.

"This conspiracy against the Kerensky government by the extreme radicals, aided by the extreme reactionaries, collapsed and the leaders of the riots were discredited among the Russian people. The new Maximalist attempt on the provisional government will result in much violence and loss of life. The overthrow of Kerensky would be the greatest calamity to Russia and to Russia's liberty. Chaos and anarchy would reign supreme.

"But there is no doubt that the Maximalists, even if successful temporarily, will be defeated within a short time."

As indicating his belief of the danger that threatens Russia if Lenine, Trotzky and their associates are successful in overcoming the government organised by Kerensky, Mr. Bernstein told in his office as editor of the American Hebrew, of a conference between Kerensky and Lenine last June, when Kerensky was Minister of War, Lenine was offering suggestions as to policy.

"Let us arrest a dozen or two of the capitalists," Mr. Bernstein quoted him as saying. "Let us keep them under the same conditions which surround Nicholas Romanoff, and they will reveal all the secrets of how they amassed their wealth. It is necessary to have the capitalists arrested. Without that, all your phrases will remain empty words."

Having expressed himself on the subject of internal policy, Lenine continued:

To all this Kerensky replied that the Lenine remedies were childish, that Karl Marx never would have suggested such schemes as they were the ideas followed by Asiatic despots and rulers of savage tribes.

"It is useless to argue with leaders who would plunder and arrest others," said Mr. Bernstein. "That is the kind of argument that has been advanced to Kerensky by Lenine and the rest of his group.

"Lenine has encouragd fraternisation by the soldiers of the republic and of the Kaiser. Kerensky has said that Lenine, therefore, has introduced the same principles that Leopold of Bavaria would have him introduce. I don't see how the fraternisation of Russians and Prussians will advance socialist principles. Frankly, the Maximalists are playing the game of the German General Staff, and if Kerensky is overthrown it is because he has had too much confidence in the idealism of the radical element and has not been drastic enough in putting down their schemes. The followers of Lenine, Trotzky and the rest are for the most part ignorant or influenced by the suggestion of a distribution of wealth."

Repeating his assertion that the great mass of intelligent Russians would not permit the ideas of Lenine and Trotzky to prevail for long, Mr. Bernstein predicted that from the clash there would come a clearing of the atmosphere and the triumph of the right.

Fined $10 For Being Drunk On Star Beer And Jamaica Ginger

Jamaica ginger provided the kick in two per cent. beer that tangled a local man's legs last night to such an extent that he was arrested as a drunk and fined $10 in Police Court this morning. Toronto precedents were the grounds on which this decision was made. The ginger ingredient is banned under the Temperance Act.

Another regular drunk was fined $10, without costs.

Weeks, B.A., a brilliant lawyer of Lindsay, will be the speaker, and the evening address will be given by Rev. J. W. Saunby, B.A., who have spent many years in Japan, and has recently returned from that country. Undoubtedly these addresses will be of special interest and profit, and it is expected that large crowds will hear them. The pastor of the church will also take part in the services, and in the morning will give a five-minute talk to the boys and girls.

For Your Health's Sake Drink More Milk

Beginning to-day order twice as much milk as you have been getting. In no other way can you buy more health and at the same time save money.

The average family must cut down the food bills. Why not, then, buy milk rather than some other foods at exorbitant prices?

One quart of milk equals:—

8 eggs
3 lbs. fresh codfish
3/5 lb. of ham
2 lbs. of chicken
3/4 lb. of round steak
4/5 lb. of pork chops

When people come to properly understand the real food values in milk there will be much more of it used.

We want to impress upon you especially that our milk is good milk. It has that perfect flavour that makes milk-drinking a pleasure. It is produced and delivered to you under absolutely sanitary conditions. Better still, remember that the

JOHN LEIGH WOOD.

The death took place yesterday in Toronto, of John Leigh Wood, beloved husband of Eloise Glover Wood, after an illness covering a period of four months.

The deceased was born near Monreal and at an early age went into the building and contracting business, subsequently becoming superintendent of construction on a number of important works throughout Ontario and Quebec. In Peterborough he superintended the building of the power house and dam for the Canadian General Electric Co., and also the erection of other buildings in connection with their plant here.

The late Mr. Wood was a man of fine qualities, integrity, and fair dealing, and was much thought of by those who had made his acquaintance here and elsewhere.

The remains are being brought to Peterborough to-night, and the funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. P. Glover, 367 Mark street, on Monday, November 12th, 1917, and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Fowl Supper A Big Success

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9.—The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church are no doubt well pleased with the splendid success of their efforts, as on Tuesday night the weather was just right to draw a crowd to a fowl supper and entertainment. People from Peterborough, Port Hope and Cavan helped to swell the crowd, and upwards of seven hundred people were at the church, most of whom enjoyed the bounteous supper provided. The fowl, hot potatoes and salads were in abundance, and in addition delicious pies, cakes, etc., made up a repast fit for a king.

The church, auditorium and gallery was filled with an appreciative audience. The programme was given as advertised, and all were delighted with the splendid numbers given by the renowned Jessie Alexander, Mr. Horace Lapp, organist Presbyterian church, Port Hope, Mr. Ford Gould, B.A., Principal of Millbrook Public school, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, two of Millbrook's favourite soloists. The Sunday school orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. G. E. Burnham, added greatly to the programme. The Ladies Aid, with Miss Needham, President, Miss Duncan, Treasurer, and Mrs. Smith, Sec.-Treas., deserve great praise for providing such an excellent entertainment. Rev. Mr. Higgs was the chairman and filled the position with his usual ability.

STORAGE EGGS EASIER IN TONE

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Wholesalers have been evincing more than usual interest in package cereals during the week on account of the heavy demand that has developed. As a result of the order of the Food Controller prohibiting their sale after specified dates consumers have evidently thought it wise to put by a stock. A buying movement has thereby been started. With one exception, perhaps, price movements have again been in an upward direction and includes such commodities as canned peaches and apricots, canned beets, tobaccos, ketchup, licorice, package peas and candied peel. A decline has been recorded in one brand of cigars.

Live Hogs.

Pure lard, compound lard and shortening were in firmer market with higher prices quoted. Live hogs were slightly higher in price. There is a good demand for barrel pork, with short cut backs showing an upward trend. Butter is in an easier position due to the lack of ocean space for export and also to the fact that margarine will in all probability soon be for sale on the Canadian market. Storage eggs were in easier tone due to stocks held on this this continent, but new-laid eggs were in firm position. Ontario beans are not yet being quoted as farmers are holding their stocks for higher prices than dealers are disposed to give.

Potatoes were again quoted higher, with the farmer not disposed to offer very freely. Porto Rican pineapples came into Canadian markets during the week. Hothouse tomatoes have made an appearance now that the outdoor varieties have disappeared. Business in wholesale lines is reported good, but difficulty in getting commodities is still a big problem with the wholesaler.

DAVID BISPHAM'S SON DEAD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—David Bispham, the baritone, cabled yesterday to his lawyer in London for confirmation of the report that his son, Lieutenant David Charles Bispham of the Royal Flying Corps, had been killed in a practice flight at the Hendon course in England. Mr. Bispham had no word directly of the death, his only information being a telegram from Mrs. Bispham in Philadelphia.

"My only regret is that he did not die killing Germans," said Mr. Bispham last night, in speaking of his son.

Mr. Bispham added that he was proud that his son had the pluck "to go in." He was unaware that the young man had received a Lieutenant's commission last week, but knew that he was in line for a commission.

R. B. BENNETT NOT TO BE A CANDIDATE

Though Favouring Union Government is Much Opposed to Mr. Sifton

CALGARY—Giving as one of his reasons for refusing to be a candidate in the coming election, his consistent opposition to Hon. Arthur L. Sifton, in Provincial politics, R. B. Bennett, K.C., to-day issued a statement, detailing his position in full. Mr. Bennett says that as a supporter of Union Government, it would be very unfortunate for him to be in a position of criticizing one of its Ministers on account of his policy. The reason of his opposition to Mr. Sifton he set forth as the latter's railway policies in Alberta, which he believes will lead to a duplication of the present railway trouble in British Columbia. Mr. Bennett says unequivocally that he will support the Union Government candidates in Calgary, but he wishes to devote his own time to studying the war situation in various parts of the Empire.
